Debate On Child Care May Wax Hot For Board

County Welfare And Schools In Struggle For Authority

By ROBERT M. COPPOCK

The Marin County Board of Supervisors is preparing to watch a head-on collision between the county welfare department and county schools office Monday over the operation of the Marin City Day Care Center.

The board opened final budget sessions yesterday, but spent the day making routine changes in the budget, most of which would not affect the tax rate, which County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell has predicted would be $2.30 per $100 assessed valuation, 4.5 cents above last year.

The only major addition included yesterday were funds for increased court costs due to the Corbett murder trial.

In all, Mitchell said, the budget would total $21,670,400, with $8,603,151 gained from property taxes collected this fiscal year.

The clash Monday has been in the mill for weeks, since the preliminary budget hearings. The day care center is now operated by the Sausalito School District at Manzanita School, but the district wants to stop its part in handling the operation.

Operating costs for the school now come from contributions from fees paid by parents plus state aid, and the operation is supposed to break even.

FEES, AID

However, the state does not pay major capital costs, and the facilities have become run down.

Last spring County Supt. of Schools Virgil S. Hollis proposed that the county schools office take over the operation, and asked the supervisors for $15,000 to fix up the building, buy supplies and improve administration.

At that time Welfare Director Betty L. Presley came in with the idea that her department take over the operation, saying that federal funds were available for both operation of the school and capital improvements.

STRONG OBJECTION

Asst. School Supt. Stanley Friese then objected strongly, saying that the federal program was actually aimed at care for children of migrant workers. He said he was worried that the program would be merely a baby sitting operation and would have no educational value.

A report to the board handed out yesterday by County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said that the board may order the county schools office to provide consultation service in setting up the program.

Each of the two departments has submitted a report to the board outlining the costs and program proposed. The daily schedule for activities of children is virtually identical, and each department proposes a ma-

More Aid For Pound Possible

Marin County supervisors may take another look at its contract with the Marin County Humane Society, and the new look might result in some county money for the construction of the new humane center, proposed for Ignacio.

Supervisor Byron W. Leydecker asked for a review of the county's contract with the organization, which provides animal control services for the county and cities in Marin.

He said he believed that the present annual payment to the group does not cover the organization's capital investment in buildings and equipment, although it may cover operating costs.

"I don't want to be identified as being for the society," said Leydecker, "I just want to find out whether there is equity in the costs of the county animal control program."

Supervisor Peter H. Behr opposed the idea of the county putting any more money into animal control, saying he felt such a move would discourage private contributors.

Leydecker agreed there was that risk. "The humane people may be upset with me for bringing this up," he added, "because they are very proud."

Supervisor William D. Fusselman suggested that the main job of any study of building costs would be to separate the "humane" functions from the county policing and regulation functions when, for instance, a stray dog is picked up and later given a home.

He said the study should also try to determine what it would cost the county and cities to run their own pound operation.

The board approved a $117,247 budget for the county pound operation, of which only $68,200 is expected to be reimbursed through dog licenses and incidental fees. The income figure was based on the new $4 license fee.

Loot Totals $1,050

A $750 movie camera and $300 tape recorder were stolen from the car of Mike L. Hagen of San Francisco while it was parked at Kappas Boat Harbor, Waldo Point, sometime yesterday morning, he told sheriff's deputies.

BLOOMING MISTAKE

James Metzner of 128 Belvedere Drive, Strawberry, is wondering if he should take his 5-year-old banana tree to a plant psychiatrist. The thing started blooming two weeks ago, just one bloom and it kept getting bigger and bigger. Such things are not supposed to happen in this climate. Freezing weather in January froze the tree so badly that the Metzners thought it was a goner. Mrs. Metzner thinks maybe it was the freeze that got the tree mixed up so badly.

Johnson Rips Barry On Viet Statements

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Lyndon B. Johnson today accused Sen. Barry Goldwater of performing "a disservice to peace" and engaging in "preposterous" discussion of use of nuclear weapons in North Vietnam.

Johnson, talking with reporters in the White House rose garden just outside his office, went to unusual lengths to criticize his Republican election opponent for what Goldwater has had to say about commitment of American arms against North Vietnam.

Johnson said flatly that at no time had he authorized use of anything but conventional weapons by U.S. forces retaliating against North Vietnamese torpedo boats for their attacks on two American destroyers.

Johnson dismissed as falsehoods what he regarded as suggestions by Goldwater and his vice presidential running-mate, Rep. William Miller (R-N.Y.), that the administration had authorized use of nuclear weapons in the Southeast Asian crisis.

He accused Miller particularly of making "false and irresponsible" statements and said the position taken by Goldwater earlier this week at Hershey, Pa., was "preposterous."

Other highlights of the outdoor news conference:

Johnson said he has not endorsed Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy for the senatorial nomination in New York state. Johnson said that he would not interfere in the New York race, or for that matter in primaries in Massachusetts or Texas.

He said he will send to the Senate Monday the formal nomination of R. Sargent Shriver to be head of the poverty program. Shriver, Peace Corps director, has been serving in this role in an acting capacity. The president said he also was ready to announce the establishment of 22 work corps conservation camps under the poverty program in as many states and his list began with Arizona, home state of Goldwater.

Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara has authorized the start of an 18-million-dollar program to develop a counter-insurgency aircraft, the president said, and described it is the airborne equivalent of the jeep. Seven prototype planes will be constructed under the new program and the first flight is expected in about one year.

He expressed again strong administration support for the King-Anderson version of the medicare program now pending in Congress—that is, to finance health care for the aged under the Social Security system.

Johnson pledged the United States to do everything "humanly possible" to bring about unification of Germany just as soon as possible. This restatement of his position came after a reporter observed that it had been three years since the Berlin wall was erected.

He maintained his refusal to say who his choice for a vice presidential running-mate might be, saying that he was considering several qualified persons and would make an announcement when he had made up his mind.

Planes Keeping Eye On Crew Of Burned Vessel

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Coast Guard rescue aircraft today a 12-man crew who took to life rafts when fire swept their seagoing tug Sea Wolf halfway between here and Honolulu.

One man had suffered second degree burns, the Coast Guard said.

Two U.S. Coast Guard cutters, seven Canadian frigates and two luxury liners were steaming to the rescue of the crewmen.

The fire broke out about 950 miles northeast of Honolulu.

Reports from C-130 rescue planes circling the life rafts said the sea was relatively calm and visibility good.

The Sea Wolf was bound from Portland to Honolulu with a lumber barge in tow when the fire broke out.

Italian President Is Sinking Fast

ROME (UPI) — Italian President Antonio Segni lapsed into a coma with a cerebral stroke today and doctors said he was sinking fast.

The sudden turn for the worse in the 73-year-old president's condition followed a week of rallying. A medical bulletin issued today said Segni "suffered a further rapid worsening during the night" and went into a coma.

The news saddened millions of Italians who began the Ferragosta holiday in the belief that Segni was improving. The retiring silver-haired Sardinian is one of the most beloved men in Italy.

Turk Cypriot Pleas For End To Blockade

Minority Leader Says Measure Starving People

NICOSIA (UPI)—Turkish Cypriot leader Fazil Kuchuk appealed to world governments today for "drastic concrete measures" to break Greek Cypriot blockades he charged were designed "to starve the Turkish Cypriots to death."

The head of the Turkish Cypriot minority on this Mediterranean island denounced the blockades as "brutal" and "barbaric." He said counter-measures were necessary "if the world is to be saved from catastrophic international consequences."

25,000 HOMELESS

Kuchuk said 25,000 Turkish Cypriots were homeless following the destruction of 25 villages and extensive damage to 40 others by Greek Cypriot forces. He said 30,000 other Turkish Cypriots were dependent on relief because all means of earning a living were denied them.

He said the Greek Cypriot blockade had been "total" since Aug. 5 — the day the Greek Cypriot guerrillas launched their offensive in north-west Cyprus which caused the Turkish Air Force to attack the region last weekend.

(In Ankara, a Turkish Foreign Ministry spokesman said Turkey had asked Greece to use its influence on Cyprus President Makarios to get food, water and medical supplies to the blockaded Turkish Cypriots).

OTHER DEVELOPMENTS

In other related developments:

1. Informed sources in Athens said Makarios was opposed to any solution of the Cyprus problem that would include provision of Turkish bases on the island. The sources said Makarios also opposed other proposals made by Cyprus U.N. mediator Sakari Tuomioja in praparation for his talks with Greek leaders opening tomorrow.

2. Greek Premier George Papandreou said in an interview that "historical conscience" was more important than "popularity considerations" in his government's handling of the Cyprus crisis.

3. Greek Cypriot Foreign Minister Spyros Kyprianou flew to Athens today and met with Papandreou and Greek Foreign Minister Stravros Kostopolous. He said "The Cyprus Crisis is passing through a crucial phase and it is normal that repeated contacts should take place between the governments of Nicosia and Athens."

Kuchuk charged the Greek Cypriot blockade was a clear violation of the U.N. Security Council resolution which urged all parties to take no action which would worsen the situation in Cyprus.

Kuchuk said some Turkish Cypriot villages have food for only three or four more days.

Senators Demand Limits On Power Of Federal Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Demands that Congress check upon the "duties and limits" of the federal courts sounded in the Senate today as hope for adjournment next week grew dim.

Sens. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) and John Stennis (D-Miss.) teamed up in contentions that the Supreme Court and lower federal courts had gone too far in directing reapportionment of state legislatures on a "one person—one vote" pattern.

Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) brought senators into another Saturday session, but conceded chances for adjournment a week from today now appear faint.

Until today's session, senators who class themselves as liberals and moderates have been engaged in lengthy speeches against the rider plan.

Marin Student Killed In Crash In West Germany

College of Marin student Hugh Christopher Byron Wallace, 21, has been killed in a traffic accident in West Germany, his friends learned today.

He was the son of Dr. and Mrs. William B. Wallace, formerly of Kent Woodlands. His father is chief surgeon at St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco, and his mother is active in Junior League and in Experiment in International Living, a foreign student exchange program.

Young Wallace was graduated from Redwood High in 1961. He had been a football player there.

Wallace was fatally injured Thursday near the Rhine Valley city of Vallendar, when his motorcycle drifted across lanes on a curve and collided with a car driven by a German woman, the Associated Press said. Also killed was a passenger on Wallace's machine, Hans-Peter Macke, 18, son of the lord mayor of nearby Coblenz.

Three other Marin County youths accompanied Wallace when he began his vacation and work trip to Europe in February. They were Mike Kavanagh of 55 Corte Solano, Greenbrae, Steve Stock of Kentfield and David Campbell of Inverness.

OBTAINED JOBS

Campbell and Kavanagh returned to Marin County; the other two obtained jobs and stayed in West Germany.

Kavanagh today told the Independent-Journal that he last saw young Wallace in Nuremburg on June 15. At that time, Wallace was working as a mail clerk with the European Exchange System; he later took another job arranged by a family friend, the mayor of Coblenz.

Wallace purchased his BMW-500 motorcycle from Kavanagh when the latter left Europe for home.

SAVED FOR TRIP

Kavanagh explained that all four of the young men, College of Marin classmates, had saved up for the European trip; it was Wallace's second visit there.

While attending College of Marin, Wallace had lived at a boarding house near the campus in Kentfield.

Dr. and Mrs. Wallace and brother William, 17, flew yesterday to Germany, after the U.S. State Department notified them of their son's death. They had tentatively planned to join the youth later this month, for a trip through Greece, it was reported.

Besides his parents, young Wallace is survived by a sister, Mrs. Michael Erlin of San Francisco, and his brother. Also surviving are an uncle, attorney Winston C. Black of Atherton; two aunts, Mrs. George Eggleston of San Francisco, and Mrs. Edward H. Gessner of Washington, D.C., and his maternal grandfather, Dr. Lionel P. Player of Pebble Beach, retired University of California Medical School professor.

Fire Hits At Vacant Hub Home

No-one was at home when the flames started in the kitchen of the Edmund Catey house, 95 Park Avenue. A neighbor turned in the alarm at 6 p.m.

Spreading into the roof, the flames literally roasted most of the interior, without doing much visible damage to the structure. Firemen brought the blaze under control within 15 minutes, but "mopping up" operations required two hours, they reported.

Two engines and 13 men responded to the alarm.

Catey is an engineer with the state public utilities commission. He and his family were vacationing in Yosemite when the fire occured, firemen said. A daughter had been in the house doing laundry yesterday morning, but had returned to her San Francisco home in the afternoon, it was reported. She told firemen everything was in order when she left.

Heat from the flames cracked large living room windows, ignited furniture throughout the house and ruined other belongings, observers said today.

Mob Overruns U.S. Library In Indonesia

JAKARTA, Indonesia, (UPI)—Three thousand Indonesians, shouting "Americans go home," besieged the U.S. Cultural Center in Jakarta today and Indonesian authorites seized the building at the mob's demand.

The mob apparently was incensed over U.S. Senate action cutting off further American aid to this country.

The Indonesian flag was run up over the U.S. facility—the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Library—in the central Java city 250 miles east of here.

The U.S. Information Agency staff inside the building agreed to turn it over to Indonesian authorities to prevent further violence but a U.S. spokesman said the surrender was "temporary."

Weather Mixed Up All Over

Marin County, with unseasonal cold weather, was not the only place where weather was mixed up today.

It snowed in the East and low temperature records were broken in many of the Great Lake states.

It felt like it could almost have snowed in some parts of Marin this morning, but the damp fog made it seem colder than it actually was.

Woodacre had the coldest temperature with an early morning reading of 49. It was 52 in San Rafael and Novato. San Rafael's high yesterday was 71, not exactly torrid.

The Weather Bureau said it would be fair tonight and tomorrow with coast fog in the mornings.

The August snow storms were reported on Whiteface Mountain in the Adirondacks and on Mount Washington in New Hampshire.

The mercury dropped to the low 30s in many areas of the Alapachians.

Jones Too Sick To Go To Court In Robbery Case

STOCKTON (UPI) — Robert Lee Jones, sentenced to life imprisonment for his part in the murder of a Sausalito dairy executive, was too ill yesterday to appear in court in connection with the robberies of two Broderick cab drivers.

He had been arraigned before Municipal Judge Maxwell Willens and was scheduled to appear in court yesterday after a public defender was named to represent him.

No date was set for his appearance.

Jones and John Lee King received life sentences on July 21 for the Good Friday slaying of Donald Corbett Jr., son of a prominent Spokane, Wash., doctor.

Alcatraz Monument Funds Donated

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—More than $1,800 was received yesterday by Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson to build a monument on Alcatraz Island commemorating the founding of the United Nations in San Francisco in 1945.

Anderson is vice chairman of a five-man presidential commission which recommended the site of the former federal prison be used for the monument. Legislation to that effect has been introduced in Congress.

The donations were $1,341 from a group of citizens in Jackson, and $500 from San Jose attorney James F. Boccardo.

Mosk Appointment Called 'Payoff'

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Gov. Edmund G. Brown's appointment of Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk to the State Supreme Court constituted a "political payoff," Republican senatorial candidate George Murphy said yesterday.

"Mosk has been in line for a political plum since he refused to fight the Unruh machine when they told him not to run for the Senate nomination earlier this year," Murphy said.

Murphy also cited the appointment of his Democratic opponent, Pierre Salinger. "Mosk is getting his reward for being Johnny on the spot with enough legal doubletalk for Brown to name a Virginia resident to represent California in the U.S. Senate," he said.

Liberal Party Supports Kennedy

NEW YORK (AP)—Alex Rose, vice chairman of the Liberal Party, says the party will support Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy as Democratic candidate for New York's U.S. Senate seat and predicts Mayor Robert F. Wagner will endorse Kennedy, possibly next week.

Rose said yesterday that the Liberal Party, which usually gets about 400,000 votes, which could swing an election, will back Kennedy if he is nominated at the State Democratic Convention Sept. 1.

Rose said he was basing predicted support by Wagner of the attorney general on an "educated guess."

Wagner, several hours after Rose had made his statement, said he would make no decision until he had seen Kennedy.

65th Ord Victim

FORT ORD (UPI)—A private from Kaauli, Hawaii, was in serious condition at the Fort Ord Hospital today, the 65th victim of meningitis this year at the Army training center. Ten of the victims have died. Fourteen others are in the hospital with at least two more in serious condition. The latest victim was identified as Pvt. Allen L. Vierra, 21, of Kaauli.

Belli Sees Ruby

DALLAS (AP)—Melvin Belli paid a surprise visit to condemned slayer Jack Ruby in the Dallas County Jail late yesterday. Belli, the San Francisco lawyer who was chief defense attorney when Ruby was tried for the slaying of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, checked into a Fort Worth motel under an assumed name earlier. The visit in the Dallas County Jail lasted about 30 minutes. Belli refused to give details of the visit to newsmen.

LONDON (AP)—Hollywood actress Ruta Lee and her 85-year-old Lithuanian grandmother are on their way to the United States from Russia. Miss Lee said in London last night she thought it was her telephone call to the Kremlin that persuaded Soviet officials to allow her grandmother to leave Lithuania, part of Russia. "I have spent 10 years and thousands of dollars to get my grandmother out," she said.

City Readies For Invasion Of Beatles

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Operators of the San Francisco Hilton—faced with the awesome responsibility of housing the Beatles next week—decided yesterday to engage in a bit of preparation.

They invited four teen-age girls for hamburgers and milkshakes and had a discussion about doorknob-snatching, clothes-ripping and other things that seem to happen when the Beatles are around.

The girls, all top local executives of the Beatle fan club, promised that they and their followers would be—if not models of decorum—at least somewhat civilized.

'BB' GROUP

"We have formed the Bobbies," said fan club president Helena Rand, 17. "They'll have arm bands with 'BB' on them and they'll try to keep the kids orderly and happy."

The Beatles are due in San Francisco for a sellout concert at the Cow Palace next week.

The Hilton was only one of the places where plans were being laid with the precision of a military operation to handle the crowds of hysterical teen-agers who gather whenever the long-haired rock 'n' rollers appear.

AT AIRPORT

Undersheriff Wesley Pomeroy of San Mateo County, where San Francisco International Airport is located, said he expects 100,000 howling youngsters at the airport when the Beatles arrive Tuesday.

The airport management has started preparing a "Beatleville" area far from the main terminal. The Beatles will be escorted there immediately after their arrival so the fans can look at them and scream and faint to their hearts' content without disrupting airport operations.

At least, that's what officials hope.

Dedication Of History Center Set At Park

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (UPI) — Yosemite National Park will dedicate its Pioneer History Center Sept. 11 as part of Oldtimer's Day celebrations, Supt. John C. Preston announced today.

The center, located at Wawona near the south entrance to the park, consists of nine old buildings that played a part in Yosemite's history. Preston said the buildings were moved to Wawona when they were in danger of being destroyed. He said they have been furnished according to the period of their use, ranging from 1876 to 1915.

Satellite Shot

VANDENBERG AFB (UPI) — A secret satellite, possibly of the samos "Sky Spy" series, was launched yesterday by the Air Force. An Atlas Agena booster combination was used to send the satellite toward a polar orbit, according to a brief announcement. This is the same combination used for the Samos, whose sensitive cameras can relay detailed photos of wide areas.

No End Is In Sight On Liquor Shutdown

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The labor-management dispute that closed down eight major liquor distributors between San Francisco and Salinas was still in limbo today.

Yesterday's strike by the Teamsters Union that closed warehouses of Baruh Liquors, Inc., of San Francisco was still in effect with no end in sight. So, too, was the retaliatory closing of seven other distributors affiliated with the Distributors Assn.

About 1,500 persons, working in 25 warehouses, are affected by the closings.

The dispute did not immediately jeopardize the Bay Area's hard liquor supply.

Sellers who bolstered their stocks in last-minute buying said they could last about two weeks. Many said they would try to buy from the few local distributors not involved in the dispute.

The 550 salesmen struck after breakdown of lengthy contract talks between Teamsters Local 109 and the Distributors Assn. following an all-night session with a federal mediator. Details of the talks were not made public.

Meanwhile, beer distributors in Alameda and Contra Costa counties remained closed in a separate dispute with Teamster warehousemen and drivers.

Teamsters struck one firm, demanding a contract on the same terms as granted Teamster brewery workers. The 24 other distributors closed in retaliation.

Miller Gives Pep Talk To Top GOP

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican vice presidential nominee William E. Miller promised today he and Sen. Barry Goldwater "will give all the help we can" to every GOP candidate who seeks a hand from the national ticket.

And he said Republican senators, representatives and governors who want to serve effectively can do it best by backing the national ticket.

The New York congressman's forum was a meeting of Republican state chairmen and finance chiefs from the 50 states.

"I am not here today to preach harmony between any so-called factions of the Republican Party because I know it isn't necessary," Miller said in his prepared pep talk.

Then, both affirming Republican solidarity and taking a poke at President Lyndon B. Johnson, Miller said "Republicans all over the country who want to defeat Gentleman Bird in November" already have united.

The taunting reference to the president was a play on Mrs. Johnson's familiar nickname — Lady Bird — and their older daughter's name—Lynda Bird.

And the claim of Republican solidarity follows efforts by Goldwater and Miller to swing all Republicans who opposed the senator's nomination behind his drive for the White House.

SAN ANSELMO HOME GUTTED

4 Youths Stopped In 'Hot' Car

Four Terra Linda teen-agers were cited to the probation department yesterday on charges of joyriding with a vacationing family's automobile, and sheriff's deputies were looking for a fifth youth.

Deputies said three of the boys were stopped by a patrol car in Terra Linda at 12:45 p.m., and admitted, after some questioning, that they were riding in the car, owned by William J. Schoenfeld of 6 Wintergreen Terrace, Terra Linda, without his permission.

Further investigation showed that one of the youth's had been looking after the Schoenfeld home during the family's absence.

Charges against some of the boys may be expanded to include auto theft and burglary, deputies said, since they are thought to have broken into the home to reach the car keys and to take the vehicle from an adjoining garage.

Two of the youths told deputies they took the car to the Russian River area early Thursday.

BUDGET

jor increase and upgrading of the staff.

One major difference is in the eligibility requirements for children to enter the nursery school or day care center. Under the welfare control, it would be open to children in families with incomes below $6,000, with priority to those below $4,000.

Families on welfare would be included.

Under the schools office program, the cutoff level of income would be $4,000, but children of teachers, doctors and nurses would also be admitted as permitted under the education code.

The other major difference in the program would be that the welfare department would supply, in addition to teachers, a welfare worker and would emphasize consultation with parents. Counselling parents would be one of the main jobs of the director proposed for the unit.

The director would also work with the volunteer organization which now exists to improve the program and would help to train the school's staff.

According to Miss Presley, consultation on the program would be needed from the county schools office, but consultation on child care would also come from the welfare department.

The supervisors have scheduled most of Monday to consider the welfare budget of about 5.5 million dollars, with such programs as the work training program, community development in Marin City and child care taking the major amount of time. The discussion of the day care center is expected to come first.

A short report at the same time is expected on the effects of the new war on poverty legislation by the federal government will have on the county's welfare program.

Hamilton Colonel Featured Speaker

Col. Van H. Tanner of 224 South Oakwood Drive, Hamilton Air Force Base, will be a featured speaker on the program of the 33rd annual convention of Toastmasters International at Denver, Colo. on Aug. 27-29.

A member of Hamilton Defenders Toastmasters Club 3579 and past governor of District 36, Tanner will speak at the district officers orientation session Aug. 27.

Old House Survey Asked In Black Point

Black Point Improvement Club members heard an explanation of the county's plans to conduct a health and safety inspection of older structures in the area, at their regular meeting last night.

John R. Dawe, assistant county builder inspector, outlined the program. Residents had received letters concerning the inspections, and sought clarification, Improvement Club secretary Mrs. Marge Cresta said.

Five Hurt In Rash Of Marin Accidents

Five persons were injured last night in a series of traffic accidents extending from the Tiburon Peninsula to Inverness.

Patricia Brunello, a 17-year-old San Francisco student, suffered scrapes of the legs, arms and body, when her car overturned off Tiburon Boulevard, 150 feet west of Cecilia Avenue, at 11 p.m. yesterday.

The California Highway Patrol reported that Miss Brunello was thrown from her small foreign car when it overturned several times.

Miss Brunello was admitted to Marin General Hospital where she was reported in satisfactory condition today.

Two men suffered minor injuries when their car veered off Highway 101, just south of the California Park Bridge, rolled down an embankment and overturned at 2:30 a.m. today.

Richard Brooks, 28, of 15 Red Rock Way, just north of San Rafael, the driver, and Richard B. Pingatore, 29, of 141 Mabry Way, San Rafael, a passenger, walked from the scene to San Rafael General Hospital where they were treated.

Brooks told California Highway Patrol officers that he had apparently fallen asleep while driving.

The car went off the eastern edge of Highway 101, traveled 180 feet through gravel, over the embankment and came to rest upside down in bushes 12 feet below the embankment, the CHP reported.

Brooks, who suffered multiple sprains and scrapes, was examined at the hospital and released. Pingatore, who suffered a sprained shoulder and a mild concussion, was treated and released.

Two San Anselmo teen-agers suffered minor injuries when their jeep overturned on a private road, off Balboa Avenue, Inverness Park, about three-quarters of a mile west of Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, at 11:15 p.m. yesterday.

The jeep driven by Alexander J. Semans, 16, of 220 Canal Street, San Rafael, careened off the roadway on a curve slid into a ditch and rolled over coming to rest upright.

Injured were Paul Hanson, 17, of 24 Monterey Avenue, San Anselmo, who suffered a cut forehead, and Michael Starrett, 16, of 71 Park Drive, San Anselmo, who suffered scrapes of the back when he was thrown from the jeep. They were both treated by a private doctor and sent home.

Richard Walle, 14, of San Francisco suffered minor bruises and scrapes, when his bicycle collided with a car along Highway 101 in Sausalito at 8:22 a.m. today. He was treated at Marin General Hospital and released.

Two-County School Meeting Is Slated

A joint meeting of Marin and Sonoma County Committees on School District Organization to consider reorganization of Tomales Joint Union High School area will be held Aug. 24 at 8 p.m. at the Marin County Superintendent of Schools office in the Civic Center.

Committee members will also discuss possible plans for reorganization of the Laguna Joint, Lincoln and Union Joint school districts, according to Edwin L. Blackmore, Marin committee assistant secretary.

2 Hurt After Cars Slow For Road Work

Two persons were injured in a three-car collision along Highway 101, just south of the Lincoln Avenue undercrossing, San Rafael, as traffic slowed for maintenance crews at 11:30 a.m. yesterday.

William E. Linn, 50, of 256 Calle De La Selva, Ignacio, one of the drivers, suffered head injuries and was taken to San Rafael General Hospital where he was reported in satisfactory condition today.

Ursula Hofer, 40, of 245 Alameda De La Loma, Novato, his passenger who suffered severe headaches and dizziness, was admitted to the hospital for observation and reported in satisfactory condition today.

The California Highway Patrol reported that cars driven by T/Sgt. Kenneth R. Van Laar, 35, of Hamilton Air Force Base and Linn slowed with traffic passing California Division of Highway crews working on the center guard rail.

A car driven by Charles H. Waldron, 29, of Berkeley, didn't slow down in time and collided with the rear of Linn's car, the CHP said.

San Anselmo Boy, 9 Cut By Glass Door

A 9-year-old San Anselmo boy received stitches on his right hand and arm after he stuck them through a glass door while playing at home yesterday.

Kenneth Tisdale of 42 Humboldt Avenue, was admitted to Marin General Hospital at 1:50 p.m. yesterday. He was to be sent home today. The boy is son of Mrs. Beverly Tisdale.

Valley Assn. Meets

A meeting of the San Geronimo Valley Improvement Assn. to discuss sanitation and garbage problems will be held at 8 p.m. Monday in Lagunitas School.

Man-Made Rain Tests Plane Parts

BRECKSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Man-made raindrops that strike with the muzzle velocity of a .45-caliber pistol bullet are created by scientists here to test special rubber compounds for airplane de-icers and radome covers.

Inside a 35-foot tower at The B. F. Goodrich Company Research Center, a sprinkler showers a whirling helicopter blade at a 500-mile-an-hour rate. At this speed, plane and rain collide with shattering force, strong enough to pit aluminum and stainless steel and scar plastic canopies.

Rotation of the blade duplicates rain-erosion hazards met in actual flight, and samples of materials are attached to the blade to test their resistance to the punishment of the rain. Then they are examined to determine erosion damage.

Size of the drops and severity of the man-made showers are controlled by spray nozzles. Motor and blade are installed below ground as a safety measure and tests are run by remote control.

Lagunitas Man Hurts Back As Car Hits Deer

Anatal S. Angus, 54, of Box 147, Arroyo Road, Lagunitas, suffered a back injury when his car struck a deer and overturned off Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, three-quarters of a mile west of Meadow Road, at 2:35 a.m. today.

Angus told California Highway Patrol officers he saw two deer in the roadway and swerved to miss them, but hit one.

His car veered into an embankment, rolled over and came to rest on its side, the CHP reported.

Angus, who suffered a slight vertebrae fracture, arm and shoulder pains, was reported in satisfactory condition today at Marin General Hospital where he is under observation.

Honeymoon Suits Not For Newlyweds

NEW YORK (UPI) — Most honeymooners are no longer making the honeymoon suite in a hotel their first stop, according to a hotel executive.

"Honeymooners don't want to be branded as honeymooners," said Irwin H. Kramer, executive vice president of the Hotel Edison. "Occupying the honeymoon suite are couples marking fifth, 10th, 25th and 50th wedding anniversaries."

Average Man's Habits Include Lots Of Beer

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — Californians over the age of 15 annually consume 253 cans of beer, 15¼ fifths of wine and 13½ fifths of distilled spirits, according to Dr. Malcolm Merrill, state health director.

Since some don't drink at all, many drink much more than the average, he added.

Two Planes Missing

HALIFAX, N.S. (AP) — Two U.S. civilian aircraft with 12 persons aboard are reported missing on a 545-mile flight from Fort Chimo in Ungava Bay to Janis Lake, 125 miles north of Sept-Iles, Que.

Farmer Hurt When Pickup Hits Railing

A 45-year-old Atwater farmer suffered a cut forehead and possible shoulder injuries when his pickup swerved into a guard rail along East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near the West Gate of San Quentin Prison at 2:10 a.m. today.

The victim, Bromley I. Null Sr., was treated at Marin General Hospital and released.

Null told California Highway Patrol officers that he was rounding a curve when he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming car and hit the guard rail.

The CHP reported that 70 feet of guard rail was damaged. Michael R. Null, 14, a passenger, suffered a bruised forehead, but was not hospitalized.

Fairfax Man Booked After Fight

A 22-year-old Fairfax man was booked by San Rafael police today on charges of assault and battery after he allegedly beat a San Rafael man at a gas station last night.

The victim, George R. Saxberg Jr., 24, of 20 Roberts Avenue, was treated at San Rafael General Hospital for cuts, scratches and bruises on his neck and under his right eye, as well as a large bump on the head.

Booked was Roger William Catteyson of 7 Bothin Road, Fairfax. He also was charged with creating a disturbance.

Police said the beating occurred at the Standard Station at Fourth Street and Lincoln Avenue at 11:44 p.m. yesterday.

JFK Shrine In England

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The historic meadow at Runnymede, England, of which the British Government plans to set aside an acre for a memorial to the late President John F. Kennedy, has had previous American connections.

The 160-acre meadowland once was part of a large estate owned by an American-born woman, Lady Fairhaven. She died in 1939, leaving the historic grounds to the British Government. The Runnymede meadow now is held jointly by the British National Trust and the local county council.

Texans Complain Mr. Zip Is Degrading

The state's letter carriers association complained to the U.S. Post Office that the cartoon figure used to promote the "zip code" is "disrespectful and degrading" to the hard-working postman on the beat. Some Texas postmen disagreed, saying the wide-eyed and speedy character was "just a sprightly little figure."

Killed In Vietnam

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Two U.S. Army officers and two enlisted men were killed when a helicopter plunged to the ground and exploded yesterday near Kwangju, 165 miles south of Seoul.

Inmate Given Hero's Medal

A San Quentin Prison inmate has been awarded a medal for heroism as a result of his actions in a fire at Mendocino National Forest last Sunday.

Arthur A. Aceves, 24, who suffered second and third degree burns on 30 per cent of his body while trying to aid the foreman of his fire-fighting crew, was given the medal in the prison hospital by Warden Lawrence E. Wilson.

Donor was the Santa Rosa Press Democrat.

Aceves was "doing well" today, according to Robert C. Loriano, associate warden for classification and treatment.

Sailor Injured As Sports Car Rams Into Auto

A 22-year-old Navy man from Eureka suffered possible head injuries when his sports car rammed into a stopped car on the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge at 4:10 p.m. yesterday and he was hurled 45 feet through the air onto the pavement.

The victim, Petty Officer 2/c Quintin Millerbis, was treated at Marin General Hospital for an elbow injury and possible head injuries and transferred to Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco for observation.

The crash occurred after Louis Brown, 25, of Richmond had a blowout and stopped his car on the west end of the bridge, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Millerbis, traveling at about 55-60 miles an hour, apparently did not see the stopped car and crashed into it, the CHP reported. Millersbis' car sailed through the air and he was thrown out, officers reported.

Crusade President Slates Marin Talk

Oakland resident Nils Eklund, president of the United Bay Area Crusade, will speak at a luncheon Tuesday at noon at Peacock Golf and Country Club for Marin United Fund.

His topic will be "An Urgent Community Problem—the Future of the United Crusade." Bert Broemmel, Marin United Fund president, will preside at the luncheon to which 170 Marin business, and professional men are invited.

Rotary Club Donates $100 For TB War

San Rafael Rotary Club has donated $100 for the purchase of X-ray equipment to be used by Dr. Richard S. Hahn's Peace Corps-type project — "Alliance for Health" in Mexico.

The Belvedere doctor and his family left Marin County last month to set up battle lines in their private war on tuberculosis. He planned to use the family's Volkswagen bus as his office while educating, examining and treating Indians with his own funds and private contributions.

Charges Dropped

Charges by Oregon authorities against Robert Melford Kuhl, 54, of 1 Eden Lane, Larkspur, for larceny of a rental cement mixer have been dropped due to lack of evidence, Marin County Sheriff's office said today.

SINUOUS LOOK

Galanos Hugs Every Curve

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sexless," muttered the males. "Divine," murmured the females as James Galanos had the last word on what the moneyed miss will wear this winter.

OTHER American collections opened three months ago and the French ones recently, but the California designer protected himself from style plagiarism by waiting until the season was practically here before revealing his own designs.

HIS ONLY concessions to the trousers trend here and abroad are quilted Chinese brocade hostess jump suits with sleeveless winglike velvet coats over them.

As far as the topless fashion madness goes, Galanos conceded to bareness on the spine side of the body only.

A self-fabric bra was a part of the otherwise backless to the waist number, with gem dandies dangling from the back band.

BUT FROM the very first number — a black semi-fitted princess line with rounded button-detailed sleeves—it was obvious Thursday that architecture of the costume was more important to Galanos than the framework of the lady under it.

AMONG THE slim coat and suit styling details were pocket flaps, tiny lapels, welt seaming, side-wrapped and apron-pleated skirts, belts banded across the front, and some back belt slung so low you could swing on them.

FOR THE cocktail crowd, Galanos recommended starkly simple bias-cut wools or crepes with long sleeves and hem-flared skirts. For the discotheque enthusiasts the dresses were barer, with V-plunges, halter necks or shoestring straps uncovering pale raw bones.

IN THESE as well as the paisley chiffons with jewels on them the size of doorknobs, or the Grecia-draped or pleated silk numbers these gaunt girls appeared to be too fragile to journey the full stretch of gold carpeting under the hotel ballroom's massive chandeliers.

YET, AT another point they looked like rugged pioneers of the Old West in dark, long-sleeved, bias-cut wool dresses hemmed just above the ankle to reveal heavy stockings and T-strapped, square-heeled shoes, all the same dull color.

From the comments in the room it appears it will take some hardy fashion pioneers to put across this too-poor look in a mudless, air-conditioned 20th century.

Pink Ladies Win First Hour Awards

Illustrating the increased number of participants in the Marin General Hospital Pink Ladies program, a total of 52 emblems were awarded for 24 hours of service in the past two months, Mrs. Eugene F. Kelly, the hospital's director of volunteers, announced.

Eighteen Pink Ladies were awarded their 24-hour emblem in June, while 34 were honored in July. They include Frances Allen, Elaine Jackowski, and Nancy Gorrill, all of Mill Valley; Mrs. George Barson, Margie Merz, Peggy Merz, Libby Bernhard, Connie Carter, Christine Cole, Lynn Hoffman, Mrs. Jack Ryan, and Dorothy Soden, San Rafael.

Also Linda Bauman, Mrs. John Wolfersperger, and Muffie Mackey, Tiburon; Penny Burman, Mrs. Arnie Cooper, Poppy Eager, Karen Brainerd, Marylin Burns, Pamela Hornby, Betsey Klein, Susan Mellerup, Kathryn McNicoll, Kathy Schmitz and Lynn Schmitz, Kentfield.

Jerrie Gross, Dawn Lygren, and Sheila Parker, Terra Linda; Gloria Gutiarrez, Mrs. Ben Rosenthal, Marylin Cassou, Barbara Gregory, Greenbrae; Kathy Long, Kitty Sall, Mary Jean Taylor, Jo Anne Bertoli, Ellen Bundschu, and Pru Parker, San Anselmo.

Also Carol Morgan and Brenda Retke, Fairfax; Mrs. George E. Bloeser, Cathie Bush, Terry Horn, and Chris Schmidt, Corte Madera; Carol Erb, Sheila Malone, Julie Siple, and Sharon Sudlow, Larkspur; Mrs. Frank Manning, Forest Knolls; Mrs. Betty Newton, Ross, and Sue Scott, Novato.

DAUGHTERS OF CHARITY PLAN CHANGE OF HABITS IN FALL

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Hemlines up six inches. Waistlines slightly fitted. Narrower sleeves. Box pleated skirts.

No Dior creation, but a step toward modernization for 45,000 nuns of the Daughters of Charity of St. Vincent de Paul, who will change their habits in September.

The change will be the first in 114 years for this worldwide Roman Catholic community, located on five continents, in 65 countries and 52 provinces.

"We are an active order," said Sister Regina. "We needed something more practical—something trim, simple and suitable for all-weather service."

The tailored new dress has little link to the old floor-length habit. Only the blue-white colors remain the same.

The sleeves are narrow, the apron is gone and the waistline is slightly fitted. Drip-dry synthetic fabric replaces linen that had to be starched. The headdress is streamlined from a large coronet to a short bonnet covered by a blue coiffe. The collar is shorter. A box-pleated skirt replaces a bulky robe.

Singing Show To Help Child's Convalescence

BOSTON, Mass. (UPI) — To most persons visiting a hospital and hearing the voices of children singing "Ring-around-the-Rosie" might sound strange.

Not so to visitors at the Boston Floating Hospital for Infants and Children. Singing and playing are a regular part of the hospital's program of care for the whole child. Two adjoining rooms on the fifth floor of the hospital are set aside as playrooms where the patients play games and participate in a wide range of nursery-school-like activities.

Alterations On Fur Can Be Done By The Seamstress

By EUNICE FARMER

I have two man-made fur coats that need shortening. Can I do this myself or must I have it done professionally? Mrs. D.R.

Dear Mrs. D.R.:

Working with man-made fur is very much like working with any heavy fabric. It will sew beautifully with your machine, however you must try to avoid too much bulk at seams, etc.

Don't use more than 10 to 12 stitches per inch when machine stitching. You may have to catch-stitch the seams to your coat fabric to keep them open. The most important tip I can give you to keep the seams from showing, is to take a needle and pull the little hairs out of the seams on the right side. When this is done you won't see the seam.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

When trying to match the color in any of a vari-colored piece of fabric, or for a complete contrast for making a rope belt, buy wide hem-facing which is cut on the bias. The choice of colors is fantastic and since it is already cut on the bias, there is no sewing together of the bias ends of "do it yourself" fabrics, it's much cheaper, and you have no wasted scraps.

Anne Boecler, St. Louis 24, Mo. is this week's winner of a Tailor Trix Pressing Board for this suggestion.

Make a two-piece suit out of your girl's suit when it has become too short. Cut the suit just above the waist for the bra part. It is best to insert a small piece of elastic in a hem to keep it snug fitting. Also, turn a hem at the waist of the shorts and insert elastic. Not only will you save a few dollars now, but you will give your girl a big thrill with her first two-piece suit!

Please tell me once and for all how to tell the right side from the wrong side of material we buy? Mrs. R.Y.

Dear Mrs. R. Y.:

In most cases there is no set rule to go by. Wool is folded with the "right" side inside. Cottons, silks, and linens, are usually folded with the right side out. Today, with the many synthetic fabrics that are added to the true fibers, there is no definite rule to go by. It is best to have the sales girl tell you when you purchase your fabric, immediately mark it before you forget.

If you will examine the selvage of the fabric, it will usually look a little more finished on the right side. Actually, it often doesn't make too much difference which side you use, the important point to remember is that your entire garment must be made on the same side.

I always suggest that you mark a small "X" on the wrong side of each piece of your fabric before removing the printed pattern. In this way, you can be sure. It is also a good idea to mark the scraps before you put them away. You can save a lot of time later.

You can all get into this sewing act and give us some of your fresh new ideas. I thought the "sweat shirt" fad was over, but after spending some time at a large Eastern resort, I find they are more popular than ever. Please send me some of your original ideas (photos, if possible) for sweat shirt variations that can be used for high school and college girls.

I will give Tailor Trix Boards for the six best ideas. Send them today to Sew Simple, in care of the Independent-Journal.

PEP UP BASIC BLACK

Pep up your basic black dress with a pretty, feminine touch for fall! Make a separate detachable collar of silk organza. Instead of using white, which is always good, but not outstanding, make yours with the top layer of black silk organza and the under layer of white. This will give the collar an intriguing irridescent look and your dress will have a new look.

MRS. JAMES Heffernan is president of Our Lady of Loretto Parents' Guild in Novato. In Wednesday's Independent-Journal, she was pictured with the story of Mrs. Peter Nisich, president of Xi Kappa Psi Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

SAN JOSE is the home of newlywed Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Kulp (Marlene Gavello) who exchanged vows at St. Sebastian's Church in Kentfield. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Crottogini of Kentfield and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Kulp of Richmond. Lorelyn Youngclaus of San Anselmo was maid of honor at the wedding, which was followed by a reception in Corte Madera.

AUDITED PAID CIRCULATION ABC

One in a series of messages to advertisers

300 homes are one inch thick

In addition to length and width, a newspaper advertisement has a third dimension – thickness. Thickness is circulation, the number of advertisements printed and actually delivered.

You pay for an advertisement on the basis of length and width, but what you really buy is the opportunity to talk about your merchandise and service to a specified number of readers. Laid one upon another, a one inch stack of your advertisements in this newspaper equals 300 homes reached.

Thickness ... or circulation ... is the dimension that gives promise to your sales message, that it will reach potential customers. It is important for you to know whether this thickness is a promise or a fact.

The ABC insigne assures you that our circulation is measured by the highest standards in the advertising and publishing industry. It is the symbol of our membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

ABC is an independent auditing association whose sole purpose is to give accurate and factual circulation reports. ABC audits are trusted by national advertisers and advertising agencies. ABC can be trusted by you.

Our tell-all ABC report shows how much circulation we actually deliver, where these copies are distributed, how much readers pay, and other information you should know about the thickness of your advertising here – facts, without opinion, compiled from a physical audit of circulation records by trained ABC auditors.

When buying advertising, be sure to measure all three dimensions – length, width, and thickness.

Insist on the facts. Be ABC-sure!

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Hosting Tom Jones Party

By MOLLY MARIN

AN AUTHENTICALLY costumed "Tom Jones" party — with live chickens, ducks, bales of hay—will be hosted tonight by the Burton Vaupens at their Las Gamos Road home in San Rafael.

The Vaupen house and patio will take the form of an 18th Century English Inn and the bill of fare to be eaten only with the hands will be posted outside the "scullery."

LAFAYETTE, the French soldier and statesman will step out of history to visit the Squire's party, escorting a haute-coiffured French princess and dame de l'honeur to Marie Antoinette. Both will be costumed for the period.

Another of the costumed ladies dressed in a lace and velvet riding habit will arrive astride a stallion led by her escort garbed in the formal dress of a British military officer.

The 17 couples from Marin, San Francisco and the East Bay who will attend the party received their invitations attached to their front doors with a knife.

SPEAKING OF merrie England, Mrs. James Reynolds of Tiburon and her sister, Miss Sylvia Koontz of San Francisco, are spending a month there and in Scotland and Sweden. In Stockholm Sybil Reynolds will attend an international conference on early childhood education as delegate of the North Bay Chapter of the Northern California Nursery Assn. The pair will finish their trip with a visit to Oslo before returning home in September. Meantime Mr. Reynolds is remaining in Tiburon and will take the children, Kitty, Allison and Julie, on a camping trip.

VACATIONING ALSO in England has been Robert B. Liles of San Rafael. An architect, he enjoyed his first visit to London.

AN EXOTIC POLYNESIAN paradise will be the setting at the Sleepy Hollow home of the Jack Podestas tonight when they host a just-for-fun luau for 60 guests. An eight foot square platform over the pool will hold the musicians, and Tahitian singers and dancers will perform during the luau. Exotic flora of Polynesia, as well as tiki torches, war clubs and other South Sea paraphernalia will be used to set the scene.

Among the guests will be Sen. and Mrs. Jack McCarthy, the David Geoffrions, Thomas Guerins, Victor Scatenas, William Weissichs, John Reynoldses and Mrs. Emma Fulton, the hostess' mother.

THIRTY MOVIE and television personalities and their wives will arrive in Marin on Sept. 19 for the Marin Invitational Tournament of Stars to be held the next day at the Peacock Gap Country Club course.

Highlights of the event will be the "Celebrity Dinner Dance" at Dominic's Restaurant on Saturday night and of course the tournament which will include the celebrities and 90 amateur golfers. William McDevitt is tournament chairmen and the J. William Zimmermans of Greenbrae are chairmen of the hospitality committee. The committee also includes Mrs. Fred Enemark of San Rafael and Mrs. Henry Skinner of Ross.

THE D. E. HADDOCKS of Novato spent a few days at Yosemite Park and had some good luck trout fishing at Saddle Bag Lake in the high country. Mrs. Haddock spent a few days with her children Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tovinen, in Reno, and the Haddocks' grandson, Terence, returned to Marin with them for two weeks visit.

THE ERIC Bellingalls of Belvedere and their daughters, Christie and Leigh, are home from a three weeks tour south of the border. They visited LaPaz, Bahia de Palmas, Hacienda Cabo San Lucas and Todos Santos.

ENTERTAINMENTS in Marin include parties for Patricia Williams, who will become the bride of James Schiltz on Friday at Treasure Island Chapel. The couple will live in South Africa, where the bridegroom will be in business. Yesterday Patricia was honored at a luncheon by Mrs. Ralph C. Noah of Belvedere at Peacock Gap and the Arthur Collbrans and Dr. and Mrs. Paul Ramey, all of Belvedere, were hosts at dinner for her.

PARTIES ARE planned for another couple who will be married this month—Bonnie Chrysler and Richard Sims III, who will exchange vows Aug. 22 at St. John's Church in Ross, will be feted by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sims of Woodside on Thursday evening, and a Sept. 16 cocktail party is being planned to honor the newlyweds by the Richard Niswongers of Atherton.

TONIGHT NOVATANS Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Craig will be dinner hosts at Peacock Gap Country Club honoring Mr. and Mrs. Verner Anderson of Larkspur on their 25th wedding anniversary. Mrs. Craig is Mr. Anderson's sister. Guests will be family friends and relatives including the Anderson's daughters, Sandra and Arleen, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Anderson of San Anselmo.

MRS. DAN H. ANDERSON of Ignacio is spending some time at their cabin at Soda Springs with the children. . . . The Robert Douglasses of Novato are announcing the birth of a son, Scott Hamilton, born Aug. 3. Scott has a sister Diane, and a brother, Rob. The baby's grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Douglass of Postville, Iowa and Mrs. G. E. Mohlenbrink of Oakland.

Lynda J. Marks A Bride

The Rev. Robert Clapham was the officiating minister on Aug. 1 at the First Presbyterian Church in San Anselmo when Lynda J. Marks became the bride of Peter J. Politi of San Anselmo.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a floor length gown of white organza accented with lace and seed pearls.

Preceding the bride down the aisle in gowns of yellow chiffon were Mrs. Charles F. McDowell of Walnut Grove as matron of honor and bridesmaids, Margi Blenkle of San Rafael and the bridegroom's sister, Donna Politi of San Anselmo.

Terry Politi of San Anselmo was best man for his brother and ushers were Butch Baldi, of Santa Rosa and Edward McDowell of Walnut Grove.

A reception followed the ceremony at the Deer Park Villa in Fairfax.

The bride was graduated from Sir Francis Drake High School and is employed with Pacific Telephone. Michael, Bruce, Steven and Cricket Marks all of Eatontown are her brothers. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Burres of Eureka and Henry Nebel of Eatontown.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Lloyd Politi of San Anselmo, was also graduated from Drake High School and attended College of Marin and Santa Rosa Junior College. Mr. and Mrs. Frank McDowell of Sebastopol are his grandparents.

Fleet Reserve Women Elect

The new president of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Fleet Reserve Assn., Mrs. Arthur Poganski of Kentfield, has been a member of that organization for three years, serving as treasurer, secretary and publicity director.

MRS. ARTHUR POGANSKI

A resident of Marin with her husband and two daughters for 18 years, Mrs. Poganski has been leader in many community activities. With two daughters at one time on the Ann Cuneo synchronized swim team, Mrs. Poganski designed and made most of their costumes. She was also associated with the Ballet Aquacade for 10 years; she was a fund raising captain for the Cancer Society, and was on the Citizens Advisory Committee of the College of Marin.

Laureen Poganski, the youngest of her two daughters, is a student at the College of Marin and her other daughter is Mrs. James Kilpatrick.

WITH HER daughters participating in synchronized swimming meets for six years, Mrs. Poganski gained both experience and pleasure out of scoring for most of the contests.

It is the purpose of the Auxiliary of the Fleet Reserve Assn. to aid and assist in all matters pertaining to the welfare, social and patriotic work of the Fleet Reserve Assn., its members and their families, Mrs. Poganski said. The Auxiliary also aids mentally retarded children, sponsors a Santa Venetia Bluebird troup and works with the Senior Citizens of Marin.

ANY WIVES, mothers, sisters and daughters, not younger than 16, of members of the Fleet Reserve Assn. are eligible to join the Auxiliary.

ON THE Board of Directors are Mildred Mahaney, Candy Maniscalee, Doris Newland, Kay Comes and Marie Maley. Chaplain is Mildred Mahaney and sergeant at arms is Kay Comen.

Committee chairmen are Candy Maniscalce, welfare; Nancy Sullivan, membership; Edna Koehler and Doris Newland, activities; Kay Comes, Americanism; Candy Maniscalco, youth activities, and Mildred Mahaney, publicity.

Audit and finance is in charge of Kay Comes, Edna Koehler and Alice Burman.

What Should Be Future Of San Quentin Prison?

YOU CAN HEAR IT SAID that San Quentin Prison is obsolete and ought to be vacated.

The same number of inmates would be cared for far more effectively in several smaller prisons (or non-prison correctional institutions) in sparsely populated areas of the state.

Instead of confining men in close quarters in idleness, as is necessary at San Quentin, rehabilitation would be accelerated if the inmates had "more elbow room" and could be productively employed.

Many at San Quentin are productively employed in auto shop, furniture manufacture, shoe repair, textile production, printing and in many other pursuits. But too many are not employed. Too many are idle. Apparently it isn't feasible in San Quentin's restricted space to provide more occupational opportunities.

BUT IF THE PRISON were to close down here and move elsewhere, what would happen?

Would not Marin's economy suffer? Would not the impact of prison employees' salaries on our economy be lost? Would not the economic benefits of the prison's local purchases of goods and services be lost to Marin?

Perhaps not so much as one would guess.

There was a time when almost everybody employed at the prison lived (and spent their money) in Marin. This is no longer so. Not more than half of prison wages and salary earners now live in Marin. So at least half of this economic benefit is already gone.

Purchase of goods and services? Seems that some sort of central purchasing arrangement which enables the state to buy more economically in huge quantities sends most of the business elsewhere, outside Marin.

PERHAPS THE PRISON is no longer as economically important nor valuable to Marin as it once was.

As a matter of fact, processing inmate offenses through Marin courts costs us money. Some of it is recovered from reimbursement by the state, but not all.

And there is no tax revenue coming to our local governmental treasuries from state-owned San Quentin lands. So it is costing the taxpayers two ways: in loss of tax income and in the cost of prosecuting and trying inmate crimes.

In this connection, it seems that the inmate crime rate has climbed considerably in the recent past.

Can it be that more and more "bad actors" among inmates who resist rehabilitation are being transferred from other institutions to San Quentin? It looks that way.

This costs us too, for it means more inmate crimes and rising costs to prosecute them and try them in our Marin Superior courts.

HAS THE TIME COME for us to try to get rid of San Quentin?

Some people think so. One Grand Jury committee has heard from some who so believe.

We will probably all be hearing more about the question in time to come.

If San Quentin closed down, what would become of the land and buildings?

It is hard to imagine any practical use that could be made of most of the buildings. They would have to be razed. The land is hacked up like a quarry. It would not be especially attractive for highest class residential development.

Perhaps an industrial park could be developed there, broadening our tax base and providing more payrolls than does the prison.

High rise apartments?

It would be a good location for that type of development—from a developer's point of view. But we could expect all kinds of opposition, especially from Paradise Cove residents who most assuredly would object to skyscrapers on the skyline that is their principal view.

WHAT IS THE likelihood of San Quentin being closed down by the state?

Probably not much. Nor will it be in the foreseeable future—so long as our inmate population grows faster than our state can build correctional facilities to hold them.

If you consider this problem long enough and from enough angles you wind up with higher regard for the fellow who said we should spend our money finding out what really causes crime and how to cure it, rather than building more prisons to hold offenders.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS both to the residents of San Rafael's canal area and to the proprietors of Richmond - San Rafael Bridge bus service whose combined efforts to get bus service started in the canal district are laudable. The proprietors' guarantee requirements seem modest enough. And it is to the credit of canal residents that they are meeting the requirements, instead of just talking about it and waiting for someone else to do something. We hope the project is a success and that it is to the mutual benefit of both canal residents and bus service operators.

A BOUQUET to Marin Rod and Gun Club for taking the lead in the effort to clean up debris along Papermill Creek. In this connection, BOUQUETS are due, too, to the Hamilton Air Force Base Conservation Committee and to Explorer Scouts for their assistance in the undertaking.

BOUQUETS to San Geronimo Valley Clean-up and Beautification Committeemen for their attempts to "do something" about unsightly refuse and trash accumulation in their otherwise scenic area. We wish them success.

A BOUQUET to the State Division of Beaches and Parks for its announced intention to begin efforts to make Angel Island state park more useful to the public. In our opinion this move was long overdue.

BRICKBATS to the painters union for imposing a discriminatory anti-roller requirement on public building paint jobs in Marin County. And BRICKBATS, too, to the painting contractors who accepted and signed the infamous provision.

A MAN OF MANY TALENTS

A sign reading "Jack of All Trades" and "Master of Some" decorates an ancient vintage car and its owner drives around St. Louis looking for customers.

He offers services from house wiring and roofing to lessons in drawing, painting and sculpture, according to signs displayed all over his car.

If you wish to render a real service to others in their problems, small or large, you would do well, with God's help, to develop your own latent abilities.

Good will is necessary to be sure. But much more is required if you wish to make a lasting contribution.

You can leave the world better than you found it if, through competence, skill and hard work, you translate your high ideals into practical action.

"By charity serve one another."

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

No Compromise For Church Unity

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In the Aug. 10 issue of the I-J, in the article "Pope Offers To Intervene For Peace" it said he was "distressed" over many non-Catholic Christians considering the papacy a "stumbling block" to unity and that he could not "compromise with the integrity" of the Catholic faith in seeking unity.

When he is unwilling to "compromise with the integrity" of the Catholic faith, in seeking unity, why or how can he ask the non-Catholic Christians, or expect them to "compromise with the integrity" of their faith, or belief, in seeking unity? Why not have non-Catholic primacy?

I am sure, "all Christians" are satisfied with their faith in God, and the Bible, and will not "compromise with the integrity" of either, in seeking unity.

War On Poverty Is Good Fight

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I was amazed at the annoyance of reader Stackhouse of Sausalito on the War on Poverty program.

As a registered Republican, I feel qualified to point out a few facts to one so unenlightened.

As long as our government or capitalistic industries have something better to offer than Communism, we shall never have to fear the offers of Communists to a better way of life!

Of course if reader Stackhouse is a gambler and likes to buck the odds, maybe he can forstall taxes the rest of his life provide his life is short enough.

But for every dollar spent on an anti-poverty bill he will find he has spent a dollar on the war on Communism.

The 'have nots" are a fertile seed bed for Communism, and being responsible for our brothers' well being is only protecting our own well being from Communism.

All I can add to this, is if we all wait long enough, we can pay in blood instead of dollars!

Please, no comment from Birchers—my ancestors fought and bled in the war with the British too.

Good Article, But Incorrect

Editor, Independent-Journal:

I am writing in regard to Richard F. Newcomb's very interesting article about the various summer residences of former presidents, which was in the Aug. 1 Independent-Journal.

In regard to former President Woodrow Wilson's summer residence at Shadow Lawn, I would like to make a slight correction as Mr. Wilson never had any connection with Sea Girt which is at least 10 miles south of Long Branch.

The Shadow Lawn estate is situated in West Bend, Long Branch, and is now Monmouth College. I was living in Asbury Park, N. J., at the time and have often seen it and can assure you it was used as residences and offices.

I think the mistake came from West End being a division of Long Branch as Marinwood is of San Rafael.

Clausen Transit Bill Vote Hit

Editor, Independent-Journal:

In explaining why he voted against the rapid transit bill, Congressman Don Clausen stated that "one of the most serious — if not the most serious—problems now before the federal government is an unbalanced budget."

Mr. Clausen is more terrified about the national debt than he is concerned about human values.

I submit that any of the following is more pressing than an unbalanced budget:

Expansion of educational facilities and staffs for a rapidly growing population; lessening world tensions to move us further from the hazards of nuclear war; jobs and training for those displaced by automation; equal rights for all our citizens.

There are, of course, many others. But they all primarily concern people, not money. Mr. Clausen deserted the conservative Republican-Southern Democratic coalition to vote for the anti-poverty bill. Is it only during election months that he remembers people?

MARY THURBER
Mill Valley

(If you believed a continuing unbalanced budget was a threat to the continuance of the effective existence of our government, as does Congressman Clausen, then you unquestionably would relate the need for balancing of the budget to meeting human needs. Anybody who thinks Clausen is NOT concerned about people, just doesn't know Clausen.—Editor)

Johnson, Goldwater Say The Same Thing

Editor, Independent-Journal:

President Johnson said at his recent news conference, "In the preservation of law and order there can be no compromise—just as there can be no compromise in securing equal and exact justice for all Americans."

Senator Goldwater said earlier, "Moderation in the pursuit of justice is no virtue." Exchange "compromise" and "moderation" in these remarks, and we see that they both say the same thing. The president's turn of phrase seems bungling only because the presidential challenger had already put it eloquently in fewer words.

Our emminently fair reporters and commentators of press, radio and television have refrained from dogging Lyndonbird Johnson around the rose garden, seeking to know what he meant, begging him to define "compromise".

How can two men say essentially the same thing and get such different reactions? Easy. What's sauce for the goose is not sauce for the gander when it's Goldwater's gander and Johnson's goose.

Lack Of Crises May Contribute To Attention To 'Clear Choice'

WASHINGTON (AP) — This year's election campaign — including the candidates and the issues—reflects the peculiar period in which Americans are living. There has been nothing like it for 35 years.

If this was a time of crisis or peril for the United States, the energies and even the hostilities of Americans would be directed not inward among themselves but outward toward the common, foreign foe.

INTERNAL DIFFERENCES would be submerged.

Even if this was a time of depression there would be a common cry and search for new solutions and new programs to save the nation from disaster. The people would be wrapped in a common garment of uncertainty.

But this is not that kind of time. Compared with years gone by this is a prosperous and tranquil period. Because it is, Americans now have the luxury of time for self-examination, self-criticism and internal hostilities.

THERE HAS BEEN no such time since before the 1929 market crash. Then came the years of depression, despair and fright, the new programs of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and the gratitude for his leadership as expressed in the 1936 election which gave him every state but two.

Before the depression was over, and before Roosevelt's third election, the United States had moved into the anxiety and the preparations of the years just before World War II. Then there were the war years.

AFTER THEM — the years of reconversion to peace, the stunning realization that the nation had only moved from a hot war to a cold one, the repeated crises created by communism, the Marshall Plan, the Berlin blockade, the Communist takeover in China, the formation of NATO, the Korean war, the nuclear race with the Soviet Union and the agony of internal suspicion in the McCarthy era.

The years that follow, the years of President Dwight D. Eisenhower, were not tranquil. These were the years of the missile race, of the probings of Nikita Khrushchev, of new nations emerging. All of them were uneasy years.

They did not become easier when President John F. Kennedy took over. Khrushchev tried him out, too, with the Berlin wall, nuclear testing, missiles in Cuba. It was only after Kennedy forced a showdown with him in Cuba that some tranquility began.

THIS COINCIDED with the disintegration of unity in the Communist world. The Reds turned their energies and hostilities inwards, criticizing one another. It was then that a comparatively peaceful period for this country began.

True, there is still Castro's communism in Cuba and the war in Vietnam is going anything but well. But neither directly menaces the safety of the United States, which at last is beginning to feel secure behind an armed strength greater than anything the Communist world can muster.

NOW, WITH CRISIS absent and tension eased and the country fairly prosperous, Americans have more time to examine themselves, criticize themselves, express their discontent with themselves.

President Lyndon B. Johnson in a very real sense is the custodian of the programs, at home and abroad, built up since 1929 and he is intent on adding new ones, particularly in the social welfare field.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, the Republican nominee, represents the forces which have long been discontented with those programs, particularly the enormously enlarged role of the federal government in life of the nation over these past 35 years.

Much of the campaign may be concentrated in that area.

But it is only because the country is now rich, and at last tranquil, if only temporarily, that those who share and oppose Goldwater's view of America and the world have a chance to express their feelings.

BARKER ON CHINA

Chinese Tradition Hit By Birth Control Need

By G. A. BARKER

PEOPLE WHO KNOW little else about China, know it has a population of around 700 million people. What many people do not know is that only about one-sixth of China's land is suitable for farming. A victim of a treacherous geography of crisscrossing mountains and arid deserts, agriculture is largely confined to the river valleys and coastal plains. Periodic droughts and floods compound the problem of producing enough food to feed her people.

Birth control would seem to be the only answer. During the years since 1949, when China came under the control of the Communists, the government has followed an erratic course in this regard, first encouraging, then belittling and now again encouraging the people to practice family planning.

ONE REASON for the hesitations and back-tracking on this all-important issue is to be found in the traditional Chinese belief that one should have many sons to care for him in his old age. This oldest form of "social security" is deeply ingrained in the Chinese character. As a family policy, it works out quite nicely; but as a national policy, it is a disaster.

Prior to the "great leap forward" in 1958, the Communists tried to undermine this tightly-knit family system and subordinate the family to the state, and though they met with a great deal of peasant resistance, they embarked on a full-scale birth control propaganda campaign, using posters, magazines and newspapers to popularize the idea and explain methods.

The Ministry for Public Health organized birth control exhibitions and recommended a formula for a simple home-made paste for the use of women. Former restrictions on abortions were abolished.

THEN WHEN THE "great leap" was at its height and a heady euphoria swept the official ranks, the anguish about population growth was pushed aside. Propaganda for birth control ceased. Instead, it was stated that in a socialist country the technological advance was rapid and "the problem of population does not exist." Dissenters from this view were dubbed "neo-Malthusians" and subjected to ridicule.

Because the Reds have issued no population statistics since the year of the "great leap," we can assume that in the famine winter of '60-'61 the population suffered quite a setback. Some guesses run as high as 20 per cent, but more dependable sources suggest five per cent. But we can only guess. One thing is certain, however. The widespread malnutrition during these years greatly reduced the number of pregnancies.

NOW THE REDS are back at family planning, urging young men and women not to marry early, and propagandizing for birth control of all kinds—from the pill on down. After three children, people are urged to consider sterilization. Right now the campaign is going full force. Maybe it will continue this time. But you will never convince a Chinese that he shouldn't have at least two sons.

WHERE DEMOS WILL NOMINATE

Here's Preview Look At Convention City

By TOM SEPPY

ATLANTIC CITY (AP)—Business meetings, cocktail parties and banquet speakers are an integral part of Atlantic City, which also boasts it is the home of the Boardwalk, salt water taffy, jitney buses and the Miss America Pageant.

Conventions are a 60-million-dollar a year business here, but this year for the first time it will be host to a national political party convention. The Democrats will choose their presidential ticket in the great Convention Hall, right on the beach, in the week beginning Aug. 23.

The resort boasts that it has more than 30,000 hotel and motel rooms, many of them on the oceanfront. It also claims that 12,800 rooms are within walking distance of Convention Hall.

In addition to the hotel dining rooms, there are 400 restaurants, offering dishes ranging from pizza to steaks to steamed clams, corned beef and charcoal broiled hot dogs.

A good portion of the 500 conventions held here annually take place in Convention Hall, which has staged such events as track meets, prize fights, dog racing, ice hockey, horse shows, horse racing, bowling, polo, baseball, football and jousting.

The longest home run ever hit by Babe Ruth or any other baseball player would not go from one end of the hall to the other.

Built in 1929 at a cost of 15 million dollars, the hall covers seven acres and can seat 35,000 persons in the main auditorium alone. The entire population of Atlantic City — 60,000 — can be seated in the building with room to spare.

There are no columns in the main hall, the roof being supported by the largest trusses in the world. In fact, they are so large that a sliding joint is built around the room to allow a three-inch space for expansion and construction with changes in temperatures.

Geographically, Atlantic City is located on Absecon Island, once a collection of sand dunes about eight miles long and slightly more than a mile across at its widest point, about six miles off the New Jersey mainland. Also on the island are the residential communities of Ventnor, Margate and Longport.

Atlantic City now entertains the greatest number of visitors in its history. Estimates based on hotel and traffic counts indicate the figure is about 16 million annually.

The city has cooling ocean breezes, 72 degree temperatures and white sandy beach.

It is unique, among other things, for its world famous Boardwalk, a seven-mile-long wooden promenade used by millions annually for strolling, sightseeing in rolling chairs and bicycling.

The Boardwalk, between the beach and the hotels, is the center of Atlantic City social and evening life.

Shops lining the promenade offer Paris gowns, rare antique furniture, expensive rugs, jewelry, thrifty gifts, hot dogs, soft drinks and cheap novelties.

Each year in September, the Boardwalk is also the scene of the first official event of the "Miss America" pageant, oldest of all bathing beauty contests. Candidates for the title ride down the famed boards in a glittering night parade to open pageant week.

A week after the Democrats leave town, "Miss America" will be crowned almost on the very spot in Convention Hall where President Lyndon B. Johnson accepts the Democratic nomination.

READING'S 'HOLY WAR' IS AGAINST LOOK-SEE

Rafferty Is Hero Of The Hour As he Comes Out For Phonics

By MYRON FEINSILBER

NEW YORK (UPI)—If the lovers of the English language who gathered here the other day were not gentle people, they might have stormed Columbia University's Teacher's College. They were that angry.

But, confident of ultimate victory anyway, they limited themselves to standing up and clapping when Dr. Max Rafferty, the hour's hero, came out four-square for the phonics system of teaching children to read.

An outsider to the 30-years' war between the phonics people and their opponents, the look-say people, has to be surprised by the intensity of feeling this debate arouses.

Look-say came out of teachers' college about 30 years ago. It is now the prevalent system of teaching reading, particularly in big city school systems.

Look-say teaches children to read by memorizing whole words, trying to get a mental picture of how they look.

The supporters of phonics believe the proper way to teach reading is to teach the alphabet, then the sounds of the letters in words. If you're over 35, that probably is the way you learned to read.

The Reading Reform Foundation (RRF) and its 300 members who gathered here in an annual convention believe, with a fervor that raises eyebrows, that phonics is the proper way to teach reading.

They say inability to read leads to academic failure, withdrawal from school, joblessness and lawlessness.

Rafferty, the chief speaker at the convention early this month, is the superintendent of public instruction and director of education in California, one of the few states which popularly elect their education chiefs. He won his office by campaigning as a traditionalist against a progressive.

In his speech, he scorned look-say. He called it a throwback to the hieroglyphics of the ancient Egyptians.

Under look-say, he said, the teacher points to the word "monkey," then asks her children to close their eyes and remember how the word looks. Then they "draw a picture of the word," he said.

The trouble is, said Rafferty, the child "will never, in a thousand years, learn how to spell worth a plugged nickel," but, far worse, will confuse words which look alike.

He said children will read "them" for "then" and "sock" for "sack" and "red" for "fed" because they've been taught only to recognize the shapes of words, not their letters.

The look-say backers argue, just as vigorously, that English isn't a phonetic language. Spanish is; each letter has only one sound. But it is difficult for a child to figure out the word "rough" from its spelling. "Where" doesn't conform to any rule and a child's first encounter with many words, like "meringue" or "theory," is likely to be baffling.

Until the youngster learns a lot of rules, he can't read. By the time he learns them, he might be discouraged forever, the look-say backers argue.

Without the rules, a child would read the word "higher" as "hig-her." He must first learn that each vowel has five or six pronunciations, depending upon the letters that surround it. And every rule has its confusing exceptions.

Consequently, about 30 years ago, education theoriticians, chiefly at teachers' college here, invented look-say.

They said it was particularly useful in teaching culturally deprived children from homes where mother is not likely to teach her children the ABC's.

Research has been going on ever since. Both sides find statistics to support their positions.

Look-say was installed in most school systems. That event, says Watson Washburn, the founder of the Reading Reform Foundation, was "the greatest blow to education since the fall of the Roman Empire."

Washburn, 70, a New York lawyer who was once a tennis star, founded the RRF "when I discovered my grandnieces and grandnephews, attending the finest private schools in New York City, simply couldn't read."

About the same time, Rudolf Flesch published "Why Johnny Can't Read," a book which denounces look-say and endorses phonics. It was a bestseller for months, indicating a deep unhappiness on the part of parents with the progress their children were making with reading.

Washburn said the huge sale of the book convinced him it would be possible "for citizens to buck the educational hierarchy which had foisted this nonsense upon our schools."

The foundation claims it now has convinced one-quarter of the nation's schools to switch back to phonics.

DR. MAX RAFFERTY
Children reading 'pap'

'And Just What Do Kids Read?'

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Max Rafferty says most school children are given "pap" to read in school and their parents aren't aware of it.

In a recent speech before the Reading Reform Foundation here, he advocated this experiment to find out:

"Get sixth grade Johnny in off the Little League diamond for a few minutes. Stand him in front of you, with his soiled sneakers and his torn T-shirt.

"Ask him to tell you something about Charlemagne. Get him to give you the background of old Hannibal.

"Ask him who crossed the Delaware, and what he did when he reached the other side.

"You're going to be mighty, mighty interested in Johnny's answers . . .

"But don't stop here. Ask the same questions of the first eighth grader you come across. See for yourself what our junior high schools are teaching. Last of all, ask an average graduating senior in high school.

"And when you recover from the shock, don't blame the youngsters. Or their teachers. Blame yourself—for permitting this sort of quasi-illiteracy to flourish unchecked in your own tax-supported schools."

Vocational School Aid Is Increased

By ERWIN KNOLL
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — Massive brick monuments to public indifference and official neglect stand in the deteriorating downtown cores of many of the nation's larger cities. They go by the name of vocational high schools.

Long stigmatized as "dumping grounds" for the academically unfit, long operated as custodial institutions for future dropouts, the vocational schools are at last starting to receive some attention as potentially effective training centers.

When the Soviet Union launched its first Sputnik in the fall of 1957, Americans suddenly became very school-conscious. But the new national concern with excellence was focused almost exclusively on that 20 per cent of the school population that goes on to college.

It took a later crisis—or rather a series of crises—to turn attention to the long-forgotten vocational schools. Reacting to the cumulative effects of high unemployment, automation and the civil rights revolution, Congress last winter voted to increase more than fourfold the federal investment in vocational education.

Under the new vocational education act, which is about to be implemented by its first appropriation, federal aid for vocational schools will increase from some 57 million dollars a year to an additional 731 million dollars over the next four years.

These funds are to be matched by state expenditures for new vocational education programs and facilities. Even more important than the money, many educators believe, is the opportunity provided for creation of more flexible training efforts than have existed in the past.

"Many of these schools," U.S. Commissioner of Education Francis Keppel observed recently, "have been remote from the mainstream of modern technology, training young people for vocations already becoming extinct."

Keppel is among those who have been sharply critical of educators — and of businessmen — for neglecting the vocational schools. He believes that the new federal aid program signalizes an awakening to the value of sound vocational and technical training.

Federal funds, Keppel has told school administrators, "will go a long way only if the states and communities use them as an impetus to stimulate a far greater output of funds and energy on their own part. In the long run, we will accomplish little in vocational and technical education if we merely repeat the patterns of the past."

The new infusion of federal funds is expected to bring about a basic reorientation in vocational curricula—from the job needs of a generation ago to those of today and perhaps tomorrow. But the most forward-looking critics are suggesting that even this will not suffice.

The crucial element in effective vocational training, they insist, is preparation for continuing industrial change.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING—This is a scene from a woodwork class at Drake High School in Marin County. Attention in the U.S. has lately turned toward classes such as these and to vocational training high schools.

Behind The News

A Weekly Page Of Background Information

Governor Faces Task Of Appointing Judges

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown has the pleasant, if hectic, prospect next month of appointing up to 34 deserving attorneys or present judges to new judgeships.

The prospect is pleasant because they are good paying posts, plus having a lot of prestige. Salaries range from $23,000 for a municipal judge on up to $32,000 on the state supreme court.

But the prospect is hectic because governors have found judgeships to be the most sought-after jobs in the state.

Governor Brown, as well as most recent governors before him, have complained in a mild way that there always are too many takers for each job.

They say they get more letters and pressures on judicial appointments than all the other appointments put together.

The main reason there will be so many openings is a provision of the law which expires on Sept. 18. This provision provides that, if a judge retires when he reaches the age of 70 he can draw up to 75 per cent of his salary in retirement benefits if he has 20 years or more of service, and up to 65 per cent if he has less than 20 years.

The retirement inducement was enacted in 1959 but extended for five years. This provision does not, as one judge claimed, badger judges into retiring when they turn 70. But it certainly makes it worthwhile for them to do so.

Expiration of the retirement provision interestingly comes only a few weeks after a substantial salary increase for judges takes effect. The 1964 legislature approved a judges' salary bill and it becomes effective on Aug. 22.

At present municipal judges receive $16,000 to $18,000 depending on the size of the city but all will be paid $23,000 under the new raise.

Superior judges are paid $18,000 or $20,000, depending on the size of county, but all will receive $25,000 when the salary increase takes effect.

Other increases include: justices of the district courts of appeal, $24,000 to $30,000; associate justices of the state supreme court, $26,000 to $32,000; and chief justice of the supreme court, $28,000 to $34,000.

Thus it is possible for a municipal judge to receive up to $17,250 in retirement benefits and a superior judge up to $18,750 a year in benefits.

This could be more than the judge receives at present or, if they come from larger cities or counties, nearly as much as they are paid while on the bench.

Thus the incentive to retire is strong.

The state controller's office, which administers the judges' retirement system, said 19 judges definitely will retire in September and another 15 are probable candidates for retirement. There may be more.

In the case of the superior judgeships, many of them probably will be filled by elevation of municipal judges.

This will give the governor even more appointments, filling the vacancies on municipal courts.

JUDGESHIPS CONSIDERED FOR MARIN

One judicial appointment, and possibly two, are being considered in Marin by Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

A fourth Marin Superior Court was created during the last session of the Legislature. If this position is filled by one of the three Marin Municipal Court judges, then a second appointment will have to be made on the municipal bench to fill the post of the man who is promoted.

If an "outside" attorney (a man not currently serving on the Marin bench) is appointed, then only one appointment will be forthcoming.

Here are the possibilities mentioned thus far:

San Rafael attorney Samuel W. Gardiner, faithful Democratic Party leader, has long aspired to the bench. He is definitely under consideration for the new superior court bench.

So are the three municipal judges. In order of seniority, they are: Harold J. Haley, Leonard A. Thomas, and Joseph G. Wilson. Judge Haley is a Republican; the other two Democrats.

If one of the municipal judges is elevated, then some younger attorney will probably be named to municipal court. Among those mentioned most prominently are Peter Allen Smith, public defender and chairman of the Marin Democratic Central Committee; and Judge David R. Baty of the Northwest Judicial District.

This Week In The World

Cyprus Top News Of Week

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Bombs fell on Cyprus and those ancient antagonists, Greece and Turkey, stood at war's brink when the week opened. Then they pulled back.

At home, the New York Yankees changed hands, the Republicans made peace and the adjournment-eager Congress found itself snared on the prickly issue of legislative reapportionment.

It was a crisis Sunday. Turkish jets dropped bombs, napalm and rockets on Greek villages on Cyprus and Turkish warships steamed off the island's coast. Invasion seemed imminent. The bombing raid killed 300 persons.

The chocolate candy town of Hershey, Pa., was the site of peace talks among the Republicans. Barry Goldwater, the GOP presidential candidate, met with most of the 16 Republican governors and appeared to have been successful in patching over differences between himself and party moderates.

Said former President Dwight D. Eisenhower of his party's candidates: "Any uncertainties I may have felt as to the fitness, adequacy and quality of the political program they will offer to the United States in the 1964 campaign have been resolved."

Goldwater softened his stand on several issues, although he denied his remarks were "conciliatory."

The Columbia Broadcasting System agreed to pay Dan Topping and Del Webb 11.2 million dollars in cash for an 80 per cent interest in the New York Yankees.

The sale was approved by the management of eight American League clubs but drew vigorous dissents from the owners of the Chicago White Sox and the Kansas City Athletics—and from some influential congressmen.

"Baseball has lost its antitrust exemption," said Rep. Henry S. Reuss of Wisconsin. Three senators spoke of an investigation.

Why did they sell?, the fans asked.

"This was too much money to walk away from, especially when we could continue to operate the club," said Webb.

Congress was more deeply embroiled in the issue of reapportionment. Earlier this year, the United States Supreme Court ruled that both houses of state legislatures must be apportioned by population rather than geographic considerations.

Sen. Everitt M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) offered a rider to the foreign aid bill which would delay the effective date of the court's decision. This would buy enough time for passage of a constitutional amendment stripping the Supreme Court of authority to rule on apportionment cases.

It was felt that such a constitutional amendment would find a welcome in state legislatures where the issue for rural legislators would be nothing less than their own survival.

Conservative Or Liberal? Pope Is Still An Enigma

By LOUIS CASSELS
U.P. International

Pope Paul VI is proving to be very hard to characterize

Is he a progressive or a conservative?

Is he committed to reform and reunion, like Pope John XXIII? Or is he preoccupied with the problems of Italian politics and international diplomacy, like Pope Pius XII?

When Paul VI ascended the papal throne last June, he was regarded as the chosen heir of John XXIII. In fact, it was widely predicted that he would be even more progessive, and even more devoted to the cause of Christian unity, than his predecessor.

This prediction seemed to be amply justified by his record. As Cardinal Montini, he had been a leader of the progressive forces in the first session of the Vatican Ecumenical Council.

The first widespread questions about the new Pope's course arose during the Council's second session last fall. Pope Paul declined to support the progressives in their attempt to get an immediate vote on a declaration of favor of religious liberty and a statement exculpating the Jewish people of the crucifixation of Christ.

Council progressives also were disappointed by what they regarded as the Pope's failure to throw his full weight behind a document spelling out the so-called "doctrine of collegiality," which holds that all bishops share with the Pope in the exercise of supreme authority in the church.

Reports sped through the council that conservative leaders of the Roman Curia had succeeded in persuading the Pope that Italy was on the brink of going Communist, and that he could avert this disaster only by de-emphasizing the idea that the Catholic Church needed reforming.

Specifically, the conservatives were said to have convinced Paul VI that a strong reaffirmation of papal authority was needed to bolster the right wing parties in Italy, and that this necessity was so urgent that other considerations, such as Christian reunion, must be sacrificed to it, at least for the time being.

These reports have never been confirmed, and many Vatican observers have always felt that they were gross exaggerations, at best. But they are likely to be revived by Pope Paul's first encyclical, which was issued this week.

A large portion of the 12,000-word encyclical was devoted to a blistering denunciation of communism. It was clearly intended to strengthen anti-communist parties in Italy, and to close the "opening to the left" attributed to John XXIII.

The encyclical also laid heavy stress on papal supremacy as an essential concept which the Catholic Church can never compromise for the sake of Christian unity.

By adding fact to rumor, and mixing in a dash of speculation, it would be quite possible to arrive at the conclusion that Pope Paul has gone over to the conservative side and is no longer bent on carrying out the program of John XXIII. This conclusion could be buttressed by recalling that he was on early protege of Pope Pius XII, under whom he served as Vatican secretary of state, and that he has always resembled the austere Pius more than the warm and outgoing "Papa John."

But this conclusion would not necessarily be true. For there are other facts which need to be considered.

One is the agenda for the third session of the Vatican Council beginning Sept. 14. It is headed by the "collegality" document — and those who have read it, in the form it will be voted upon, say that it is as forthright as any progressive could desire. Close behind it on the agenda are declarations on religious liberty and the Jews.

Another fact which needs to be taken into account is the Pope's continuing personal effort to create warmer relations with the "separated brethren" of protestantism and eastern orthodoxy—an effort symbolized by his meeting with Orthodox Patriarch Athenagoras I in Jerusalem last January.

One set of facts seems to contradict the other. Perhaps the most judicious conclusion that can be reached at this point is that it is too early in his pontificate to pin any kind of label on the brilliant, complex man who is Paul VI.

'CLOSER TO GOD' — Perched on a nearly unclimbable mountain above the small town of Kalambaka in Thessaly, Greece, are the once-renowned but now almost abandoned Monasteries of Meteora. The buildings, dwarfed atop the rocky monolith at left, were built on high because the Greeks felt they would thus be "closer to God," as well as for defensive reasons during the war-torn 14th Century.

Inverness Church To Hold Annual Art Show

The sixth annual Liturgical Art Show at St. Colomba's Episcopal Church, Inverness, will open for the three day run Friday.

For the first time, a professional art gallery has joined the church's St. Mary's Altar Guild in sponsoring the event. Torrance Gallery in San Anselmo is collecting paintings and other works of art used in worship or having other religious significance.

The exhibit will be open from 2 to 5 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Evensong will be offered in the church each day at 4:30 p.m.

The show, which helps the guild raise funds, will also provide exhibit space for Marin artists wishing to show their religious works. Any artist interested in submitting work should call on Torrance Gallery.

The altar guild will provide vestments to be displayed as background for other works of art. Included will be a new, green vestment just completed by the guild under the direction of Mrs. Francis W. Read. It is made of silk brocade purchased through the Diocesan Altar Guild.

Other exhibits include "The Way of the Cross," a painting by an unknown artist from Antwerp; icons by Vasileos Kapousouz of Marin Countum econographer for the new Holy Trinity Greek Church in San Francisco and two Triptychs: Christ Enthroned and the Theotokos.

Giant Lady Of Fatima Statue Costs $50,000

RUSSELS POINT, Ohio (AP)—A 19½-foot statue of Our Lady of Fatima, largest of its kind in the world, is being erected in a 42-foot shrine along Indian Lake beside the harbor here. It is to be dedicated to the discouragement of profanity and prevention of World War III.

George B. Quatman, 74, president of the 157-exchange Telephone Service of Ohio who also is restoring some religious sites in Turkey, is financing the project. The statue was made in Miami at a reported cost of $50,000.

Seminary Student New Minister Of Vallejo Chapel

Jack M. Shelby, student at Golden Gate Seminary in Mill Valley, began his duties last Sunday as minister of the Glen Cove Chapel in Vallejo.

His picture appeared in the current issue of "The California Southern Baptist," announcing his new post.

Shelby is working toward his bachelor of divinity degree. Prior to his Vallejo assignment, Shelby served as pastor of the Murphys Baptist Mission in the Mother Lode, and in two churches in his native Illinois, as well as music and youth directorships in Illinois and California.

His wife is evening supervisor of nurses at Ross General Hospital. The Shelbys hope to enter foreign missionary service.

Ex-Novato Worker Goes To East Bay

Darrell Lee Adcock, former minister of music at the First Baptist Church of Novato, has become associate minister of the Pittsburg (Contra Costa County) Baptist Church.

Vacation School At Mill Valley Church Aug. 17-28

Vacation Bible School will be held at Peace Lutheran Church, Tennessee Valley Road, Mill Valley, beginning Aug. 17 and continuing through Aug. 28.

School will be in session from 9:30 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. Mondays through Fridays.

The Rev. Herman Grunau, who was installed as assistant pastor of Peace Church on July 26, will conduct devotions at 9:30 each morning.

Teachers have been preparing programs for all ages from the four-year-old nursery set and five and six-year-old kindergartners to first to eighth grades.

Music will be provided by Mrs. John Wilbert, and lunch will be served during the morning by the kitchen committee. Teen-agers will be in charge of playground direction and the showing of films.

Anyone wishing further information may call the superintendent of the school, Mrs. Leland Rosevear of Mill Valley.

Missionary Will Talk In Larkspur

A woman missionary to French Equatorial Africa will speak at Sunday school and morning worship service of the Calvary Baptist Church in Larkspur.

Mrs. Dallas Washer will speak in the Sunday School at 9:45 a.m. and at the 11 a.m. service, according to Rev. Michael Barkowska, pastor.

Presbyterian Church Offers Day Camp Plan

Day camp will be sponsored Aug. 24 through 28 for all children in fourth through sixth grades, by the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

Information is available at the church office.

Tahoe Camp Set For Single Adults

The annual Single Adult conference for Bay Area and Northern California will be held from tomorrow through Aug. 22, according to Wesley C. Baker, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael.

Cost of the week-long gathering at Lake Tahoe is $40 to $45, including the $10 registration fee, Baker said. More information is available at the church office.

Congregation Parks While He Preaches

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Parking spaces at Westport Road High school become church pews this summer.

Watkins Memorial Methodist Church holds a drive-in service at the lot on Sundays.

"The idea is to get people to take time off on their way to recreation and stop and pray," explained the Rev. William Bowling.

Tiburon Church Offers Program By Male Quartet

The Ambassador Male Quartet from Pacific Lutheran University at Tacoma, Wash., will give a sacred concert at the Shepherd of the Hills Lutheran Church, 9 Shepherd Way, Tiburon at 8 p.m. Monday, August 24.

The public is invited; there will be no admission charge, but a free will offering will be taken.

Included on the program will be arrangements of familiar hymns, church music classics and well-known spirituals. In addition to songs by the Quartet, there will be vocal solos and a devotional talk.

Each summer since 1952 the singing group has taken concert tours throughout the West. On the current tour it is giving more 100 concerts in western churches.

Cantor At 62 Keeps Busy In Synagogue

BEXLEY, Ohio (AP) — At 62, Philip H. Gellman still is taking singing lessons twice a week.

For 29 years, the Russian-born Gellman has been the cantor who sings the prayers at Agudas Achim Synagogue in this Columbus suburb. He also is a shohet, perfoming ritualistic slaughter of animals and poultry to qualify it as kosher food, and a mohel wielding the knife in the circumcision rite.

Grecian Monasteries Climb Toward Heaven

THESSALY, Greece (AP) — The monasteries of Greece are built on mountaintops, reaching to heaven to be closer to God.

Behind the small Thessaly town of Kalambaka, rising from a black rock mountain, stand the monasteries of Meteora, the name meaning "in the air." The dark mountain contrasts sharply with the red earth of the fertile valley below.

Meteora is a powerful picture of nature. Taking a long look, it is not hard to believe the legend that only by a rope tied to the foot of an eagle nesting on one of the peaks was the first ascent made possible.

Years ago, the monks hauled each other up and down the sheer rock in nets worked by a windlass from above. One intrepid visitor is said to have asked a monk how often the rope was changed. "only when the old rope breaks" was the reply. Today, a road runs part way up to the major monastery and steps cut out of the solid rock take a visitor to the others.

During the wars between the Serbian emperors of Trikkala and Byzantium in the 14th century, the first peace seeking hermits came to Meteora seeking refuge. The hermits also have been described as draft dodgers, seeking to escape military service.

With time, the hermitages grew into monasteries and new incentive was added with the coming of Athanasius the Cenobite, who founded the Monastery of the Transfiguration in the second half of the 14th century.

He introduced more rigorous rules, one of which barred women.

The great Meteoron reached its zenith when John Cantacuzine, expelled from the throne by Byzantium, entered it as a disciple of Athanasius. Having become the largest, richest monastery, the Meteoron no longer wished to recognize authority and tried to impose its own eminence. This led to a bitter struggle in the 16th century followed by a rapid decline so that only 4 of the 24 monasteries today are inhabited.

An old monk, one of the few remaining, takes visitors around the 16th century Church of the Transfiguration, which contains rare frescoes.

On the nearby peak of Ipsilotera is the deserted Monastery of Manuscripts, whose inhabitants once produced beautifully illustrated lives of the saints. On the bare rock, set in an almost impossible height, a fresco of the virgin and child is still discernible.

The tragedy of Metora is that most of the rare icons, books and frescoes have been stolen or are beyond repair from decay.

Mormon Temple Viewing Set

OAKLAND (AP)—The five-million-dollar Oakland Temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will be opened to the public for three weeks beginning Oct. 5.

After that, it will be closed to the public and open only to members of the church, Mormon officials said Sunday at a meeting in Oakland.

Largest Cross

NEW YORK (UPI)—A cross said to be the biggest in the world stands on a hill on the Trans-Canada Highway overlooking Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, says the Catholic Digest. It is a 22-ton, 125-foot steel structure, outlined in neon and visible for 15 miles.

New Minister Arrives For Church Of Christ Post

Rev. Linwood E. Bishop and his wife this week moved into the minister's residence of the Church of Christ, San Rafael.

Most recently minister of the North Highlands Church in Sacramento, Rev. Bishop formerly served with churches in Salinas and Stockton. He has conducted evangelistic services in San Francisco, Richmond, Oakland, Antioch and other Bay Area cities.

ACE Keeps Eye Out For Alliance

By EDWARD J. MOWERY
Advance News Service

PARIS — A hostile move by Communist forces against any member of the Western Alliance would trigger immediate retaliatory action by a little-publicized unit known as ACE — a fast-moving multi-national team of 6,000 crack troops.

Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, supreme allied commander in Europe, said at his headquarters here that tensions between East and West today are "neither greater nor lesser" along the 4,000-mile front of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

But, Lemnitzer said, the ACE mobile forces stand ready to move at quick notice if trouble flares. The special unit takes its name from the initial letters of Allied Command, Europe.

"These forces maintain a constant state of readiness and can be deployed to a trouble spot as quickly as an airlift can be assembled," Lemnitzer, 65, a former U.S. Army chief of staff, said. The ACE forces are under Allied command.

"And SHAPE decides when they move," Lemnitzer said. SHAPE is the short name for the Supreme Headquarters of the Allied Powers in Europe, and Lemnitzer is its chief.

The idea of establishing this special mobile force of specialists blossomed in 1960. Its purpose was twofold: ACE mobile troops could rapidly reinforce any threatened segment of the NATO front; their various nationalities would serve warning that a red attack against a NATO member would involve all.

In the fall of 1961, the initial troops were airlifted from central Europe to NATO's southern flank in Sardinia for operation "first try." In succeeding months, minor snags exposed in the test received the attention of the "best military brains" in the alliance.

The following year, 3,000 troops were flown into Greece for a second test. Both the third and fourth exercises, testing the cold-weather stamina of ACE mobile contigents in north Norway, proved highly successful.

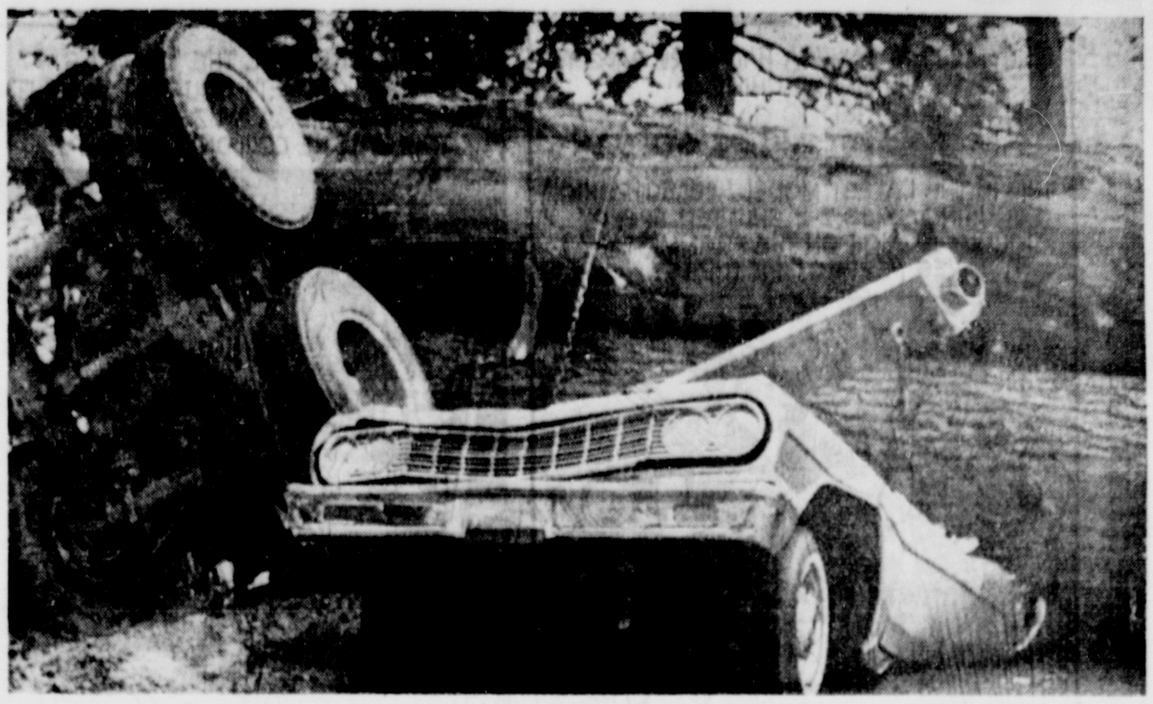
The tests, witnessed by a stream of high-ranking NATO officers, featured picked paratroops, commando units, marines and alpine experts drawn from armies of the various nations.

Lemnitzer believes that the mere presence of such a superb fighting force in Europe has both psychological and military overtones. He views the troops as a "vital deterrent" to Communist aggression.

"Our job here," he said, "is to maintain our strength and our capability as a guard against any enemy threat. The existence of ACE mobile forces, with their speed capability, is well known to the Communists.

"The existence of these forces makes it clear that no aggressor can attempt to gobble up one section of the alliance — however remote — without an immediate (retaliatory) move by NATO mobile forces."

Lemnitzer said the ACE forces can be supplied by air or sea. The land units of ACE are under command of British Gen. M. Fitzalan Howard, based at Sackenheim, Germany.



DEATH AS TRUCK OVERTURNS

Frank E. Robinson, 82, of Los Angeles, died Thursday when a loaded logging truck overturned onto the car he was sitting in. The victim's daughter, Margaret, 45, of Los Angeles, was standing next to the disabled auto and was not injured. Truck driver John Thompson ,42, of Auberry, was uninjured. The accident happened in the foothills near Fresno. (AP Wirephoto)

Three New Officers Hired For San Rafael

The San Rafael Police Department has hired three new officers, including a former Novato patrolman who started work today.

Officer Donald Merkely, who resigned from the Novato Police Department July 31, will fill the second of five new positions authorized by the city council in the 1964-65 budget.

Robert Edward Wade, 25, of 62 Park Road, Fairfax, a laboratory assistant in the auto shop at the College of Marin, and Donald M. Rose, 29, of 355 Canal Street, San Rafael, a claims investigator for a San Francisco credit company, will start work Sept. 1.

Police Chief Charles J. Chiesa said all the new men will receive the starting salary of $525 a month.

San Rafael Chamber Due Award

An award will be presented to the San Rafael Chamber of Commerce member enrolling the largest number of new members during the chamber's membership drive which started today and will end Nov. 1.

If more than 200 new members are enrolled, the prize will be a six-night stay in Acapulco including lodging and travel for two. With more than 150 but less than 200 new members, the person turning in the largest number of enrollments will receive lodging and travel for two on a four-day trip to Las Vegas.

A prize of a three-day trip to Disneyland for two will be awarded to the top membership salesman if 100 to 149 new members are enrolled. Lodging and travel for two to Carmel will be won by the top salesman if more than 50 but less than 100 members join the chamber.

Rose Appointed City Clerk, Too

The fledgling city of Tiburon had a shift in personnel Thursday.

The council approved the appointment of City Manager Lawrence D. Rose to another job, that of city clerk.

Acting City Clerk Mrs. Ann Bayless was subsequently appointed by Rose as his administrative assistant.

The council also appointed Robert I. Conn to the new position of deputy city attorney.

Water Meet Set At Point Reyes

Second meeing of the newly-formed Point Reyes Water Committee will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, in the West Marin School.

Possible types of public utility districts that could be formed to solve the water problems will be reviewed by Richard Godino of the Marin County Councel's office.

The meeting will be open to the public.

Rate Change Being Sought For Garbage

The Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted to ask that the town council set garbage rates on commercial pickups.

Chamber president Donald Sutherland said garbage rates on residential pick-ups are set by the council but commercial rates are subject to negotiations.

The chamber decided to try and obtain an office and secretary sometime after January.

The Chamber approved the form of the new brochure and outhorized the drawing of a map for the town. A committee was formed to study sign ordinances of the town and take its recommendations to the town council.

It was decided to hold regular meetings at 8 a.m. on the second Thursday of each month at Lucchesi's Restaurant in the Park Madera Center off Tamalpais Avenue.

281 Dogs Get Shots In Last Rabies Clinic

Marin County Health Department's last of 12 rabies clinics of the summer was held Thursday at San Anselmo Corporation Yard with 281 dogs receiving vaccinations.

This brings the summer total to 2,774 shots given as compared to 1,731 for last summer.

2 New Realty Firms Formed

Two real estate corporations have been formed in Marin County, Secretary of State Frank M. Jordan announced today.

The new corporations are:

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, Aug. 15, the 228th day of 1964 with 138 to follow.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Jupiter, Saturn, Venus and Mars. The evening star is Saturn.

Those born today are under the sign of Leo.

On this day in history:

In 1914, the vessel "Ancon" passed from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the Panama Canal was officially opened.

In 1935, Will Rogers and Wiley Post were killed when their plane crashed in Alaska.

In 1947, Great Britain ended her 200 year rule of India.

A thought for the day: American Poet Henry Wadsworth Longfellow said. "Music is the universal language of mankind . . . poetry their universal pastime and delight.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Ruffing A Loser With Worthless Trump Can Be Wise Economy

You can often profit by ruffing a loser with an otherwise worthless trump.

If you need a ruffing trick, play the trumps in such a way that you don't have to ruff with a trump needed for some other purpose.

Opening lead — ◇ J

When West opens the jack of diamonds, declarer must win the trick in dummy with the ace or queen.

South will have to ruff a club eventually, and he wants to save dummy's low trump for that purpose.

SECOND TRICK

At the second trick declarer leads a club from dummy, losing the king to West's ace. Back comes a trump, and declarer must make sure of winning this trick also in dummy.

If South won in his own hand, he would have to ruff a club with dummy's high trump, and this would set up a trump trick for West.

South continues with a club to the queen and a low club toward dummy.

This gives West a chance to step up with the jack of diamonds and thus win a trump trick, but South is still sure of his contract.

CAN RUFF LATER

When West ruffs high, declarer discards a spade from the dummy and saves the trump for a later ruff. No matter what West returns South can get to his hand with the ace of hearts and lead another low club to ruff in dummy.

The last club is then good, and South is home.

South would lose the contract if he drew West's last trump. He would then have to lose two more club tricks.

In effect, West ruffs a trick that his partner would otherwise win.

Still, West cannot gain by refusing to ruff the third round of clubs. If he does, declarer ruffs the club in dummy, gets to his hand with the ace of hearts and then draws the last trump with the king.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ K J 5
♥ K J 9 6 4
♣ J 10 8 6

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two hearts.

You will raise spades later, thus showing a hand that is too good for a raise to two spades but not good enough for an immediate jump to three spades.

Steel Pontoons Are Stolen

Theft of four large steel pontoons, valued at $4,800 total, was reported yesterday by Marin County sheriff's officers.

Ralph Wibbenhorst, employee of Shellmaker, Inc., of Newport Beach in Orange County, told deputies the eight-feet-long pontoons were part of a stack kept under the south end of the Richardson Bay bridge and were used for laying telephone cable across the west side of the bay.

He said the pontoons, weighing 1,500 pounds each, apparently were hauled away by truck, and were discovered missing July 30. Delay in reporting the thefts, he added, was because he thought another construction firm had borrowed them.

Labor Department Probers Refused Teamsters' Books

By MORTON A. REICHEK
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON — A government attempt to investigate the personal use of Teamsters Union funds by its legally embattled president, James R. Hoffa, has failed to get off the ground.

The effort has been stymied for three months by the union's refusal to show its books to Labor Department investigators. Teamster lawyers are challenging the department's right to see the financial records.

Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz announced the start of the investigation May 11 after 16 members of a teamster local in Philadelphia charged that Hoffa was violating the Landrum-Griffin Act by using union money to pay his personal legal expenses.

The law prohibits this. It provides that union members can sue to recover misused funds and authorizes them to ask the Labor Department to investigate.

A subpoena calling for Teamster financial records was issued two weeks after Wirtz's announcement.

The union, refusing to submit its records, argued that the subpoena was invalid and that Wirtz had no authority to probe violations of Landrum-Griffin because the act does not give him enforcement powers. Union lawyers also criticized Wirtz's advance announcement that the results of the investigation would be disclosed to the general public.

The U. S. District Court in Washington upheld the subpoena on June 26. But the judge granted a stay pending a Teamster appeal which was filed four days later.

The government has asked that the case be expedited. The court of appeals has as yet to set a date for oral argument, and a decision on the appeal is not expected before October.

Almost one million dollars of Teamsters Union money is believed to have been spent in the last three years for Hoffa's defense in court battles.

In recent months, the union has formally cut off the flow of funds to Hoffa's legal coffers. A campaign for "voluntary contributions" from union members, however, has been mounted to help pay Hoffa's defense costs.

Under the Landrum-Griffin Act, use of unions for personal purposes can lead to criminal prosecution for the violators and possibly to a government-ordered trusteeship over the union treasury. Union funds can be legally used, however, to defend officers facing prosecution for legitimate union activities.

The twice-convicted Hoffa has argued that union interests are directly involved in his current round of legal battles.

Youths Swim From Sausalito To Belvedere

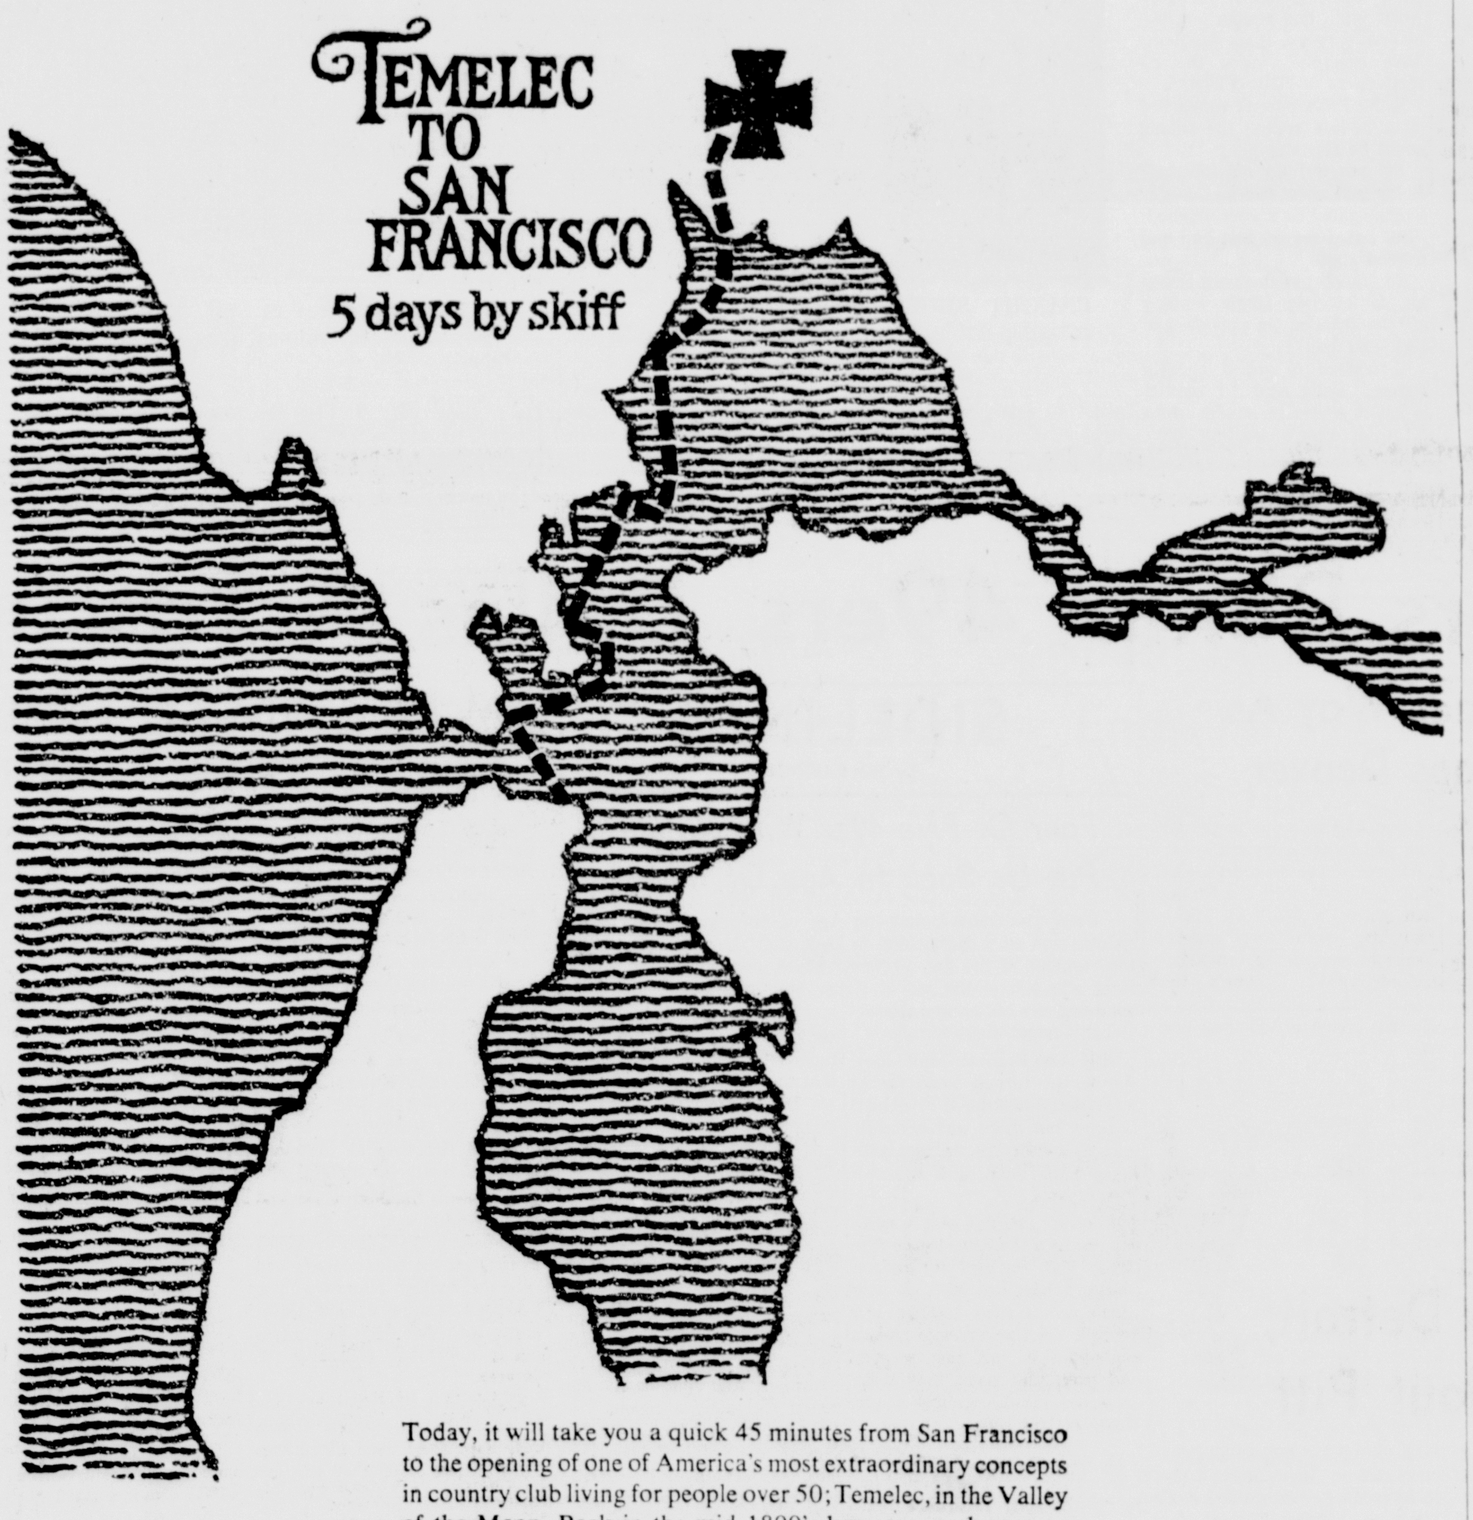
Two young Marin County 19-year-olds swam from Sausalito Point to Belvedere in 35 minutes Wednesday afternoon.

The 1,600-yard swim was made by Tinsley Stetson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Stetson of 127 Montford Avenue, Mill Valley, and Bruce Von Borstel, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Von Borstel of 124 Jamaica Street, Belvedere.

They were accompanied by the elder Von Borstel and several friends who sailed the Von Borstels' yawl-rigged sailboat, Sea Witch, across Richardson Bay with the boys.

The youths, who completed a 50-mile swim last summer, will begin their sophomore year at College of Marin in September. They competed against each other during their high school careers when Stetson was on the Tamalpais High School swimming team and Von Borstel swam for Redwood High School.

TEMELEC TO SAN FRANCISCO
5 days by skiff



Today, it will take you a quick 45 minutes from San Francisco to the opening of one of America's most extraordinary concepts in country club living for people over 50; Temelec, in the Valley of the Moon. Back in the mid 1800's however, such men as General Vallejo, Father Serra, and Captain Swift usually used horseback to the bay, and then skiff the rest of the way. It could take five days, door to door. And though, through the years, transportation has changed dramatically from what it used to be, those lush green and gold Sonoma hills surrounding Temelec, on the site of Captain Swift's spectacular estate, have hardly changed at all. But below the hills, a thousand luxury homes are being set into a vast rising green. At its head is Swift's elegant Temelec Hall. As in 1860, Temelec Hall forms the center of the community's social, athletic, and creative activity. As for homes at Temelec, several architectural and living styles are represented, offering every elegance of country living, within easy range of the city. If you haven't yet visited Temelec, and learned the details of easy active living in the Temelec plan, you should consider it urgent that you do so today. Dollar for dollar, and pleasure for pleasure, Temelec has no equal. (Take 101 to 37; East on 37 following signs to Sonoma and Temelec.)

Antitrust Question Rekindled By CBS-Yankee Deal

By JAMES C. MUNN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is casting an increasingly wary eye on the $11.2-million deal that gives the Columbia Broadcasting System majority ownership of the New York Yankees.

Congressional reaction to the surprise transaction — already approved by the American League — includes demands that professional baseball be subjected to the antitrust laws.

Chairman Emanuel Cellar (D-N.Y.)l of the powerful house judiciary committee said yesterday the sale "indicates baseball is big business."

Celler, who also is chairman of the judiciary committee's antitrust subcommittee, said "the bars must be put up and the baseball clubs subjected to the antitrust laws."

Professional baseball now operates under limited exemption from antitrust laws. The Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee recently approved a bill to clarify the exemption and extend it to other professional sports.

Sen. Philip A. Hart (D-Mich.), chairman of the subcommittee, hinted his group might take another look at the measure when he said "there might be antitrust implications" in the sale.

Sen. John L. McClellan (D-Ark.), another member of Hart's subcommittee, put it a little stronger.

"The sale," he said, "raises questions which should receive the prompt scrutiny of the Justice Department and the subcommittee.

Sen. William Proxmire (D-Wis.), said he thinks the bill to give sports exemption from antitrust laws should be reconsidered. Another Wisconsin Democrat, Rep. Henry S. Reuss, said "baseball has forfeited its antitrust exemption."

But Sens. Kenneth D. Keating and Jacob K. Javits, New York Republicans, said there should be no quick condemnation of the sale even though they agreed there would be surface points that merit inquiry.

Javits said the fact that CBS is publicly owned "is assurance there will be no vest pocket operation."

"Distinguished ownership has always been an asset," Javits said.

Possible effects of the sale on baseball's relationship with radio and television were cited by Ed Short, general manager of the Chicago White Sox, who said he withheld approval of the purchase "because of ramifications regarding open television-radio bidding on the World Series, the All-Star Game and the Game-of-the-week program."

Rights for broadcasting and telecasting the All-Star Game and World Series are granted through competitive bidding among the networks.

Both CBS and the National Broadcasting Co. have Game-of-the-Week programs that present major league games on Saturday and Sunday.

The major leagues are now considering a package of weekly Monday night games for national prime-time exposure, and the three networks are expected to bid for this package, which might sell for as much as $20 million.

Young Hurlers Carry Giants Hopes

Independent-Journal Sports

Bolin One-Hitter Gets 3-0 Victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Four young pitchers have kept the San Francisco Giants from completely collapsing, although they are four games behind the Philadelphia Phillies in the National League race.

Bob Bolin, a 25-year-old right-hander, was the first of the quartet to step to the line in a four-game series against Milwaukee and he threw a one-hitter last night against the Braves as the Giants won, 3-0.

"It's the best nine-inning game he's ever pitched," commented manager Alvin Dark afterward. "He's pitched some good eight-inning games."

Ron Herbel, (8-7), a 26-year-old, went today against the Braves' Hank Fischer (9-8).

And a pair of 25-year-olds—Gaylord Perry and Bob Hendley—were ready to pitch the Sunday doubleheader.

This is the way it must be because of the absence of the three veteran pitchers upon whom the Giants pinned their pennant hopes before the start of the season.

Ace right-hander Juan Marichal hasn't pitched since July 29 because of a bad back and no one seems sure when he'll return. Jack Sanford probably won't pitch this season because of arm surgery. Back problems have severely limited the effectiveness of Billy O'Dell.

If the Phils weren't embarked on a no-lose policy, the Giants could be closer.

"I was a little off tonight," Bolin said about the best major league game he's ever pitched. "But I had a good fast ball and a good slider."

Ed Bailey got the only Brave hit, a left-field single leading off the fifth on an outside and high fast ball.

"I wanted to get it a little higher," Bolin said. "I wanted to get it where he would swing at it. I wasn't wasting anything."

Bolin got only three-hit support. Each was a bases-empty homer. Willie McCovey and Orlando Cepeda destroyed off-speed offerings by starter Denny LeMaster (12-8). Willie Mays hit his 35th of the season off reliever Bob Sadowski after a dust-off pitch.

McCovey's first-inning homer, his 17th, was all Bolin needed. But Cepeda hit his 21st the next inning anyway.

"I think more work makes me sharper," said Bolin, who hadn't won since July 11. He now stands 4-4 with a 2.69 earned-run-average and three complete games to his credit.

Bolin walked six and struck out six. Two Braves got on because of errors but none reached third.

The game marked the start of pay television in San Francisco with 2,000 families eligible to pay $1.50 for the program.

BIRTHDAY SUNDAY A. A. STAGG'S 102ND

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP)—For the first time in many a year, the birthday of Amos Alonzo Stagg will pass this year with no special observance.

Famed for generations as the grand old man of American football, Coach Stagg will be 102 years old tomorrow.

On his 100th anniversary, Stagg made a dramatic personal appearance at a huge civic birthday party, and last year he had a huge 3½-foot-high birthday cake, while the Stockton Lions Club held a special celebration.

This year, because of the death of Mrs. Stagg July 22 and Stagg's own feeble condition, there will be only visits from his son, Dr. Paul Stagg, athletic director of University of the Pacific, and a few old friends.

"I don't think he realizes the significance of the day," said his longtime physician, Dr. Langley Collis. "He has been informed of Mrs. Stagg's death, "but I believe he does not fully understand it," said Dr. Collis.

"He does not speak but eats well. And a kidney ailment earlier this year has cleared up very well. He is in better condition than most 90-year-olds."

The patriarch of American athletics, who began his coaching career at the University of Chicago in 1892, spends about half his waking hours in a chair at the Hillhaven rest home in Stockton. He cheerfully enjoys the sun, then goes back to bed when he becomes tired.

In his 99th year he has suffered a knee injury, and has not walked for some time. He assists the nurses in adjusting his legs when he moves between chair and bed, however.

Stagg, the only man named as both a coach and player in football's Hall of Fame, did not retire until he was 98. During 57 years as a head coach, he ran up a record of 309 victories, 200 defeats and 35 ties.

He started out as an end at Yale, where he was named on Walter Camp's first All-America team.

When he was retired by Chicago at the mandatory age of 70, he came west to Pacific, then called College of the Pacific, in 1933.

At the age of 81, he coached his 1943 team to a one-loss season and was named national coach of the year.

He rounded out his career at Susquehanna, Pa., and as advisory coach at Stockton College.

When the Staggs first came to Stockton 31 years ago, they rented a modest home, not thinking that they would stay more than a few years.

Still rented, it has remained the family home ever since, but now at last the family is arranging to give it up.

Swimmers To Aid Olympic Team Fund

The five teams of the Marin Swim League will hold their league meet Aug. 29 at the Tiburon Peninsula Club for the benefit of the U.S. Olympic Fund.

Bill Anderson, Swimming Committee Chairman of the Tiburon club, said yesterday that about $100 is expected to be raised from entry fees paid by the swimmers and donations by the league for Olympic pins which will go to the winners.

Besides the Tiburon club, the league includes the Rafael Racquet Club, the Terra Linda Swim Club, the Las Gallinas Aquatic Club and the Strawberry Swim Club.

Mrs. Beth Kaufman of San Anselmo, longtime coach of the Marin Pirates and a member of the U.S. Olympic Swimming Committee, will be present to make the awards. The meet will be refereed by AAU official Charles Doll of Mill Valley.

Aussies Take Lead In Davis Cup Play

MINNEAPOLIS — Australians Roy Emerson and Fred Stolle beat Pat Rodriguez and Pat Cornejo of Chile, respectively, yesterday and took a 210 lead in the American Zone Davis Cup final. Emerson won 6-3, 6-2, 8-6, while Stolle was a 6-1, 6-0, 6-0 winner.

Raiders Romp; 49ers, Dallas A Tossup

Daniels Leads Way As Oakland Bops Denver

DENVER (AP) — Clem Daniels, the American Football League's most valuable player, speared two scoring passes that led Oakland in a 20-7 exhibition romp over Denver last night.

Daniels opened the scoring in the first quarter with a grab in the end zone from quarterback Cotton Davidson on a 12-yard scoring play.

In the third quarter, Daniels hooked a short pass from Tom Flores and outsprinted Denver's secondary on a 62-yard TD.

Mike Mercer padded the Oakland lead with field goals from 41 and 34 yards out in the second and fourth quarters.

Denver never dented the Oakland Defenses until the Raiders had run up a 20-0 lead. Mickey Slaughter, one of three quarterbacks alternated by the Broncos, delivered Denver's first score with a five-yard toss to Hewritt Dixon in the final period.

Colts Tie Detroit; Eagles Clout Pitt

The Baltimore Colts scored in the last two minutes and earned a 28-28 tie with the Detroit Lions last night as the pro football exhibition season opened its second weekend.

The Kansas City Chiefs also scored in the last two minutes defeating the Buffalo Bills 24-21. The Philadelphia Eagles downed the Pittsburgh Steelers 24-13 and the Oakland Raiders whipped the Denver Broncos 20-7 in the other games.

A total of 99,365 fans turned out for the four games, two between National League teams and two between American League outfits. Tops was the 46,582 attendance for the Colts-Lions game at Detroit.

Six more games are on tap tonight. In the NFL, New York is at Green Bay, Cleveland at Los Angeles, Chicago meets Washington at Richmond, St. Louis battles Minnesota at Atlanta and Dallas takes on San Francisco at Portland, Ore. Houston and San Diego play at Little Rock in the only AFL game scheduled.

Baltimore's late touchdown was set up by a pass interference call on Gary Cuozzo's toss to John Mackey on a third down and nine situation. The interference gave Baltimore a first down on the Detroit five from where Tom Matte plunged off tackle for the TD. Jim Martin's conversion tied the score.

Baltimore had led 21-7 at the half, but fell behind when Milt Plum came into the game. He engineered three touchdowns within five minutes to put the Lions ahead 28-21. The Colts, led by Johnny Unitas, broke a 7-7 tie with two touchdowns in the last 59 seconds of the first half.

A 42-yard pass from Len Dawson to Abner Haynes gave Kansas City its victory over the Bills before 17,738 at Buffalo. Jack Kemp had put the Bills ahead 21-17 earlier in the last quarter with an 11-yard aerial to Ernie Warlick.

Philadelphia scored its first victory for new coach Joe Kuharich, helped by Tim Brown's 62-yard touchdown run midway of the third period that put the Eagles ahead 21-13. It was Pittsburgh's opener.

Four Or Five 49er Wins Would Put Us Back In Age Of Miracles

Don't you believe that the Age of Miracles is past. Eight months ago on a dismal day in December they scraped together the remains of the San Francisco 49ers and buried them under what was left of the sod of Kezar Stadium. Last Sunday they exhumed the bodies and, miraculously, found signs of life.

This is no Frankenstein's monster to be turned loose on an unsuspecting National Football League, but there was certainly enough activity to warrant artificial respiration and massive transfusions.

It doesn't take too long a memory to recall a year when the Green Bay Packers were the doormats of the NFL. A new coach and a face-lifting job brought the Packers into strong contention in just one season, and from that point they went on to become the scourge of the Western Conference.

IN ALL fairness, Coach Jack Christiansen can't be blamed for the dismal 2-17 record of 1963. In mid-season he inherited a club that had lost dignity and was a beaten club before each first half ended. This is Christiansen's year of trial. No one in his right mind expects a championship; four or five wins would put us right back in the miracle age again.

In 1963 the Niners caused a minor stock rise in medical supply circles. Many strong men fell by the wayside, and each starting lineup was a list of the walking wounded. Had adhesive tape not been invented I doubt that the 49ers could have played out the season.

THE WIN over Cleveland had other happy overtones. This is the club picked by many to take over top spot in the Eastern Conference unless old Y. A. Tittle can give one more lift to his New York Giants. Rookies and old-timers combined to give San Francisco a two-deep offensive and defensive line that consistently got the jump on the Brownies. And that hasn't happened for many a moon.

Quarterback John Brodie shoved mouthsful of boos back into the throats of his many critics with his performance. John knows that just one bad day will bring the crowd calls for rookie George Mira. Obviously, this would be unfair to both men but don't look for reasoning from the guy who has paid his dough to get in.

IT IS far too early to pass judgment on the crop of rookies in the 49er camp. Coach Christiansen has already pruned some of the deadwood, and after another look-see in tonight's game with Dallas in Portland the axe will fall again. The only way to go is up and Coach Jack is not the type to fool around.

Oakland Gal 2nd In Omaha Tourney

OMAHA (AP) — Kathy Whitworth of Jal, N.M. took the lead in the $10,000 Omaha Jaycees Ladies Open Golf Tournament yesterday with a six-under-par 67, over the 6,344-yard Miracle Hills course.

McHan Quits S.F. Team; Game On Video Tonight

PORTLAND, Ore., (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers will be minus one quarterback when they battle the Dallas Cowboys in National League action tonight before an expected 25,000 fans.

Veteran Lamar McHan quit the squad yesterday "for personal reasons." McHan figured to have a tough battle sticking on the squad this season with John Brodie at full strength and rookie George Mira in camp.

Mira does not know the plays yet and last year's reserve signal-caller, Bob Waters, is playing defensive backfield only this year. That leaves only Brodie and Lee Grosscup as the quarterbacks ready for tonight.

The 49ers mauled Cleveland last weekend and the Cowboys fell before the Los Angeles Rams, but the odds-makers still rate the contest a toss-up. The Cowboys feature a wild aerial game with Don Meredith pitching to a brilliant troupe of receivers.

Coach Jack Christiansen plans to go with the starting lineup that triumphed over Cleveland. That means defensive starters Dan Colchico, Charley Krueger and Jerry Martens will sit out much of the contest to rest their sore knees. All are recuperating from surgery earlier this year.

But Coach Christiansen has indicated that they may see action should the situation require it.

OLD HOME WEEK

It will be old home week for several highly-touted rookies. Forty-niner end Vern Burke was an All-America at Oregon State and then went into the Army. Rookie linebacker Dave Wilcox went to Oregon.

Dallas is counting on Mel Renfro to shore up its sieve-like defensive backfield of last year. Renfro was an All-America performer at Oregon.

The contest will be televised back to the Bay Area over KTVU, Channel 2, at 8:15 o'clock.

'Bo' Tells His Side Of Fast One-Punch Kayo

By W. B. RAGSDALE Jr.

WASHINGTON (AP) — "If they're going to suspend me without pay, fine. Let them give me my release. It was something out of my control."

So said Bo Belinsky, temperamental 27-year-old left-hand pitcher of the Los Angeles Angels, of his one-punch kayo of 64-year-old sports writer Braven Dyer.

Belinsky, suspended indefinitely by the Angels, is flying back to Los Angeles today to explain to General Manager Fred Haney why he socked — or shoved, as Belinsky explains it — the Los Angeles Times newsman.

He also said he has a date with his lawyer, Paul Caruso, to see "just what right the Los Angeles Angels have to suspend me without pay. I haven't even had a hearing. They haven't told me why I was suspended."

Manager Bill Rigney, whose team is in Washington for a four-game weekend series, would say only that Belinsky was "suspended indefinitely . . for punching sports writer Braven Dyer."

Rigney reportedly said he didn't want Belinsky on his ball team any more and he wanted to get him out of town as soon as possible.

As a result of the brief battle early yesterday Dyer required five stitches under his left ear. He reported it was badly swollen, and he had a black right eye.

Dyer said yesterday afternoon:

"It looks like I'm going to be all right, except right now I've got a little double vision."

Both Dyer and Belinsky agree about the fracas — to a point.

Both agree they met in the lobby late Thursday night and Dyer asked Belinsky about an Associated Press story reporting that he wanted to quit baseball if he could get a better job.

After hearing Dyer's description of the story, both agree that Belinsky said he had been misquoted and gave Dyer some quotes about the AP story.

Several hours later, after Dyer got ready for bed, Belinsky telephoned him to say he had not been misquoted in the AP story, but Dyer said it was too late to do anything about his story.

Both agree they got into a hot argument that concluded when Belinsky said "You come down here and I'll stick your . . . head under the shower."

Dyer, once a star college football player, said "A writer can't let a player get away with a threat like that. I dressed and went down to his room."

"After Dyer hung up the telephone," Belinsky said, "I thought the whole thing was closed. I was brushing my teeth and had my pajamas on when he knocked on the door. It took him 15 or 20 minutes to get there."

Dyer's description of what followed is brief:

"I knocked on the door. We started talking, and that's all I remember."

Belinsky said Dyer hung his coat in the hall and came in prepared for a fight.

'SUB' DANIELS WINS UPSET OVER JONES

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Daniels, a Brooklyn barber whose manager had given up on him as a fighter, today was riding high while Doug Jones, the top-ranking heavyweight contender, still was wondering what happened in the Madison Square Garden ring last night.

Daniels a former contender who grabbed a sub's role against Jones on 24-hours notice, scored a resounding upset over the man who gave Cassius Clay his toughest fight.

Two of the three officials voted for Daniels who won a split verdict in a close and often drab 10-round television fight.

Daniels, a gangling awkward 6-foot-5 beanpole with long arms, had lost a close decision to Jones 14 months ago in Teaneck, N.J. Bill was 3-1 underdog in the return and the crowd of about 4,000 cheered the decision.

The 27-year-old Daniels appeared on the way out of boxing when he was stopped in the third round by Germany's Karl Mildenberger last November. His manager, Julie Isaacson, gave up on him, and Billy decided to handle his own affairs.

Winner of only one fight in his last six, he was training for a bout with Cleveland Williams when he got the call to fill in for Tony Alongi, out with a bad elbow, against Jones.

"I told my wife when I got this fight that I was going to beat him the same way—5-4-1 or so in a very close fight," said Daniels. "I knew I could do it. If he wants a return I'll be glad to give him one.

"I'd rather fight Cassius Clay than anyone because I've got the style to beat him. I almost did it when we fought a couple of years ago.

That was on May 19, 1962, before Clay won the title. Daniels then a contender, shook Clay twice with long right hands before being stopped on cuts in the seventh round.

Referee Zach Clayton, 5-3-2, and judge Johnny Dran, 5-4-1, voted for Daniels. Judge Al Berl had it 6-4 for Jones. The AP scorecard had Jones in front 6-4. A ringside poll showed an 8-5-1 edge for Jones.

"I won that fight all the way," fumed Jones, who saw his thin hopes for a title fight with Clay go right down the drain. "How could they score it that way? He just ran and held. I made the fight."

Jones had won three straight since his controversial loss to Clay, a victory that sent the Louisville Lip on the road to the title.

Unable to get a title shot, he took the fight with Alongi for a purse of about $7,500, and then agreed to meet Daniels again when Alongi was forced to withdraw.

It was a cat and mouse fight all the way, Jones, 187, was the aggressor against the 194½-pound Daniels.

'Big Donkey' Now 'Our Hero' For Phils

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

They kid awkward Frank Thomas a lot and call him a variety of nicknames like "The Big Donkey," but you can bet the Philadelphia Phillies will show what they really think of him when they start splitting those World Series shares.

Thomas, who started the season with the Mets, has been a member of the Phillies less than two weeks and already is being hailed by them as "Our Hero."

Manager Gene Mauch says the huge 35-year-old outfielder arrived just at the right time.

"Every time we've needed help, someone has come along to do the job," Mauch points out. "First it was Richie Allen. Then Cookie Rojas, Johnny Callison and Clay Dalrymple. Now it's Thomas' turn—and what a help he's been.

The former Met flychaser has played in eight games so far for the Phillies and has driven in 13 runs. He had five RBIs in last night's doubleheader against his old teammates, the Mets, as the Phils swept both ends 6-1 and 6-4 to increase their National League lead to four games.

Thomas drove in two runs in the opener and then accounted for three more in the finale with a two-run homer and a single.

Allen didn't hurt the cause, either. The rookie third baseman had three straight doubles in the first game and tacked on three singles in the nightcap. Callison contributed his 20th homer in the first game as Jim Bunning hurled a five-hitter for his 13th victory against four losses.

Rookie Rick Wise survived a pair of homers by Ed Kranepool to post his fourth win in the second game although he needed Jack Baldschun's help in the eighth.

The struggling San Francisco Giants blanked the Milwaukee Braves on Bob Bolin's one-hitter, the St. Louis Cardinals downed the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-3, Houston edged Cincinnati 3-2, and the Pittsburgh Pirates topped the Chicago Cubs 3-2 in the opener of a doubleheader but dropped the nightcap 4-2.

Ray Sadecki beat the Dodgers for the first time in two years when the Cardinals came up with four runs in the fifth inning off loser Don Drysdale (13-12). Julian Javier tripled home two runs, Sadecki singled home another and the winning run scored on Nate Oliver's error after Lou Brock singled.

Walt Bond's 17th homer in the seventh inning broke a 2-2 tie between the Colts and Reds. Bond connected off loser Bob Purkey (6-7) and the blow gave Jim Owens his fifth win in 12 decisions.

Jerry Lynch's homer off Bobby Shantz with two out and one on in the ninth powered the Pirates to victory in their opener with the Cubs but Chicago won the nightcap on Andre Rodgers' two-run homer. Al McBean was credited with his sixth victory in as many decisions in the opener while Lew Burdette pitched a seven-hitter in the second game to make his record 9-5.

Ex-Yank Bauer Proves Poor Prophet; His O's Lead N.Y.

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Hank Bauer isn't going to be wrong twice.

The one-time Yankee who always gave it the old Oriole spirit expressed his sincere opinion at the beginning of the season that his Baltimore team would finish behind the Yankees in the pennant race.

Maybe it came from being a Yankee himself during many successful years, but Bauer couldn't see his former companions failing in their bid for a fifth straight American League flag.

Fortunately for Baltimore fans, few of the Oriole players had much to do with the Yankee empire and they weren't too awed at the task that faced them. They took another step to proving their manager wrong last night when they whipped the Yankees 5-4 in the opener of a big three-game series.

A crowd of 47,425, largest in modern Baltimore history, saw the first-place Orioles maintain a three-game edge over runner-up Chicago while boosting their lead over the sagging New Yorkers to 4½ games.

27 TO GO

Bauer, who has maintained that 100 victories will be enough to win the pennant, wasn't about to make any more predictions after his team had recorded win No. 73.

"We need 27 more wins," Bauer said, "but it could be a long way if they're as hard as this one."

Most of the Oriole players were a bit more optimistic, even though they didn't take anything for granted either. Pitcher Harvey Haddix, who worked one inning in relief of winner Steve Barber, said: "We've got a lot of battling to do but this has to be the biggest ball game."

Brooks Robinson struck the big blow for the Orioles, slamming a three-run homer in the sixth inning to put his side ahead for good, 4-2. The victory evened Barber's record at 8-8 while reliever Steve Hamilton suffered his second loss in nine decisions.

In other American League games, Chicago routed the Boston Red Sox 11-1, the Minnesota Twins tripped the Cleveland Indians 7-6, the Kansas City Athletics edged the Detroit Tigers 5-4 and the Los Angeles Angels beat Washington 7-0 after the Senators had taken the opener of a twi-night doubleheader 7-3.

The White Sox kept pace with the Orioles by slamming out 16 hits to back up the strong four-hit pitching of John Buzhardt. Ron Hansen blasted two homers for the White Sox, who also collected four doubles and a triple. It was Buzhardt's ninth victory against six losses.

Harmon Killebrew clouted his 41st homer of the year and also picked up his 91st and 92nd runs-batted-in to help the Minnesota cause. Joe Azcue hit his fourth homer for Cleveland. Jim Perry, pitching only two-thirds of an inning in relief of Jim Kaat, boosted his record to 4-2.

S.A. Softball Tourney Thriller Ends In Tie

Hamilton Field and Perry's Delicatessen battled to a 3-3 deadlock last night in a contest referred to by many observers as the most exciting game in the five-year history of the San Anselmo Invitational Softball Tournament.

The two teams had numerous scoring chances in the game, which was called after seven innings due to darkness.

The game will be replayed on Monday, Aug. 24.

In Tonight's action, Indian Valley Lumber (0-1) and Capella Bros. (0-1) clash at 6:30 o'clock at San Anselmo's Memorial Park. Each team needs a win to stay in contention in the round-robin tourney.

A triple-header is slated tomorrow with Sohner Tree Service (0-1) and Hamilton Field (1-0) opening the festivities at 12:30 p.m. Fairchild (1-0) and Capella meet at 3:30 and Indian Valley and Perry's vie at 6 o'clock.

Perry's scored twice in the first inning last night on Dick Johnson's clutch single, but Hamilton overtook them by scoring once in the second and twice in the fifth. Catcher Jim Schumann's single drove in the leading run.

But Perry's tied the score in the sixth without benefit of a hit and only a diving catch by right-fielder Dick Pierce with the bases loaded saved further scoring.

Hamilton had runners on first and third with two outs in the final inning, but were retired when Perry hurler Jay Leatherwood coaxed Mike Watkins to fly out to center.

Admission to all games is free.

			R	H	E
Perry's	200	001 0	3	5	3
Hamilton	010	020 0	3	7	2

Leatherwood and Johnson (P), Coleman, Smith (6) and Schumann. 3B—Dew (H), Manzoni (P).

National League Lifts Curfew For Rest Of Season

CINCINNATI (AP) — National League President Warren C. Giles said yesterday the 12:50 a.m. curfew will not be in effect the rest of the baseball season with the exception of Saturday night games in New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

The curfew rule says that no inning may start after 12:50 a.m., but the league rules provide that Giles may suspend it during the final series between two clubs.

Suspension of the curfew Saturday nights in New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh does not apply because of local law in those cities.

A game between the Los Angeles Dodgers and Reds in Cincinnati was called at the end of 17 innings on May 28 because of the curfew and had to be replayed.

Giles also invoked a league rule giving the umpires the authority to decide if any game shall start when bad weather or questionable field conditions prevail. This decision had been left up to the home club.

Preacher Cassius Clams Up

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay turned up alone on Chicago's South Side last night a few hours after his Gary, Ind. marriage to model Sonji M. Roy.

Clay, who was irked because reporters "keep forgetting my name is Muhammad Ali," said he had no intention of discussing his married life.

Muslim women, he said, remain in the background.

Clay was found near the South Parkway Motel, where he and his bride had registered.

He explained that his new name was given to him by Elijah Muhamad, leader of the Black Muslim sect. Clay is a member.

"Where will you go from here?" he was asked.

"I just might leave the country," Clay said. "I'm making a movie in Egypt."

He said he also preaches.

"Where?" he was asked.

"I'm preaching now," Clay replied.

Clay admitted that he may spend his honeymoon with his bride in Egypt. When he will leave, he said, depends upon when arrangements are completed for his return bout with Sonny Liston.

Clay said his wedding day had been partly taken up with business.

"I bought two apartment buildings today," he said.

He said he met Miss Roy two months ago in Chicago. Asked if he plans to raise a family, he said:

"When my children be born, they won't be born here. They'll be born in the thereafter. The wicked world is going to be destroyed. The way things is shaping up it won't be but about 10 years."

BUILDERS, FAIRFAX COLLIDE SUNDAY

The Billings-Hutchison Builders will try to clinch another Marin Semipro League crown tomorrow when they face Fairfax at Albert Field, San Rafael.

The Builders suffered their first loss after eight wins last week when they were dumped by second place Mill Valley 6-4. The Merchants (6-2) must beat the Novak Builders of Novato tomorrow at Project 17, Mill Valley, and hope for Fairfax to upset B-H.

This is not impossible, for Fairfax will be starting Vince Pallavicini, a hardthrowing lefthander who set down Tiburon last week 7-3 on four hits. Billings-Hutchison will use ace lefty Bob DeRosa, who sports a record of 5-0.

Mill Valley will pitch Dave Perlis against Novak's John Dolensyk or Ron Grayson.

The Merchants' Frank Ubhaus went four for five against Billings-Hutchison to jump into the league batting lead with a .445 average. Ron Blum of the Builders went one for three to drop to .438.

Keith Fraser and DeRosa have the best won-loss marks among the pitchers and Pallavicini leads the league in runs batted in with 14. Dolensyk has 13 and Dan Fitzgerald and Mike Dunne of Billings-Hutchison both have 12.

George Archer Sets Pace In St. Paul Open Tourney

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — George Archer, the man with a trunk full of clubs, likes to putter around with something new in the St. Paul Open golf tournament.

The rangy young pro stroked a 67 in the $65,000 tourney yesterday and took a one-stroke lead at $35 over a fellow Californian, Dick Lotz, and John Cook of Minnetonka Beach, Minn.

He went around Keller Course in 29 putts with his new gooseneck putter, dropping in birdies on five holes.

"After you've used a putter for a while it doesn't look so good," said the rookie pro from Gilroy, Calif. "They get old and dingy. I like 'em new and shiny.

Lotz, 21, of Hayward, Calif., is one-half of a brother team under sponsorship of their dad and a business associate. John Lotz trails at 71-73—144. Dick fired a 66 yesterday, knocking in six birdies with putts up to 20 feet. Cook, a first round co-leader at 66, slumped to a 70.

Gene Littler of La Jolla, Calif., and former national amateur champion Labron Harris of Burneyville, Okla., were two shots off the pace at 137. Littler went around in 67 and Harris in 69 on the second round.

There was a four-way tie at 138 among Gordon Jones, Orlando, Fla.; Howie Johnson, Palm Springs, Calif.; Raymond Floyd, St. Andrews, Ill., and Bill Martindale, Jacksonville, Texas.

Among the 14 bracketed at 139 were Ken Venturi, National Open king; Bobby Nichols, the PGA titleholder, and Julius Boros, former two-time National Open winner. Jay Hebert, who opened with a 66, faded to a 75 and 141 total.

Medics Mum As Hutch Returns To Hospital

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds Manager Fred Hutchinson, who has been battling a chest cancer since early this year, was back in Christ Hospital today.

Neither hospital spokesmen nor Dr. George Ballou, the team physician, would discuss the 45-year-old manager's condition or the treatments he is receving.

"I have no idea," Dr. Ballou said on being asked when Hutchinson would be released from the hospital.

Hutchinson had been in charge of the team as late as Wednesday night when his birthday was celebrated with a gala ceremony at Crosley Field. The Reds called a news conference Thursday morning and then Hutchinson, lively but haggard, told newsmen he had been suffering back pains and would not go on the road with the team.

The Reds manager spent a week in Christ Hospital for tests when he complained of back pains late last month. He was released Aug. 3 and resumed his job the next day. The result of the tests has not been announced.

Newsmen accompanying the team reported that the one-line announcement of Hutchinson's return to the hospital came as a surprise to the players.

Acting Manager Dick Sisler also said he had talked with Hutchinson before the Reds left Cincinnati yesterday morning and the manager then said nothing about going to the hospital. Sisler said Hutchinson "looked pretty good."

Hutchinson underwent extensive treatments supervised by his brother, Dr. William Hutchinson, at his home town of Seattle, Wash., after the cancer was discovered. He returned to the team for spring training, and made two brief trips to Seattle prior to the tests at Christ Hospital.

Hamilton Airmen On All-Star Team

Four Hamilton Air Force Base volleyball players are on the All-Air Force team competing tonight and tomorrow in the 1964 World-Wide Interservice Volleyball Tournament at Stewart AFB, New York.

The four are S/Sgt. Jake Highland, T/Sgt. Ben Acma, A/1c Raymond Rodriques and A/2c Ray Garcia. They were members of the Air Defense Command team which won All-Air Force honors last week at Stewart.

The interservice tournament will result in selection of the top service players to compete in the Olympic volleyball trials this fall.

Marin Cyclists To Race Sunday

Ed Meagor of San Rafael and Ralph Clymer of Mill Valley will participate Sunday in an International Grand Prix motorcycle race at Cotati Raceways.

Meagor recently took his fifth straight open class win at Willow Springs and has clinched the points necessary to claim the open class national championship.

Hamilton Golfers Sweep Tourney

Hamilton Air Force Base swept the four-day 28th Air Division Golf Tourney at Ojai Country Club in Ojai, Calif., which ended Thursday.

S.Sgt. Charles Green captured first place in the championship division with scores of 67-70-78-70-285. S/Sgt. Clyde Sniffon was second with 71-73-74-74-292.

Col. Carlton J. Martin won the senior division by shooting 83-75-78-75-311, 24 strokes better than runnerup Maj. Nate Etkin.

Anaheim Stadium Contract Delayed

ANAHEIM (AP)—Signing of a contract for construction of Anaheim's 20 million dollar stadium complex to house the Los Angeles Angels baseball team has been delayed for study by a legal firm.

City officials said not only has the signing of the contract, scheduled for yesterday, been delayed but the groundbreaking ceremonies have been set back two weeks until Aug. 31.

The 45,000-seat stadium, which is to cost $16 million, is to be built by 1966 by Del Webb Construction Co. if the contract is signed.

Anaheim City Councilmen yesterday authorized expenditure of another $1.3 million for 63 acres of the 173-acre site. The latest expenditure would leave them about 52 acres still to be acquired.

GRAND THEFT

Joe Kenny, resident of Marin County has been accused of stealing bowlers from all over the County for the Winter Bowling leagues at Greenbrae Lanes. His M.O. is reported to be his friendly smile and winning personality. Joe, who is working as league organizer at Greenbrae Lanes claims he needs a few more bowlers, both beginner and expert, Men and Women, to round out the Winter league. In denying the accusations, Joe states that because Greenbrae Lanes is Marin's friendliest and highest scoring establishment most bowlers would rather switch than fight. Besides, Joe weighs 210 pounds. If you would like to bowl for fun this winter, call Joe at Greenbrae Lanes, 461-0811. Sir Francis Drake Blvd. One mile West of San Quentin.

Visitors To Cuba Under Subpeona

NEW YORK (UPI)—Four of 84 young Americans, just back from an unauthorized visit to Cuba, were under subpoena today to appear before the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

The 84 youths, who spent much of the summer in Cuba in defiance of a government ban against travel there, returned to the United States last night in two flights from Paris.

They also received letters informing them that their passports were "tentatively withdrawn" on orders of Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

The letters were distributed to the arriving Americans at Kennedy Airport by government agents and signed by Abba P. Schwartz, administrator of the State Department's Bureau of Security and Consular Affairs.

Many of the youths tore up the letters, which said their passports could either be turned over to an immigration officer at the airport or mailed to the State Department.

Their trip was sponsored by the Student Committee for Travel to Cuba, and expenses were paid by the Cuban Federation of Students. They traveled to Cuba by way of Prague, Czechoslovakia.

The subpoenas ordered the four to appear before the committee in Washington on Sept. 3.

Those subpoenaed were Albert Maher, 22, New York, son of a Texas oil millionaire; Yvonne Bond, 23, San Francisco, a student at the University of California; Edward Lemansky, 24, New York City, an organizer for the progressive labor movement, and a man identified only as Morton Slater.

Maher, a member of the executive committee of the Student Committee for Travel to Cuba, recently provided bail for William Epton, an admitted Communist indicted on charges of advocating violent overthrow of the New York state government.

Epton is a leader of Harlem's progressive labor movement whose leaders were thrown out of the state Communist Party for being too extreme. Epton also was expelled yesterday from the Negro American Labor Council.

Lemansky, one of the spokesmen for the group at an airport press conference, told reporters, "I proudly proclaim that I am a Communist and a member of the progressive labor movement doing everything I'm capable of to advance socialism in this country."

Demos Open Session —Lash Sen. Goldwater

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California's Democratic Party opened its 1964 state convention today with bruising attacks on Sen. Barry Goldwater and in relative intra-party harmony.

There were no advance indications of major fights over the party's platform, to be adopted late today, or over resolutions, slated for the party's central committee meeting tomorrow.

But Gov. Edmund G. Brown set the convention keynote by assailing favoring "instant repeal of the 20th Century."

This general theme was followed by Eugene L. Wyman, outgoing chairman and present national committeeman, and U.S. Sen. Pierre Salinger in a message delivered by Andrew Hatcher, a former Salinger aide now with the Democratic National Committee.

The party's platform, its guide for this year's general election campaign, was expected to reflect its support of anti-discrimination legislation and the Johnson administration's policies.

Negro Assemblyman Mervyn Dymally of Los Angeles was prepared with a resolution for tomorrow's session that may set off the only major dispute expected during the weekend. It would put the party on record supporting the so-called Mississippi "freedom delegation" to the Democratic National Convention.

Most party leaders, including Brown, have publicly favored no advance commitment on the disputed delegation, bidding for seating at this month's Atlantic City convention over another from the Southern state.

In a speech prepared for delivery at a luncheon meeting, Brown predicted the Democrats were "in for a scrap" from the GOP in this year's November election campaign.

Calling for a platform that "leaves no room for doubt . . . where the party stands on the great issues facing our state," Brown lashed out at Goldwater's political philosophy.

He said Goldwater's vote against President Lyndon B. Johnson's anti-poverty program made the Arizona conservative "a conscientious objector" in the war against poverty.

Salinger's message called the weekend party sessions a means of "planning the strategy that will turn California into a disaster area for extremism on Nov. 3."

Wyman, who will step down as chairman tomorrow to be succeeded by Rogert Kent of Kentfield, assailed Goldwater's record, which he said was subject to varying interpretations.

But, he said, Goldwater himself had made his record "distinctly and deliberately loud and clear.

"That record is the most grave and unprecedented challenge ever flung at the freedom and liberty which have made this noble land unique in the history of mankind," he said in his convention-opening address.

Salinger is scheduled to arrive tonight and deliver in person what is billed as a major address at a $20-a-plate dinner in his honor. U.S. Sen. Hubert Humphrey, apparent frontrunner for the party's vice presidential nomination, will keynote tomorrow's central committee meeting.

Sausalito Art Fair Shapes Up

Almost 100 artists have applied for exhibit space in the Sausalito Art Fair to be held Sept. 5, 6 and 7 at Central School grounds, according to Chamber of Commerce spokesman William Remak.

Today was set as the closing date for applications, said Remak. However, he noted that artists who had requested that applications be sent them before today would still be accepted.

Remak said that about $100 worth of plywood panels had been donated by Interbay Lumber Co., assuring enough display space for the large turnout. The artists are not charged any fee. It's expected that awards to artists will total over $500.

The Awards Jury will consist of Kay Ksanda, Sausalito, John Ihle, Mill Valley and John Lynch, Larkspur. They will make their selections on the afternoon of the opening day, Sept. 5. Hours for the show are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Zelinsky Proposal Is Due Commission

Development plans for Fred G. Zelinsky's restaurant and building and for Harbor Carriers proposed float and Dolphins will come before the Tiburon Planning Commission Monday.

The commission will meet at 8 p.m. at Del Mar School with an agenda which includes requests for an adjustment by Robert Beyries to divide in two parcels a lot at the northeast corner of Mar West Street and Las Lomas Avenue and a request for an adjustment by Helen Brandt for division into two lots of land at 4925 Paradise Drive.

REPORT TO HOME BUYERS

This is the report that has been referred to in the numerous ads throughout the Independent-Journal these last two weeks.

For those who are looking for a new way of life—a country club atmosphere — and can afford the few extra minutes a day then the beautiful green valley of Loma Verde and Marin Golf and Country Club Estates is for you.

And whether you are immediately in need of a new home or you are not ready to relocate we believe you will find this time and mileage test as carried out by the renowned firm of Pinkerton's National Detective Agency, Inc., very startling, indeed!

CONCLUSION: Commuting time between San Francisco and Loma Verde/Marin Country Club is no longer than to other principal residential areas of Marin County.

PINKERTON'S NATIONAL DETECTIVE AGENCY, Inc.

Gordon Walker & Associates		Time and Mileage Check
Office of Origin	File No.	Status
San Francisco	G-405	Continuing
Reporting Office	Report Made By	Date of Report
San Francisco	(4 Officers)	Wednesday, July 29, 1964

TIBURON:

Departed the corner of Tiburon and Beach Streets at 7:30 a.m. Drove along Tiburon Blvd. at posted speed limit to Highway 101. Proceeded on Highway 101 to toll plaza of the Golden Gate Bridge.

TOTAL MILES: 12.4 miles; TIME: 22 minutes

PEACOCK GAP:

Departed the intersection of Riviera Drive and San Marino Drive at 7:30 a.m. Drove via San Pedro Road onto 3rd Street and Grand Avenue. Made left turn following a directional sign to San Francisco which leads onto Highway 101. Drove at normal posted speed limit to the toll plaza of the Golden Gate Bridge.

TOTAL MILES: 17.1 miles; TIME: 24 minutes

ENTRY TO LOMA VERDE:

Departed the intersection of Ignacio Blvd. and Highway 101 at 7:30 a.m. Drove on Highway 101 at the posted speed limit and proceeded to the toll plaza of the Golden Gate Bridge.

TOTAL MILES: 20.8 miles; TIME: 28½ minutes

SLEEPY HOLLOW:

Departed the junction of Irving Road and Butterfield Road at 7:30 a.m. Proceeded by way of Butterfield Road, Sir Francis Drake Blvd. and Highway 101 at the posted speed limit. Arrived at the toll plaza of the Golden Gate Bridge.

TOTAL MILES: 17.6 miles; TIME: 37 minutes

DESIGNED FOR WOMEN
In Forest Park you'll find the charm and convenience you would have designed for yourself . . .

A "CONTROL CENTER" KITCHEN.
. . . imagine being able to look out to the street, supervise children in the family room, oversee table setting in the dining room, watch the play in the back yard and have a look-see down the hall to bath and children's bedrooms . . . without ever stopping whatever you may be doing in the kitchen.

A "MUD ROOM."
It's the greatest home-cleaning invention since the vacuum sweeper. Kids (and their parents, too) enter the home through this convenient passage and drop off dirty clothes, muddy shoes, etc. It's a great work saver for Mom.

38-FOOT ENTERTAINING AREA . . .
when you want it. The entire living area of the house opens up by means of a folding wall. Or fold the wall into place and you have a formal living/dining room on one side with the children's family room enclosed to the rear.

CLOSETS . . . CLOSETS . . . CLOSETS.
WE'VE GOT 'EM. (1) A hall closet for guests; (2) a giant linen closet; and (3) a real "Fibber McGee" for vacuums, brooms, extra table leaves, etc. There are built-in cabinets over the laundry area, too.

THE LORD AND LADY of this home have a most thoughtfully designed bathroom, with a private area for M'lady's primping, and a completely separated shower for "singing" by M'Lord.

FLOOR TO CEILING HEIGHT
windows and doors. Elegant . . . and wonderful for ventilation, light, etc.

4-"CAR" GARAGE!
We did it. This 21x24-foot garage actually holds four cars. We have a photo in our sales office, reprinted from the I-J, to prove it. Maybe you don't have 4 cars . . . but imagine the storage space! !

MASTER TV . . .
It's wonderful. From a master TV antenna on a nearby hill, you will receive 5 Bay Area stations "like you were next door." Also fabulous FM reception. It's all wired into the house underground. No forest of antennas to block the view of surrounding tree-covered hills. Utilities are underground, too.

This beautiful 4-bedroom home designed by architect Gordan A. Phillips, A.I.A., is priced from

Ross Calling

Lovely Ross, an area where the roots of trees and families grow deeply. Here, nestled upon a Lawrence Halprin-landscaped — level — ¼ acre, we have discovered a charming split-level 2 BR (easily expandable) home with a captivating personality. The plush carpeted L.R. has large picture windows that reflect the glow from the heavy cut-stone frplc. Thru white louvered doors, you see the sunken D.R.; its Virginia elegance and custom detail have a magnolia-white dream-quality. Dream-a-drams flow with the greatest of ease from the nearby recessed wet-bar. The adjacent informal Fam. Rm. with black wrought iron hood over a red brick BBQ is another delight. In turn, the gay early-American-decor of the 3 Rm. guest cottage, will make your teen-ager reach for a fife and drum. See it early. Just Listed! Exclusive!

SANTA CRUZ IS BOOMING

We are only 13 months away from the opening of the University of California at Santa Cruz. In the future this ultra-modern educational plant will have a capacity of 27,500 students. The economy of Santa Cruz is already starting to feel its effect. Now is the time to invest in this booming area. Drive down and investigate one or two of the following properties.

1. A modern four-plex with wall-to-wall carpeting, built - in kitchens, living rooms & 2 bedrooms each. The rents now are $90 per month, but what will the future bring. Sale Price $41,500
2. A six-plex lot right in the middle of the beach area. A real bargain at $18,900. The owner will trade for San Francisco property.
3. 80 acres of beautiful mountain property with many, many building sites. $800 per acre is much too low for this property but that's what it's selling for.
4. An 18 unit motel + owner's home ONLY ONE BLOCK from the boardwalk, and on the main thoroughfare, to the beach. All units are newly furnished. Gross income for 1963 was $18,000 and this year will be much higher. Sale price is $129,000.

For more information on the above properties and many more write or phone BOB FRANCHINI, Brunjes and Fallis, Realtors, 333 Soquel Ave., Santa Cruz. Phone Area Code 408-423-4261 or 423-1052.

BUILDERS & INVESTORS

Everyone Else, Too!

On occasion all of us have been astounded at the ridiculous prices many parcels of land have been sold for. But time has proven that we are the ridiculous ones who can't foresee what will happen one day, one year, or 5 years hence. So our advice is ACT NOW!

STATISTICS • Excellent Novato location • Prime residential • 7 acres at $5,000 per acre • Suitable for dividing into three building sites or retaining as an estate with privacy and panoramic view. Close in location.

21 ACRES • Outstanding • For the elite or "Wise men" • Road through • Water in • Make your offer, owner will consider selling 2 acres, 5, 10 or all.

PROFESSIONAL & ADMINISTRATIVE. There have been many comments regarding this valuable property • Priced at $180,000 for the entire parcel. Sound high? See for yourself • Look at the facts • Check out the potential • Be honest and there will be no doubt that this fine land right across from the Civic Center will be the best investment you have ever made. The frontage on San Pablo Road, approximately an 18,000 sq. ft. parcel with an older home, clean & liveable, is presently zoned R-3 G-2 and can possibly be rezoned or sold separately. Behind it an additional parcel with easement access from San Pablo Road is Zoned P & A. A marvelous site. For additional information, please contact us.

3½ ACRES • Buy this if you want an unsurpassed Tamalpais Mountain view, and desire absolute privacy. • A little steep, both site & price, but worth every penny.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

VAN DELLEN

Voodoo deaths have occurred among primitive people and usually are explained by intense fear, suggestion, or feeling of utter hopelessness. A similar phenomenon has been reported in wild animals; some have dropped dead when caged, with no possible means of escape. Is modern man too sophisticated to succumb to these psychological pressures? You can be the judge of the following report that appeared in the journal, Psychosomatic Medicine:

A few months ago a middle-aged man was admitted to a VA hospital because of asthma. He was semi-comatose but responded to asthma remedies and was discharged two weeks later. He was hospitalized many times during the next six months for the same condition.

AFTER THE LAST visit he went directly from the hospital to his mother's home and within a few hours was wheezing again. He returned to the hospital and psychiatric consultation was advised when he became "depressed and voiced feelings of utter futility and hopelessness."

The history of his illness disclosed that the man's mother made all the family decisions, was always right, and never met a situation she could not control. He had no education but owned a night club financed by his mother. It prospered and he became a successful business man.

HE RECEIVED a good offer for the club and when he told his mother, she said, "Do this and something dire will happen to you." Two days later he developed asthma. His mother became angry when he finally sold the business. While undergoing treatment for his asthma, he frequently reaffirmed his fears of his mother's prediction.

He decided to reinvest the money in a business in which mother was not included—and told her so over the phone. In her parting remarks, she reminded him that regardless of what the physicians said he should remember her warning and be prepared for the prediction of "dire results." He was dead within an hour.

(Dr. Van Dellen will answer questions on medical topics if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.)

IMAGINATIVE DESCRIPTION

M. A. F. writes: What would cause gnats before the eyes and tiny golden flecks like Christmas sparklers?

REPLY

Gnats and sparklers are quite a combination. Migraine headache and various eye and neurological disorders are preceded by or associated with the appearance of strange lights. Floaters may be mistaken for gnats. These are small blood clots that float about in the fluid of the eye. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on spots before the eyes.

ENLARGED GLAND

J. M. writes: How is benign enlargement of the prostate treated in men between 30 and 40?

REPLY

Enlargement due to infection is treated with massage and an antibiotic or a sulfonamide. Surgery is needed when the enlargement is associated with the aging process.

ABNORMAL ORGAN

Mrs. B. writes: In what way might a split uterus affect pregnancy?

REPLY

There are different types of double uteruses and some function better than others during pregnancy. When both sides are small, pregnancy often leads to spontaneous rupture of the uterus.

NEARSIGHTEDNESS

V. F. writes: Can myopia be cured by operation?

REPLY

No. Shortsightedness is caused by abnormalities in the size of the eyeball. Eyeglasses or corneal lenses will correct the defect.

Lukemia Study Money Is Sought

By CHARLES SCHAEFFER
Advance News Service

WASHINGTON—Congress will be urged to approve an accelerated research program to press surprising new scientific findings that could hasten development of an anti-leukemia vaccine.

The findings, as yet unpublished, suggest that scientists at two research institutes have apparently succeeded in growing human leukemia virus particles in test tubes. If so, the advance could lead to practical production of the particles—the first step toward development of a vaccine.

Scientific experts here are excited by this and a series of other recent developments, but they caution that many hurdles still block the full understanding and prevention of the fatal blood cancer. One of the biggest obstacles is proving whether the virus-like agents found in leukemia victims' blood actually cause the disease or are hitch-hiking opportunists that appear after the ailment strikes. Similar particles have been found in the blood of persons without leukemia.

Multiplication of the particles in the laboratory and isolation of similar particles in cow's milk and from the blood of some cats and dogs, however, is significant enough to warrant further investigation.

The first move in the speedup is expected to come in a proposed increase in the budget of the national institutes of health, now pending before the Senate subcommittee on health appropriations.

Chairman Lister Hill (D-Ala.) said he expects to propose a five million-dollar increase to exploit the new findings in leukemia virus research. In an interview, he said he is impressed with the import of the fast-breaking developments of recent weeks. He said he recently talked with Dr. Wendell Stanley, a Nobel Prize winner who stressed the need for the research step up.

The health service actually wanted 25 million dollars over two years to follow up the progress, but the administration's hold-the-line budget policies pared the first-year addition to five million dollars. According to one report, president Lyndon B. Johnson was prepared to ask for the money in a supplemental request to the current budget. Instead, budget strategists agreed the money should either be squeezed out of the current budget or added by congress to the new money bill.

Investigators want the money to construct laboratories to protect workers who would be handling large quantities of viruses in high concentrations. Viruses can be seen only by electron microscopes. Money would be used to finance investigations in various parts of the country.

An unpublicized background memorandum by the National Cancer Institute here confirms that human particles are apparently growing in at least two laboratories. The concentrations are still low. The memo adds: "If this be the case, one may anticipate practical production of of particles in the near future."

The laboratories reportedly are those of Chas. Pfizer and Co., New York City, and Roswell Park Memorial Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

The review of leukemia progress indicates that investigators have produced pre-leukemia symptoms in monkeys with injections from human patients. Development of real leukemia by the monkeys would be a key exhibit in the attempt to prove the viral origin of the disease.

The virus-like particles isolated from cow's milk are shaped like "squash racket." Authorities say the discovery is no cause for alarm. They point out that millions drink milk, but leukemia is a rare disease, afflicting about 15,000 persons a year and may, of course, stem from many other causes.

It may turn out, too, that the particles are inactive or unable to jump from one specie to another, from cows to animals in this case. Though the particles are found in herds of cows with inherited leukemia, the microscopic agents show up in cows without the disease, too. About 30 per cent of one herd, roped off for research, had inherited bovine blood cancer, one source reported.

Researchers of the South Jersey Medical Research Foundation and at the University of Pennsylvania reportedly have found some of the particles in samples of milk. There is also a report that they have been found in commercial pasturized milk.

Some experts believe pasturization should kill such viral remnants, but other research with mouse leukemia shows the virus to be rather resistant to heat. Sometime ago Drs. John B. Moloney and Lloyd W. Law, of the National Cancer Institute demonstrated that mouse leukemia can be passed to infant mice via the mother's milk.

Aside from the proposed stepped-up research, there are no reported plans to take counter measures against milk, which has an impressive safety record, authorities here said.

Scientists are not ignoring the possibility that dogs and house cats may harbor viruses, too. Nothing has been proved here. But this is another research avenue due for exploration in the quest to unravel the puzzle of leukemia.

McCABE MEETS PRESIDENT

George E. McCabe of Santa Rosa, Democratic nominee for Congress in the First District (Redwood Empire), confers briefly with President Lyndon B. Johnson in the White House. McCabe also met Secretary of State Dean Rusk, presidential assistant Sargent Shriver, Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman and other cabinet members during a congressional conference in Washington, D.C., last week.

Marin Plays The Recorder

Leo Christiansen Sparks Interest In Old Instrument

By MARY HILL

Leo Christiansen is well on his way toward becoming the "Pied Piper" of Marin.

Unlike the piper of Hamlin, he does not sport colored rags and patches. He does not need to. His music is colorful enough to lure the children—and their parents—to join his large, enthusiastic entourage.

On the other hand, like the original pied piper, his instrument is the pipe. More precisely, it is the recorder, or longitudinal flute, an instrument not very different from the penny whistle.

IT IS AN easy instrument to play; "the easiest instrument to play badly," some say.

What's more, it is inexpensive. A good quality instrument of soprano pitch can be purchased for less than $10—certainly a minimum investment in music.

How far back the ancestral recorder—a hollow stick with holes—can be presumed to accompany mankind is not known. It is entirely possible that such a primitive instrument as this is very, very old—dating perhaps so far back that its perishable remains have wholly disappeared.

THE RECORDER as it is known today was most popular from the 15th through the 18th centuries, when it was widely used as an orchestral, chamber and solo instrument. For a time it joined company with the tromba, the sackbut, the timbrel, and other forgotten instruments.

In recent years—in this country chiefly in the 1950s and 60s, but in earlier decades in Europe—it has been resuscitated, and now enjoys a place in the sun that is no doubt greater, in terms of numbers of players, than it has ever known.

Leo Christiansen himself is a proselyte of the 1950s.

"I HEARD Pete Seeger play a tenor recorder," he recalls, "and I was fascianted. He played a simple tune—I believe it was 'Greensleeves.' Whatever it was, it converted me. I went right out, bought an instrument, took to the woods and taught myself to play."

That he taught himself well is attested by his present schedule.

He has been holding classes at Park, Homestead Valley, Tamalpais Valley, Marin Terrace, and Alto in the public school system, as well as at the Marin Country Day School, the San Francisco Conservatory of Music, and the College of Marin. The first week of August found him serving on the faculty of the Mendocino Seminar, held in the seaside village of Mendocino.

THE SEMINAR was the first of its kind to be held in the West.

Two similar seminars are held elsewhere in the country, one at Goddard College, Vt., the other at Interlaken, Mich. These two and the Mendocino Seminar are sponsored by the American Recorder Society as a national event.

The national society was encouraged to establish a seminar in California partly because of the intense interest shown by the local Marin chapter, in which Leo Christiansen is a charter member and prime mover. On its own, the Marin chapter has held local seminars that have attracted persons of worldwide fame in the recorder field.

TRUE, THE recorder is an easy instrument. But one cannot master it well enough to become a concert recordist simply by learning in the woods by one's self—unless he is a Leo Christiansen.

Most beginning students need the guidance of a teacher; in Marin, that teacher is very likely Leo Christiansen.

Some people, especially adults, learn to play the recorder for the joy of playing the recorder. Children, on the other hand, are often given the recorder as an introduction to the whole field of music.

"THE BIGGEST advantage to the recorder for teaching purposes," according to Christiansen, "is that it brings the pupil into immediate contact with music. There is no problem of reach, of embouchure (the proper lip position), of actually producing the noise as there is in other instruments. A student can blow a good tone almost immediately.

"He does not have to increase his physical size or develop his lip or struggle with difficult problems in muscular coordination—which, after all, may be too hard for small or growing children. He can at once apply himself to the problem of making music rather than making a noise. This gives him a great feeling of accomplishment."

"On the other hand," he will continue, for the discussion is a favorite of his, "if the time comes that the student wishes to transfer to a more mechanical instrument, he will already know the fundamentals of music, and can spend his valuable early weeks getting acquainted with his new instrument."

OBVIOUSLY, Christiansen was well versed in music and musicology before he embraced the recorder so ardently. In fact, his "trade-in," so to speak, was an organ.

MARIN'S "Pied Piper," Leo Christiansen, is self-taught on the recorder. But he had behind him a rich background in music. Now the Corte Madera resident, seen here playing the alto recorder, helps others to master his favorite instrument. His students include classes in the public schools and at Marin Country Day School. THE SOPRANO RECORDER is the easiest to learn to play, and most students begin with it. Some eventually learn to make music on the entire recorder family. Getting in a bit of practice on the soprano prior to class time are Marin Country Day School students Amanda Wornum and Andrew Towne.

The CANADIAN WEEKLY magazine estimated that 8000 doctors in the United States and Canada are using battery operated tape recorders when making house calls. They used the recorders by placing them beside them in the seat of the car to record pertinent information on each case—type of call, symptoms, treatment (including details on perscriptions) and other facts of importance. The tape recordings are later transcribed into the patients office file.

In addition to the mobile transcribing use, there are probably 50,000 doctors who use tape recorders to listen to monthly digests of more than 6,000 technical and medical journals to keep up with the important happenings. The precorded tapes are something like radio newscasts, containing summaries and the pertinent points from the most important articles published each month. The tapes can be played while the doctor drives to and from work, or on an office recorder 'between calls and patients, or at home during his leisure hours. The prerecorder tape costs are tax deductable as is a portion of the tape recorder.

In Chicago, police and firemen have gone modern and eliminated a lot of red-tape by use of standard recording tape. The tedious and illegible logs kept by dispatchers and desk men are no longer required since all incoming calls are tape recorded. Hurried calls by nervous witnesses that hang up to soon are no longer lost. The tape can be played back and the hurried address made out. False fire reporters think twice when they know their voices are being recorded. One chief in the area believes that the use of the tape recorder has improved tactics in the detection and capture of criminals.

In the Midwest, two ingenious parents get their wandering 10 year old to meals on time by playing a tape recording of the ice-cream wagon chimes. They amplify it to penetrate the neighborhood. I wonder how many other 10 year olds they get for dinner?

Inexpensive mylar 1½ mil tape in 1,200 foot 7 inch reels is now available in colored reels and boxes. The tape comes with matching colored leader spliced onto the beginning and end of the tape, and with matching colored binders to identify the box. The colors available are yellow, blue, red, green, and orange. Now you can catalog your tapes by color, pops on one color, classics on another, etc.

The 'Pied Piper' Of Marin

keyboard music, his background that of a church organist. He came to the recorder well prepared with knowledge of bigger pipes.

Leo Christiansen's comprehension of music is not limited to his ability as a performer. He has considerable academic knowledge, as well, and is an expert on Baroque musical literature. This stands him in good stead as a recorder authority, as the Baroque period saw the full flowering of the recorder as a performing instrument. Indeed, at the Mendocino Seminar, one of the courses offered is "Solo Literature of the Baroque."

THE BEGINNING recordist quickly finds himself faced with music by the great names of the musical past: Bach, Telemann, Handel—to name some of the Baroque composers.

The Mozarts, both father and son, wrote music well adapted to the recorder that the young player may play during his first year of study.

Leo Christiansen has himself arranged a number of the classics for the recorder, principally for ensemble play. One such arrangement—"Gavotte from Don Juan" by Christoph von Gluck, a composer of the 18th century—has just been released by Panpipes Press as their fourth publication for recorder ensemble. It is scored for three recorders.

HE COMPOSES original works, as well. Most of his compositions are aimed at students and are designed to give the student a piece he can play with satisfaction and facility, even though he is virtually a new-hatched chick in the field of music.

One, for example, called "Pieces for Six Notes," is a speedy little dance that can be performed readily by young players before they have encountered the complexities of so much as an octave. These young players may be but six weeks old, musically, but in their number may be persons 60 years and more, chronologically.

But though Leo Christiansen may call beginning students of any age, he is the pied piper, and, like his prototype, he particularly calls the children. Elementary school children are his specialty.

"Music is not a frill," he insists. "It is a part of life—a major part. The child should have as sound a musical background as he has a background in any academic subject."

THE RECORDER as it is known today was extremely popular in England in Elizabethan and Restoration times. Samuel Pepys wrote in 1668 that he had bought a recorder "the sound of it being, of all sounds in the world, most pleasing to me." In fact, he was so pleased that he hired a well-known musician, Thomas Greeting, to teach his wife so that the Pepys might play duets.

THE RECORDER has the advantages of being interesting, inexpensive and portable. Its music can be enjoyed just about anywhere. Photographer Sarah Ann Davis, left, and writer Mary Hill, Mill Valley residents, demonstrate this with an impromptu recital in an alpine setting at the foot of the Minarets high in the Sierra. A passing Sierra Club climber was drafted as the photographer.

IN THE GARDEN of the Tony Mederios home at 1757 Bridgeway Sausalito, this old pump has supplied water fed from a spring for many years. And it is still very much in action, as Mrs. Tony Mederios demonstrates here as she pumps cold, clear water from it. Other Sausalitans, too, enjoy the advantage of a water supply from the natural sources that abound in the area. (Independent-Journal photo)

The Springs And Wells Of Sausalito

Natural Water Sources Have Played Major Role In The City's History

By BRUCE COLEMAN

Sausalito is a spa where, for years, visitors have come to take the water.

San Franciscans took it.

Revenue cutters (now the Coast Guard) took it.

The Alhambra Water Co. took it.

EVEN TODAY—while the city gets its water supply from lakes around Mount Tamalpais via the Marin Municipal Water District—the shirts of many townsmen are washed in water taken from the creeks.

When San Francisco water systems failed in the 1906 fire and earthquake, Sausalito supplied H_2O, via barge, across the bay.

"San Francisco had plenty of water, but it wasn't potable," says Irvine Low, who worked from 1906 until retirement a few years ago for the Sausalito Municipal Water System and the Marin Municipal Water District. "The water was sold for four bits for five gallons."

SPRINGS with willows growing near them gave the city its name, first Sausalitos, for "little willows" in Spanish, which became Sausalito.

Wells, many of them covered, still remain behind homes in the city.

Fritz Perry has a well but no water in it, said Low. The Caledonia Market has a well under the store, and one Sausalitan gets water for his fish pond from a spring.

Earl Pereira of 76 Upper Crescent has a tap to spring water which runs down from the hillside and is captured in a tank in his backyard.

PEREIRA, who said this water has been used for years by his family, conjectures that it runs down from Alpine Dam.

"Where else could it come from?" he asks.

Fred Nau, Pereira's father-in-law and a retired stevedore who lives on 18 Upper Crescent Avenue, remembers as a boy the water coming down past his house, first by ditch and then by pipe, to be stored in the Francis Silva tank at West Street and Crescent.

And, although the tank has disappeared, Nau still uses the water to raise lettuce and tomatoes in his garden behind his house. The water comes from a spring on Sausalito Boulevard, hits a trap, then is piped to his house by pipe and hose.

"I'VE HAD this system since 1938," says Nau.

He picked up a hose and squirted water onto his lettuce.

"It all runs by gravity," he says. Then he showed us another hose on the upper side of the garden and several large tanks filled with water.

THE TANKS are used in case it gets dry. The spring never dries up but "in that dry year about four years ago, it got down low."

Nau's late second cousin, Capt. Leonard Story, ran water boats from Sausalito to San Francisco from 1850 to 1862, and Nau's father once had a well at Fourth and Main streets.

Nau showed us a clipping from a newspaper about the death of a man named Charles Brown.

Brown, the clipping read, arrived in San Francisco in 1857 and found there was a great demand for buckets because the city had no water system. "Most of its water came from Sausalito and Tiburon. It was floated across the bay and distributed about town on mule back."

BROWN WENT into the bucket-making business.

There is still a well at Valley and Second Street that was once called "the main well."

Water from it is used by the Chinese laundry, La Blanche,

SAUSALITO, circa 1900—This was a pastoral scene in Old Town in about 1900. Crescent Avenue (center) was dirt. Water, which is still used for gardening by Fred Nau of 18 Upper Crescent Avenue, came downhill from a spring, crossed Crescent and went into the water tank of Francis Silva (lower center) on West Street and Crescent. This tank provided people in the immediate vicinity with water. At water's edge (center), is the Valhalla, a German beer garden, which supplied people with beer and chowder. Angel Island is in the distance.

at 109 Second Street. Recently, when excavation was being done for the new Marian Frick shopping center, a cap fell off into the well, causing a small avalanche of water to flood part of the La Blanche, located below.

Mrs. Frick has decided to erect a laundry over the well on her property, according to her architect, Richard Hiatt.

THERE ARE covered wells, according to Low, in the 500 block on Richardson, on Sausalito Boulevard and San Carlos and Harrison avenues.

Elliott's Laundry and Cleaners uses spring water in its operations, pumped from a creek a block and a half away from the business at 107 Caledonia, and stored in huge tanks at the back of the building. Thus the wash water enters the softening processes there already considerably softer than the water usually available to the townspeople.

THESE TANKS BEHIND Elliott's Laundry and Cleaners on Caledonia in Sausalito hold spring water that has been pumped from a creek a block and a half away. Thus the clothing of many Sausalitans is still washed in this naturally soft water, although it is still further softened by processes at the laundry. The system has been in use for many decades. (Independent-Journal photo)

Sausalitans Still Enjoy Cold Purity Of Spring Waters

Tony Mederios still uses a hand pump in his garden at 1757 Bridgeway, supplying water fed from a spring.

Revenue and milk boats got water from Rudy Pettersen's in the 500 block of Richardson Street once, water lines being run to the corner of Bridgeway at the boardwalk. Pipes piped water to a point where tugs, and other boats could collect it.

IN 1900, relates Low, the Shanghai Valley Tunnel was built behind the American Distilling Co. "It was a wonderful water supply."

Purity Water Co. had the contract to buy water from the spring. Then, about 15 years ago, Alhambra Water Co. took over from Purity. Alhambra used the tunnel to bottle for drinking water up to about 1959.

"The reason we stopped," says James C. Murphy, Alhambra president, "is the tunnel began to have a lot of cave-ins. It was too costly to keep it open to get to it. Now we get spring water from Saratoga."

WATER FROM Shanghai Tunnel, so called because Chinese clam diggers used to live near Pine Hill Station below the tunnel, was used for boilers of Liberty ships built at Marinship during the war, according to Ralph K. Pedersen.

Besides wells, cisterns and springs, Sausalito also has caves.

One of these is above Waldo Tunnel at Appetite Rock, a landmark known to many boys and hikers.

THERE IS another on Main Street and another on Sausalito Boulevard, the latter having an opening about 40 feet wide. They are disguised by foliage, according to Pedersen, and the one on Sausalito Boulevard is closed by an iron gate.

In a recent copy of the magazine, Westways, there is a story by Idwal Jones entitled, "The Water Bringer." The story tells of William A. Richardson having built a dock and a large water tank into which water was fed from inland springs.

In Hurricane Gulch exists a stone cistern, an appropriate memorial to El Aguadero, the water bringer, the author writes.

OLD-TIMERS in Sausalito, including Low, cannot say just which cistern (or well) the writer is talking about.

Recently a Sausalito resident complained to the city about a poor storm drain which, she said, caused water to run under her home. A city official said it is believed that the water is from underground springs.

Despite this, as Fire Chief Mathew J. Perry likes to say in fun, "We've got a lot of characters walking around here who never touch water—either way."

THESE PLUMP GARDEN vegetables can have all the water they desire—without any cost to their grower. They're the pride of Fred Nau of 18 Upper Crescent, Sausalito, who makes generous garden use of the spring water piped to his home. Here Aunie Rankin, a tenant in the Nau apartments, does a bit of watering for her landlord.

THESE STORAGE BARRELS in the yard behind the Fred Nau apartments on Upper Crescent, Sausalito, hold spring water that has been piped in for use in the garden and for some domestic purposes. Nau says he has had his private water system since 1938. Checking the water supply here is Aunie Rankin, a tenant in the Nau apartments. (Independent-Journal photos)

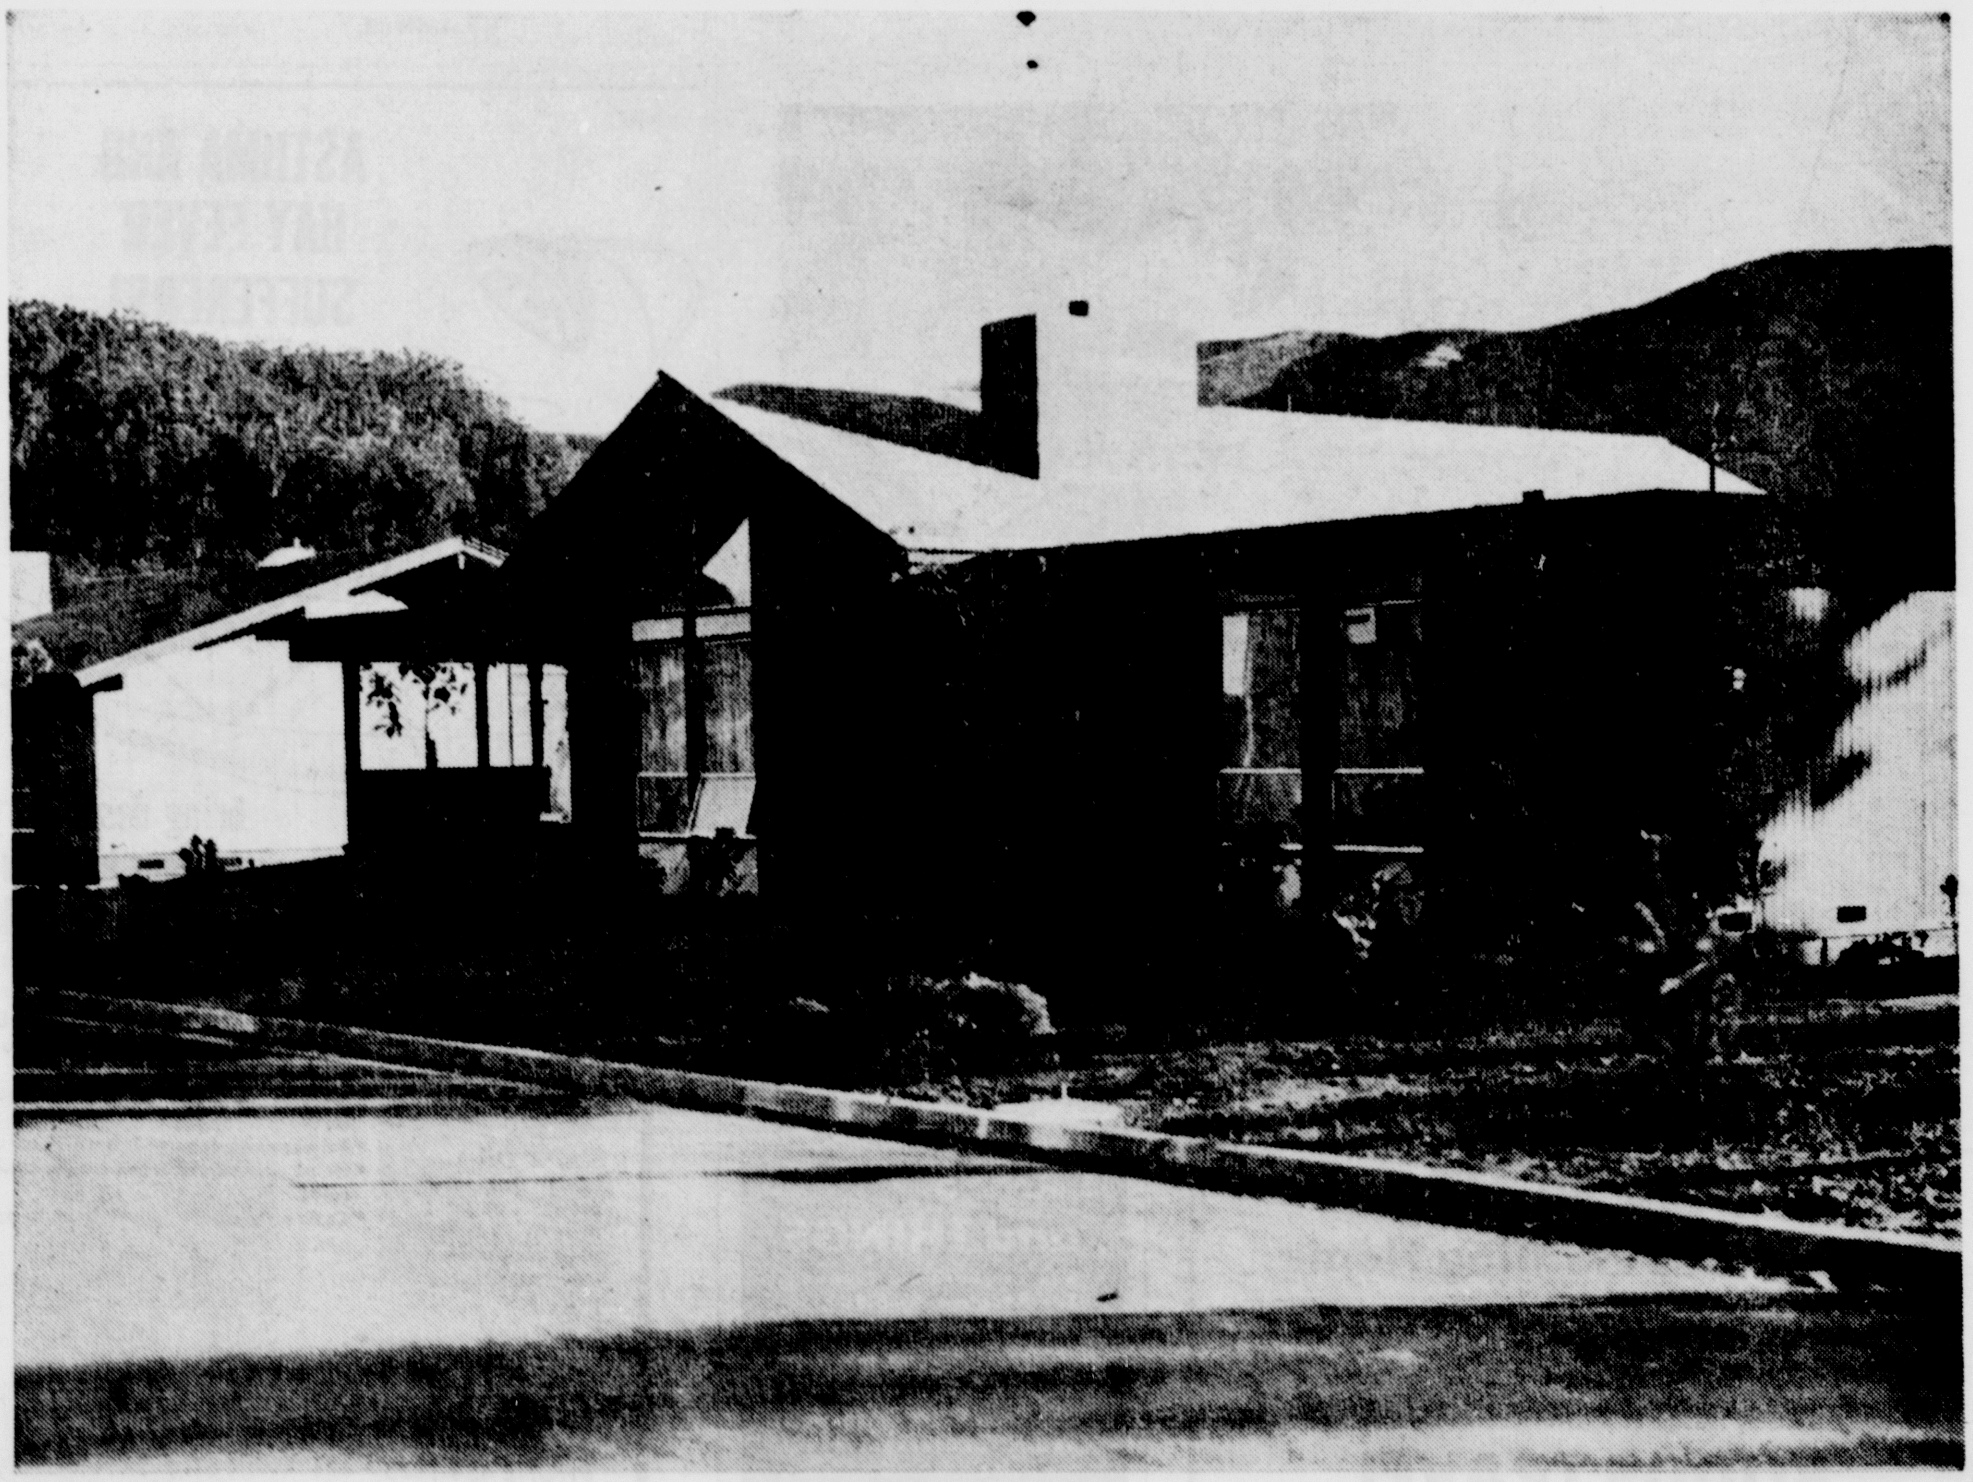
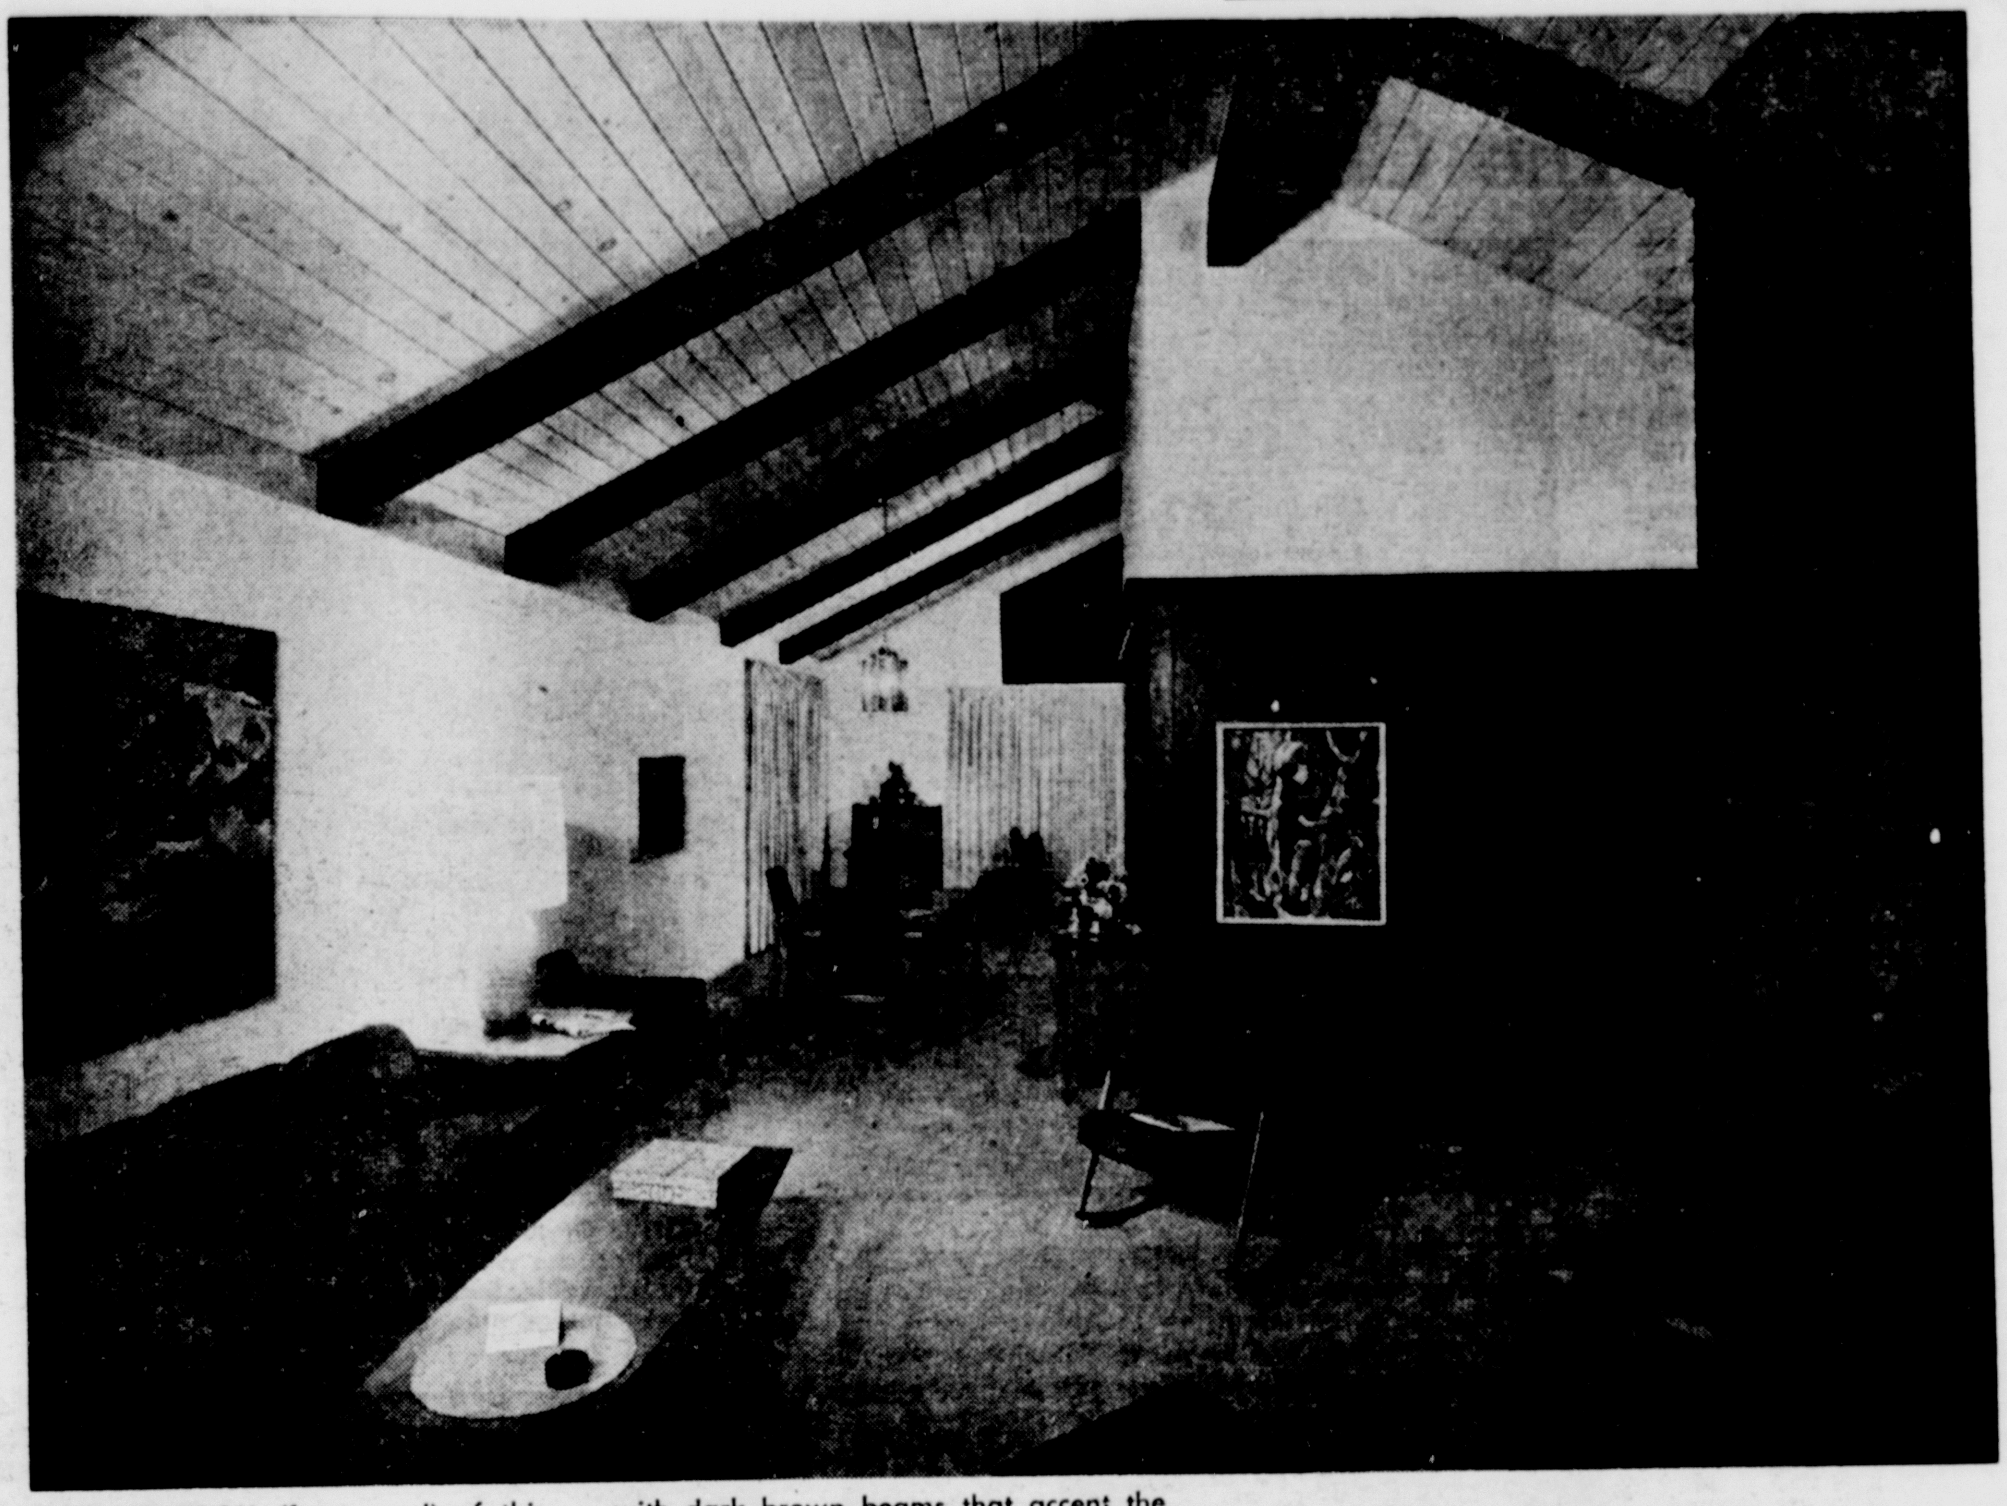
THE HOMES OF Tam Terrace are nestled on the crest of a ridge that projects into upper Tamalpais Valley, yet the houses are only six and a half miles from the Golden Gate Bridge. The single street is a gently curving cul-de-sac, an important safety factor for families with children.



ALL EXTERIORS in the Tam Terrace homes in upper Tamalpais Valley are resawn redwood, cedar or fir, and are finished in low-maintenance stains that blend pleasantly with the surroundings. Over window panels are a bright accent color. Great variety is achieved through use of a wide range of stain colors. (Photos by Pierre Atlan)



THE LIVING ROOM (foreground) of this Tam Terrace model home is completely out of the traffic pattern. It is a comfortable room, richly paneled in walnut and with dark brown beams that accent the light walls and clerestory windows. The dining room adjoins the living area, and beyond it is the family room.

A Tranquil Tract That's Close To The Gate Bridge

Tam Terrace is Marin County's closest new-home subdivision to San Francisco, being just six and a half miles from the Golden Gate Bridge.

The developers boast that "the Tam Terrace commuter is relaxed at home while others still are bucking traffic."

TAM TERRACE homes are being built on the crest of a ridge which projects from Shoreline Highway through a grove of eucalyptus trees into upper Tamalpais Valley.

The single street of this 36-home subdivision is a gently curving cul-de-sac that will offer a safer play area for balls and bikes, as there will be no through traffic.

These homes have been carefully planned to make living easier for mother, according to San Rafael architect Gordon A. Phillips, who designed the Tam Terrace three and four-bedroom plans.

mother when the living room is located out of the traffic pattern. With the addition of sliding glass doors to the side of the family room, shoppers return home to face the shortest possible haul of packages to the kitchen. The laundry has been located in bedroom wing, where most soiled things originate, thus eliminating unnecessary steps and carrying.

Another design feature is the master bath arrangement which has been separated into two private areas to eliminate any conflict of interests.

The toilet and shower occupies one area, completely enclosed. The open, outer area includes clothes storage as well as a huge mirror, lights, and lavatory built into a large vanity.

The architect points out that this is a great step forward over the old-fashioned and steamy bathroom.

TAM TERRACE colors are harmonious and "in balance," making an easy home to decorate. Skydomes eliminate dark hallways and baths. Cabinet interiors are stained, not raw wood.

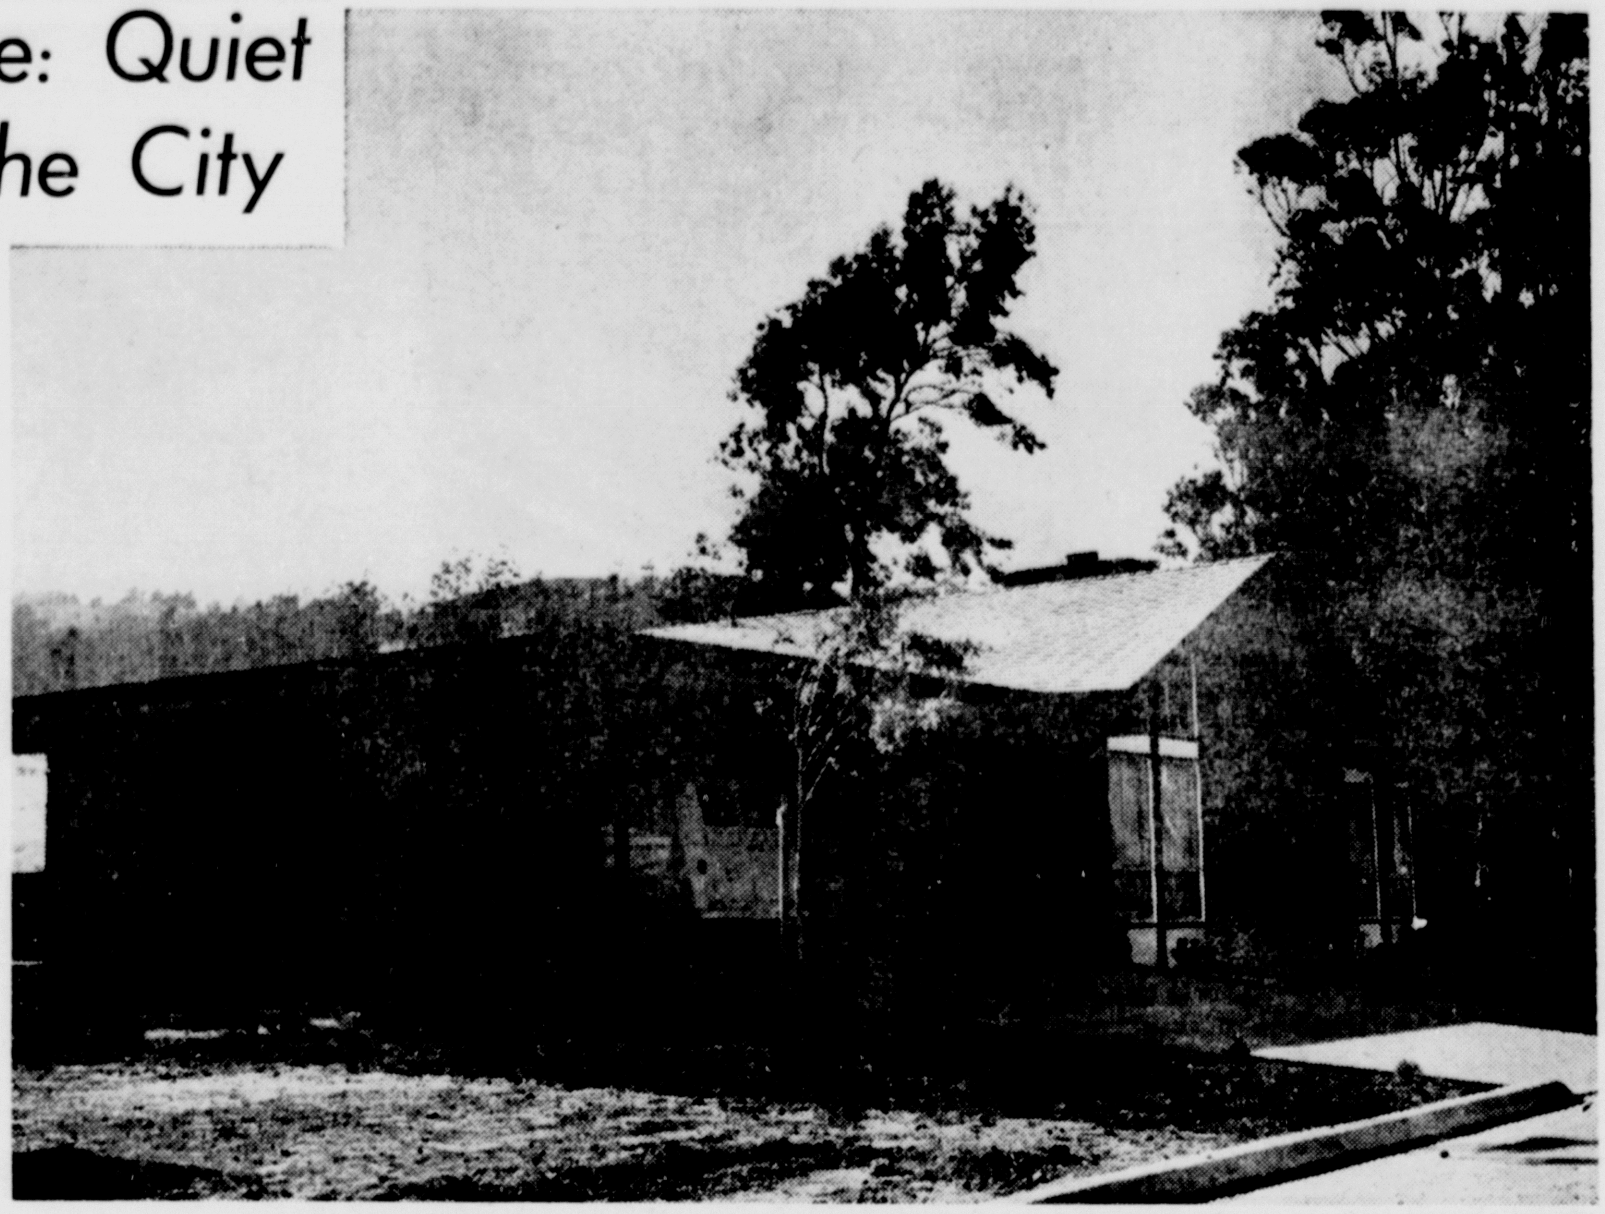
Wall-to-wall carpeting in living, dining rooms, halls and bedrooms reduces after-move-in costs and mutes the sounds of family living.

Drives and walks are exposed aggregate.

Kitchen cabinets are faced with wear-resistant formica, a life-saver as to maintainance.

EXTERIORS are stained redwood, cedar and fir.

The Tam Terrace model home has been furnished by Scandanavian Designs of San Rafael and is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at 24 Chamberlain Court, Tam Valley. Ross Valley Savings and Loan is the financial backer, and Bell Associates the sales agent.



A GROVE OF tall eucalyptus trees guards the entrance to Tam Terrace where homes hug the terrain and are easily accessible. Each house has a two-car port, large enclosed storage area and sundeck.

YOU'RE IN THE master bedroom of the Tam Terrace model home decorated by Scandanavian Designs of San Rafael. Architect Gordon A. Phillips has provided both three and four-bedroom floor plans for the subdivision—Marin's closest new-home tract to the Golden Gate Bridge.

HERE'S another view of the living room of the Tam Terrace model home, showing the handsome fireplace. Wall-to-wall-carpeting covers floors in the living and dining areas, the halls and the bedrooms.

West Marin: Riding Country

By DON KEOWN

There will be no Marinites riding in the equestrian events at this year's Olympic Games in Tokyo.

But officers of the Inverness Equestrians have hopes things will be different in 1968.

The organization is in the second-year of a four-year program aimed at polishing the skills of its members in the combined training events.

"And we are hopeful," says board member and vice president Col. David A. Watt Jr., "that some of our younger members will become interested enough to go on and develop themselves to the point where they will be candidates for the American Olympic team in 1968."

THE TRAINING program, however, is just one part of an extensive calendar of activities carried on by the Inverness Equestrians, an organization now just three years old.

It was formed in late June of 1961 with Vladimir Nevl, Mrs. Stewart Purcell and Mrs. Billy Burke as the founders.

"We had a mutual interest in the riding of horses, and we knew that the terrain in West Marin was ideal for cross country events," Mrs. Purcell recalls. "And since there was no organization in our area conducting quite the kind of program we had in mind, we decided a new group was needed."

NEVL, THE Equestrians president, had a rich background in equestrian events, having ridden first in Europe, then in Australia where he trained with that country's Olympic team.

Growth of the new organization was slow at first. And in December of 1961, when the group staged its first small show, there still were but five members.

Now the Equestrians boast 27 members, ranging in ages from 11 to 60. Most are Marin residents, although some live in San Francisco and one comes from Walnut Grove. Professions represented include a doctor, a lawyer, a teacher, an artist, a bank executive, a restaurateur, a veterinarian, a number of schoolboys and schoolgirls, etc.

MOST OF the members own only a single horse. A few own two. One has five.

The membership is devoted largely to English riding, although Jean Salisbury of Walnut Grove also competes in the Western events.

For Western events, the heavier stock saddle with a horn is used. For English riding, the saddle is lighter and without the horn. The English saddle is especially suited to hunting and jumping, the Western gear to events conducted over more level terrain.

WHILE THE thoroughbred is favored by the Inverness Equestrians, virtually any kind of riding horse can be trained to the English saddle, Colonel Watt says.

The colonel is a retired cavalryman. He began his military career when the cavalry was mounted on horses, and ended it after mechanization had replaced steeds with tanks.

But his affection for horses remained and causes him to now take an active role in the affairs of the Inverness Equestrians.

The Equestrians sponsor two major events each year. A Father's Day Horse Show is held in June. And in July, a two-day combined training event is conducted with competition in the open, stadium jumping and dressage events.

BOTH THE major events attract participants from other sections of California, and the horse show is sanctioned by the American Horse Shows Assn.

Business meetings are held once a month at restaurant owner Nevl's Drake Arms in Inverness.

Also on the calendar are cross country riding, informal shows and the exercising of the hounds.

Once or twice a year, one of the famous Los Altos Hunts is transferred to West Marin, and the Inverness riders serve as hosts for that colorful event.

THE SEASON for the hunt rides opens in the early fall and continues into April. The 1964 season will begin in October with the traditional blessing of the hounds, to be followed by the opening hunt.

For a hunt, the riders will usually cover approximately 15 miles cross country, divided into three or four runs.

A rider precedes them, laying down a scent for the dogs. The riders then follow, alert for warning signals of barbed wire and foxholes. Jumps are over existing fences that have been covered by panels to protect the horses against the wire, and range from three to four feet in height.

SPECTATORS from hilltops can watch and enjoy the spectacle, with the field master clad in his colorful pink coat and the remainder of the participants wearing their traditional horse show and hunt clothing.

"NEW SUMMER FASHIONS"

Soft crepes in silk or synthetics interpret the fluid silhouette, which is a must in every wardrobe. Chiffon, ranging from bright hues to pale pastels may be used alone or combined with matching silk prints.

Magnificent and elegant are the only two words that describe the laces used in the Paris couture collection. White Calais lace swirling with misty re-embroidery of sheer white nylon ribbon; hand shaded lace re-embroidered in a relief floral design of ribbon with soutache; Lyons lace in dramatic and small floral motif, richly re-embroidered in silk braid; navy chantilly lace in an all-over shadowy floral design—these are examples of the laces used to interpret the truly feminine look.

Twills, gabardines, surahs are fluid and supple, smart and sophisitcated. Piques, matelasses, plisses, raised cottons and tuckings provide interest, originality and freshness. Seersucker will be seen in the palest of pastels, dark plaids, gay stripes and checks.

Double knits are everywhere. The jacquard motiffs are new. With gold and silver yarns, double knits acquire an iridescent frost-like sparkle. The "crocket" and "lacy" look in knits is new.

So if you purchase a bright chiffon or combine it with a matching silk print, your drycleaner is ready to preserve that fashion so that you will continue to look and feel like an Arabian princess.

By Robert and Ronald Casassa, Marin Cleaners, Inc.

ANN PURCELL OF Inverness and her horse are a picture of grace as they clear a fence while riding cross country as participants in the Inverness Equestrians combined training event. The barbed wire has been covered with a wooden panel to protect both steed and rider against injury. West Marin ranchers grant the equestrians permission to use their land for such test rides. And the establishment of the Point Reyes National Seashore is viewed by the riders as a guarantee that West Marin will remain superb riding country.

A WEEKEND RIDE at a more relaxed pace than the speedy cross country rides following the hounds is enjoyed by these Inverness Equestrians. Left to right are Anne Purcell, Mrs. Vladimir Nevl, Mrs. John Wright and Vladimir Nevl, all of Inverness. The rides that take them over the ranchlands of West Marin also sometimes lead them along the sandy beaches. West Marin, the Inverness Equestrians feel, provides them with the ideal riding conditions for the kinds of horsemanship they enjoy the most.

Cross Country With The Inverness Equestrians

verness Equestrians were a gift from the Los Altos Hunt Club, and are boarded with a Marin veterinary center.

"This kind of hunt is actually far faster than those in which hounds actually pursue foxes," Mrs. Purcell says.

Colonel Watt adds that the organization is training its membership to become a hunt staff in the British pattern with the field master, the huntsman and the whippers-in.

THE INVERNESS terrain is ideal for this kind of riding, Watt says. The hunt takes the riders over such lands as the Leland Murphy Ranch, the Alfred Grossi Ranch, the Ottinger property and adjoining holdings.

"West Marin ranchers have been very good about letting us use their property," Colonel Watt says.

And he adds that the Inverness Equestrians regard their home grounds "as very possibly the last stronghold for the kind of cross country riding we enjoy the most."

Other areas where the sport is popular are being developed and populated, he points out.

BUT THE formation of the Point Reyes National Seashore would seem to guarantee the Inverness riders a permanent open site for their hunts and other rides.

When the hunt season ends in the spring, there are the two major summer events ahead to keep the membership busy. And the younger equestrians take an active part in such horse shows as the Junior Grand National at San Francisco and the California State Fair in Sacramento as well as local contests.

Roeanne Watt, 15-year-old daughter of the David Watts, admits that after the pell-mell pace of riding with the hounds, the more controlled competition of the horse show arena sometimes seems a little tame.

BUT LIKE the other younger members of the group, she's happy astride one of her two horses, no matter what the occasion.

It is with such dedicated young riders that the Inverness Equestrians rest their hopes of developing a star or stars of national stature.

Colonel Watt says that interest in the kind of riding fostered by the Inverness Equestrians is definitely on the increase in this area.

The first of the annual combined training events drew 10 entries. Participation fell to eight. But this year, registration jumped to 24 for the tutilege and tests conducted under the rules of the United States Combined Training Assn. for Combined Training Events.

WATT SAYS the kind of riding enjoyed by the Inverness Equestrians is not dangerous—"Vladimir Nevl and the parents make certain that young riders don't attempt difficult rides and jumps until they are thoroughly competent to do so"—nor is it especially expensive.

"It costs you just so much to own and maintain a horse, no matter whether he is a jumper or not," Watt declares. "Most of our members are people of average income."

Their investment in their horses, they feel, provides them with maximum returns in enjoyment for their recreation expenditures. An Olympic rider some future year would be an added bonus.

EXERCISING THE hounds is Vladimir Nevl, president of the Inverness Equestrians. He's a restaurateur, and his Drake's Arms is the scene of the equestrians' business meetings. The dogs are boarded at a Marin veterinary center when not leading the riders a merry chase across country. (Photos by Abbie Purcell)

Fulbright On Foreign Policy Timely For An Election Year

By DON KEOWN

In this election year, we are going to hear much of two diverse opinions as to the course which American foreign policy should take.

President Lyndon B. Johnson will be defending administration policies; Sen. Barry Goldwater will be advocating change and acceleration in one direction.

There is still a third school of thought in this vital field.

Sen. J. William Fulbright, Democrat of Arkansas, startled the country — and the world — in March with a speech in which he urged a sweeping reappraisal of our foreign policy and a possible re-direction of a far different kind than that being advocated by Goldwater.

Generous press coverage was accorded the Fulbright proposal. But it was the more sensational specifics of his speech as affecting our relations with Russia, with China, Cuba and de Gaulle, our space program and military expenditures, etc., that receievd the greatest attention. Now in his book, "Old Myths and New Realities," Fulbright has made available an expanded version of his proposals and the basis of his thinking. By reading it, Americans can acquire a broader picture of just what Fulbright was driving at when he advised us to begin thinking "unthinkable" thoughts on foreign policy.

"Extreme nationalism and domestic ideology are luxuries that the human race can no longer afford," he tells us. "It must turn its energies now to the politics of survival. If we do so, we may find that the simple human preference for life and peace has an inspirational force of its own, less intoxicating perhaps than the sacred abstractions of nation and ideology, but far more relevant to the requirements of human life and human happiness."

SEN. J. W. FULBRIGHT
Foreign policy reappraisal

Thus does Fulbright paint the backdrop for his proposals. It is an argument for flexibility, for moderation, for reasoning, and, above all, for the dignity of the individual man and his rightful aspirations — and against extremism.

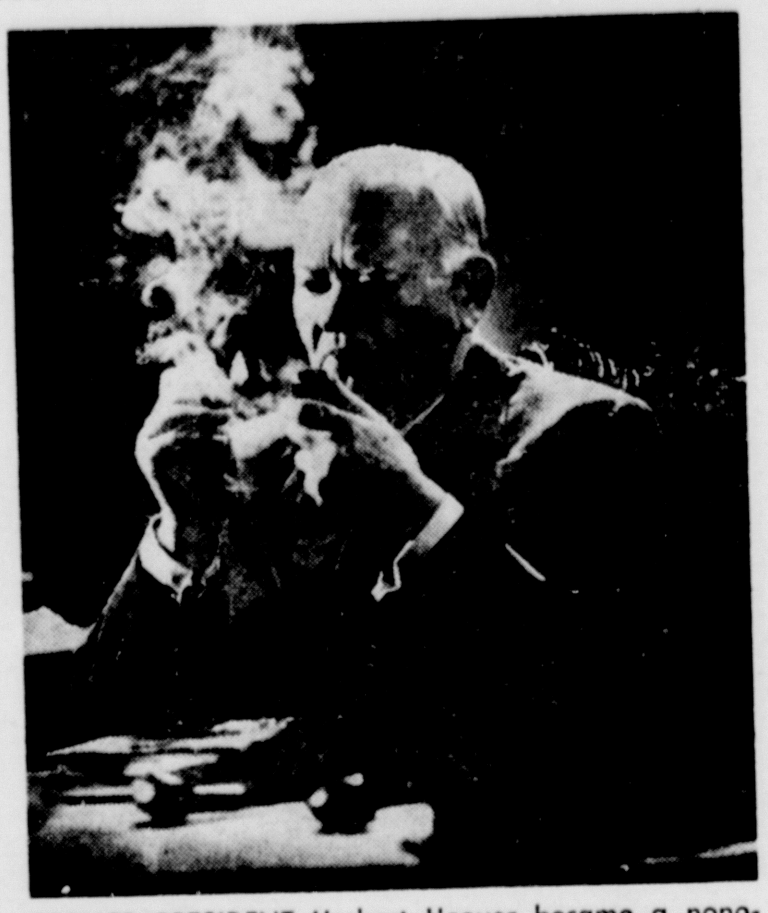
Sadly, in the field of domestic policies, Fulbright, coming from the state of Faubus, has found it politically necessary to go along with those in his region who cling to "old myths" and reject "new realities" in the field of racial relations.

OLD MYTHS AND NEW REALITIES by Sen. J. William Fulbright, Random House, hardcover $3.95, 147-page Vintage paperback $1.45.

BANK JOB by Thomas B. Reagan, Dodd, Mead and Co., 200 pages, $3.50.

The best he can offer us there is the claim that civil rights legislation results in little if any direct advancement for minorities, and that their real interests lie in the solution of our general educational, employment, etc., problems. There is the germ of truth in this. But it is also true that the Negro has not been a full or lasting participant in forward surges of the past, and that he would continue to be shorted in the future without the guarantees afforded him by bills such as those which Senator Fulbright has voted against in Congress.

It is a tragedy of our times that a man like Fulbright who can speak out wtih great courage on some very touchy international problems still must exercise caution and expediency in a field in which the moral issues involved are very clear and urgent.



FORMER PRESIDENT Herbert Hoover became a nonogenarian this week as he observed his 90th birthday. In observance of the occasion, Doubleday and Co. released the new book, "Herbert Hoover: A Biography," by Eugene Lyons. The jacket photo shown above is by Joshua Weiner.

OSIRIS DIED IN AUTUMN by Lee Langley, Crime Club, 192 pages, $3.50. Reviewed by Donald G. Davis.

Osiris, an Egyptian diety, died in the autumn, and Isis buried his scattered parts.

Will Gregg, a university professor, with a somewhat mysterious past, was found dead in his library in the autumn. Natalie Keith, another professor, in love with Gregg, is sort of his own Isis in this Doubleday Crime Club selection.

A university student is suspected, and Gregg's secretary is missing. A couple of other university professors have ugly personalities. A stranger turns up with a gun, and there are hints that Gregg did secret work for the government. There's enough here to get one interested in a first-class mystery. And there's enough university campus erudition sprinkled throughout to make this story sound dependable.

But Osiris doesn't quite come off as the classic puzzler it is supposed to be. The killer is all but identified, at least strongly suspected, from the beginning. The reason for the killing is banal, and is thinly supported by madness.

There ought to be more meat to a mystery that is as well-written as this one.

"BANK JOB" by Thomas B. Reagan is a crime novel with broad appeal, in the pattern of W. R. Burnett's "The Asphalt Jungle."

Step by step, with the matter-of-fact realism of a documentary, yet with keen insight into character and motivations, Reagan recounts the planning and execution of an Oklahoma bank robbery by a band of professional specialists.

It would be a mistake to regard this as just another suspense or mystery novel. It is excellent fiction by any standard, offering a strong psychological study of the relationships between the criminals involved in such a coldly calculated, painstakingly planned enterprise. The participants are very much human beings, and very probably just the types who might undertake such a project.

This, incidentally, is Reagan's first book. Readers will look forward to many more from what is demonstrated here to be an outstanding talent.

REPORTS FROM OUR REVIEWERS

Astronomy Talks

ASTERISKS by James S. Pickering, Dodd, Mead & Co. 214 pages, $4. Reviewed by Richard Lyttle.

This "book of astronomical footnotes," as the author describes it, is a collection of his short radio talks.

The talks read well in print and the illustration with each provides something listeners did not get.

Pickering, assistant astronomer and supervisor of guest relations at the American Museum - Hayden Planetarium in New York City, not only knows his stuff but also knows how to make it highly interesting.

The book can easily be read by a layman with only passing knowledge of mathematics and astronomy. But the chief value of the book might be in its function as an introduction for young readers to the science.

Pickering writes with such marked clarity that any high school student would find it easy reading.

The book covers the history of astronomy, telling of the early telescopes and leading up to current space exploration. It is being offered at a most appropriate time.

Award-Winner

A FLAG FULL OF STARS by Don Robertson, G. P. Putnam's Sons, 511 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Helga Epstein.

All the ingredients of the contemporary "superseller" novel are carefully included in Don Robertson's "A Flag Full of Stars," winner of a $10,000 Putnam Award.

A huge cast of characters is introduced and propelled through a series of flashbacks, coincidences and crises. Each represents a familiar type, with readily identifiable weaknesses and easily predictable reactions to stress. Among others, we meet the good-looking, selfish heel married to the ineffectual, good-intentioned alcoholic; the tenderhearted middle-aged film star with the confused young brother; the weak but decent fellow with a domineering wife and an adoring mistress.

Plenty of sex and explosive dialogue also help to make a novel a "superseller," and author Robertson is as unlikely to stint on these as he is to make any of his character too complex for comfort.

Nor has the author forgotten the most important requirement of all—well-researched facts about a time topic. "A Flag Full of Stars" is staged on the day of the presidential election, November, 1948, when Truman won his surprise victory over Dewey. The surveys, statistics, A.P. bulletins, hourly election returns, and newspaper headlines of that historic day are presented with clarity and skill.

Thus if size, scope and sex are enough, the Putnam Award guarantee of "reader satisfaction" is justified.

Finishing Schools

THE DEEP FREEZE GIRLS by Eva Defago, Coward-McCann, 314 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Barbara Hosmer.

An alumna herself, Eva Defago takes the lid off the girls finishing schools in Switzerland in a comic novel that takes on increasing overtones of pathos as it moves along.

The common "dumping" of wealthy teen-age girls from throughout the world into the deep freeze of a Swiss finishing school such as the fictional Pensionnat de Jeunes Filles Villa Joyeuse by what the author regards as "thoughtless, selfish parents" has prompted her to write the book. It's entertaining, if somewhat sensational, and the story is balanced and told with the sometimes amusing idiom of youth.

For The Children—

Some recommended reading for the young, younger and youngest readers:

A new Tony Palazzo book is always a treat for the little ones. His "A Bird Alphabet" (Duell, Sloan and Pearce, $2.95) is part of his utterly delightful ABC series. As he has done with various animals in the past, Palazzo now uses colorful birds to lure tots into mastering their ABCs. His brilliant use of hues not only captivates the child but dazzles the adult as well. Definitely something special.

Arnold Spilka's colors are more subdued in his "Paint All Kinds of Pictures" (Walck, $3.75), but here the object is to help the child discover how pictures can reflect or depict a mood. It is the result of Spilka's strong belief in encouraging self expression among children, and it is the kind of thing that should fascinate the youngster who is artistically inclined. Intended for boys and girls 5 through 9, it should be especially effective at about the 6 and 7-year level.

The 28th volume in American Heritage's Junior Library Series for young history buffs is "Air War Against Hitler's Germany" ($3.95) with text by Stephen W. Sears and 120 illustrations that include special cutaway paintings of three World War II aircraft along with other combat art, sketches and photos. It is the story of how Allied aircraft, the Americans in the daytime, the RAF at night, defeated the Luftwaffe and battered German industry so mercilessly in the spring of 1943. It is a form of aerial warfare that became quickly outdated, but which contributed vitally to the Allied victory during that brief period when it was effective.

"Trees make the woods. They make everything beautiful." Thus does author Janice May Udry express the small child's wonder in her "A Tree Is Nice" (Harper, $2.75). She goes on to describe the tree's uses: "A tree is nice to hang a swing in . . . a tree is nice for a house to be near . . . " The reader is touched by the beauty of a tree as he looks at Marc Simont's illustrations that complement and establish harmony with the story. So warm and enchanting are his colors, so gifted with gaiety his pictures, the reader realizes that this book deserved its Caldecott Award. It's truly a treasure for the young child's library.

Combining history and geography with mystery and adventure is Helen P. Hoyt's "The Jeweled Cross" (Doubleday, $2.95). The time is the 1880s. The setting is Hawaii. And the central character, Samantha Allen, a New England orphan girl who has come to the islands to make her home with relatives. As she learns island customs and culture, Samantha wrestles with an ethical problem involving a secret. Girls 13 to 15 should find her story an absorbing one.

Stories with animal characters have fascinated youngsters for generations and continue to do so. "Voices in the Meadow" by J. Allan Bosworth (Doubleday, $3.25) is an especially fine example of this kind of tale. Humor and suspense are worked into the account of how the meadowfolk match wits with their enemies, the raven and the graywolf. This Junior Literary Guild selection is packed with excitement even as it provides a true-to-life picture of the daily struggle for survival that takes place in our fields and forests.

"We walk along, walk along, not talking, just looking," says Small Boy as he and Tia Maria take a stroll in the desert in Ann Nolan Clark's "Tia Maria's Garden" (Viking, $3). Wind, sand and sun walk along with them. The book overflows with the joy of living and love of nature, as Small Boy relates what he sees, hears and feels. Caldecott winner Ezra Jack Keats adds to the reverence and reality of the desert scenes with his vivid pictures "full of light and color."

"Turkish Fairy Tales" by Selma Ekrem (Van Nostrand, $3.95) is a collection of delightful tales that catch the characteristic flavor and splendor of Turkey. Twelve full-page illustrations and delicate line drawings are by distinguished Turkish artist Liba Bayrak. These stories, many of which the author first heard from her old family nurse in Istanbul, are intricately laced with romance and adventure.

On Stereo Scene With The Pianists

By JOHN SUNIER
Program Manager, KBRG

SCHUMANN: Davidsbundlertanze/Carnaval—Charles Rosen, piano—Epic Stereo BC 1269:

Two of the most colorful and varied piano suites in the literature for the instrument.

The "Dances of the Society of David" take us into his private poetic world where the composer fought against the Philistinism of the world at large. "Carnaval," written three years earlier, is a gayer and more carefree suite with wonderful touches of humor and nostalgia.

Rosen is superb—his tone full and rich and articulation crystal-clear. Stereo does make a difference on solo piano, you know.

CHOPIN: The Four Ballades — Witold Malcuzynski — Angel Stereo S 36146:

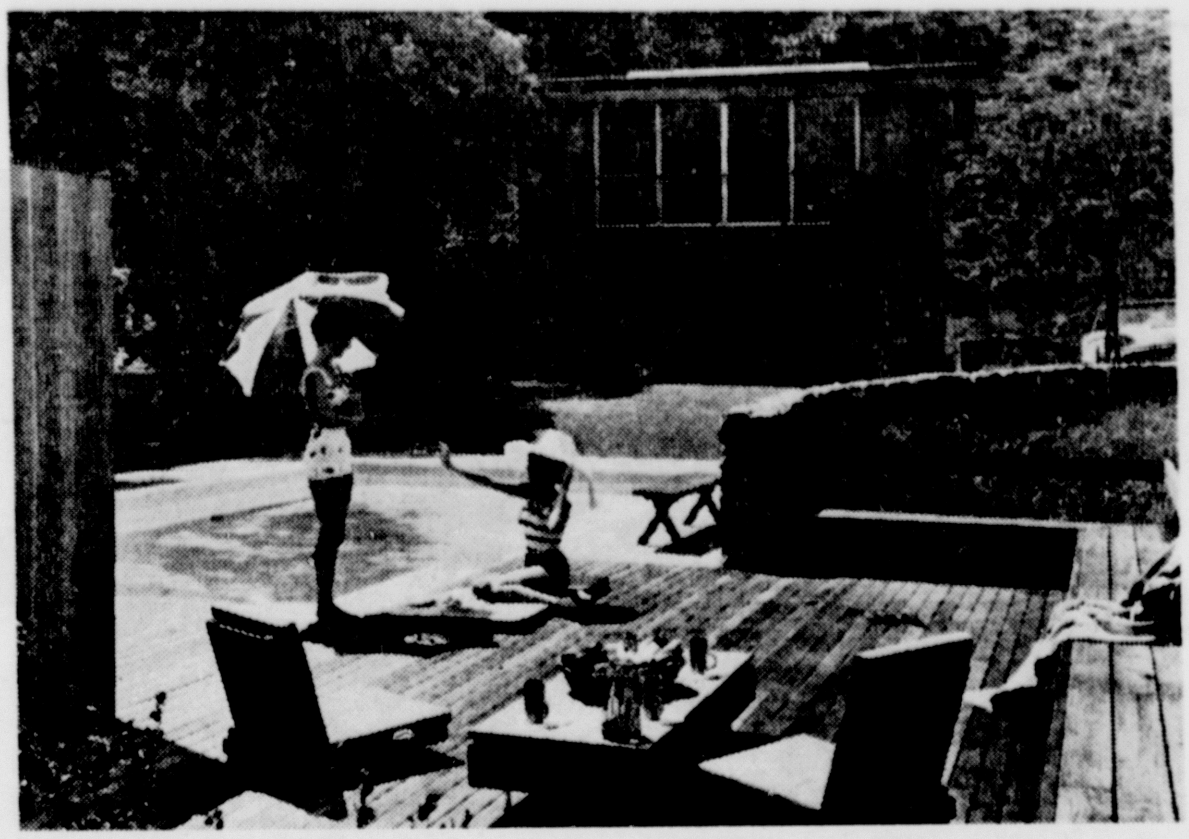
In the "Ballades," Chopin created a new free form of music, a story-telling form dramatic in the extreme and requiring the hands of a true virtuoso to bring it off well. Malcusynski is such a virtuoso.

One listen to these exciting pieces should quell the notion that all of Chopin's piano music is pussy-footing salon music. A supremely satisfying album for both Chopin fanciers and non-fanciers.

JOSEF FIDELMAN PLAYS—Recital No. 3—BACH: English Suite in A Minor; MOZART: Sonata in D, K. 576; D. SCARLATTI: Sonata in E, L. 23 and Sonata in A, L. 345—Parliament Stereo PLPS 1300:

Fidelman was born in Georgia in the Soviet Union, but is now a U.S. citizen. His first recordings show a definite understanding of both the technical and emotional aspects of the works performed. His concise and bright tone is well-suited to this Baroque music, although a certain spark seems to be missing from the proceedings.

Excellent engineering in producing a natural piano sound on disc.



LANDSCAPE ARCHITECT Anthony Guzzardo made strategic use of outdoor space to add living value to this suburban home. Swimming pool, deck, poolside sauna bath and garage-studio (designed by architect Matt Copenhaver) were carefully integrated to receive maximum use, yet are separate from the main house (not shown) to preserve a certain amount of its tranquility. Natural stone and redwood were the main building materials used. (Photo by Karl Riek)

Here's Deck That Meets 3 Rules Of Landscape Design

Three basic rules of landscape design will make it easy for you to plan your deck or patio:

1. Preserve the existing natural beauty and character of the site.

2. Use natural materials to blend with the surroundings.

3. Provide easy traffic between indoors and outdoors.

STONE AND natural-finished redwood were used to blend with the surroundings. The redwood deck, benches, railings, and poolhouse have been treated with a water repellent coating which allows the wood to weather naturally. The curving wall of stone complete the theme of natural materials and connects the poolside deck area visually with another large deck at the house.

The third rule is probably the one most important to the home owner. An outdoor living area is only successful when it combines maximum enjoyment with minimum maintenance. The deck pictured was designed with this in mind.

Benches are built into the safety railing to provide permanent seating. The deck and pool are close enough to the house to make serving of food and beverages convenient for dining and entertaining. The deck can be seen easily from the house so that the mother can keep an eye on the pool while she works in the house.

THE CHOICE of material for this deck was also made with a thought for easy maintenance. Redwood was selected because it needs little or no care. After the initial treatment of water repellent, the deck will maintain itself.

Natural chemicals in the heartwood of redwood make it resistant to decay and termite attack.

A deck can be the answer to a more enjoyable summer for you and your family. You can simply stay at home on your deck away from the crowds and traffic. For more ideas about decking, write for the booklet, "Redwood Decks." Send 10 cents to Department PF-14, California Redwood Assn., 617 Montgomery Street, San Francisco, Calif.

UTENSIL PANEL

Something To Make Your Outdoor Barbecue Easier

A staked utensil panel near your outdoor barbecue outfit will make cookouts easier. And it can be built of readily available materials for less than $2.

The "barbecuer's helper" essentially is an 18-by-24-inch panel of Peg-Board framed in one-by-four-inch pine lumber and staked to the ground with a one-by-two-inch board.

Barbecue tools are suspended from Peg-Board hooks, and the salt and pepper shakers fit neatly on Delrin shelves. All fasteners are held firmly in the perforations of the board.

For neatest appearance, insert the panel in grooves made in the center of the miter-cornered framing, using waterproof glue and brads. An even easier way is to fasten the perforated hardboard to the back of the framework with screws.

Fasten the pointed stake in the center of the back framing with two No. 8 flathead screws one and a half inches long. Prime and paint your "helper" with two coats of exterior quality paint.

Soon after the stake's in, the steak's on!

MARINITES ARE bird-lovers and birdwatchers by nature. And one of the best ways to increase your enjoyment from this gentle amusement is to construct a bird-feeder. Send 35 cents to Independent-Journal, P. O. Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., and ask for Bird Feeder Pattern No. 9. You'll get a full-size woodworking pattern that can be traced directly on wood, then cut with an ordinary coping saw. And you'll have a feeder that also functions as a weathervane.

You Can Count On The Friendly Natives

And 'Wild Lilac' Rates As One Of The Most Beautiful

Native shrubs and trees seem to always look "just right" in all California gardens.

Of course, reports the California Assn. of Nurserymen, these natives are used to our long, dry summers, and they have built-in resistance to drought which keeps them looking hale and hearty even with severe neglect.

And when planted in the garden, especially on dry hillsides which are inhospitable to shrubs, they keep up appearances where a less rugged plant will look weak and ragged at best.

This is not to imply that you only bring natives into your garden when there are miserable conditions to surmount. Many natives have also learned to live with normal garden conditions. If you would try growing them yourself, it's none too soon to start.

August is a good month to plant natives.

MOST WIDELY adapted to garden use are several members of the Ceanothus family—those "wild lilacs" which one finds from San Diego on northward.

The Point Reyes Ceanothus for one has become widely domesticated. It is a creeper that really stays close to the ground, spreading several feet in a carpet of richly green, one-inch leaves. Against this dramatic backdrop are nestled lavender-blue flowers in the shape of small lilacs. Each spring these delicate blooms make their appearance.

Another good Ceanothus groundcover is the Carmel Creeper, with leathery two-inch leaves that form a mounding cover up to two feet or more in height. The spring flowers are bluer, somewhat more profuse than the Point Reyes variety.

EITHER IS an outstanding groundcover, and if you compare their looks in nursery cans, you'll get an idea of their differences at maturity.

Other Ceanothus varieties are more shrub-like. Some of them are truly spectacular when in bloom each spring. At all other times, they are handsome shrubs, so how can you miss?

CEANOTHUS, the "wild lilacs" that dot and beautify hillsides all over California, are the freshest addition for any hard-to-grow area. This low-growing groundcover is a deep, rich carpet of leaves. The lavender-blue flowers are an extra bonus. (Photo by California Assn. of Nurserymen)

THERE IS no comparable sight in gardening to the rich cobalt blue of this Ceanothus against the background of deep green foliage.

The variety Ray Hartman is a very large shrub or small tree with deep blue flowers. It grows to 10 feet in three years from gallon cans.

These four are the results of hybridizing, so we can't really call them true natives. Why quibble, though? They are native sons and daughters, at least.

NURSERYMEN suggest that you check with them for a close and amazing look at these lovely natives. The masses of blooms and the clean, bright green of their foliage make the members of the Ceanothus family a welcome addition to any land area.

Once you see just how lovely they are and notice how easily they grow, you'll want them for borders on the driveway, for the "troublesome corner" of your garden, or as cover-ups for the hilly area around your home.

Plant Color Now, Avoid Those Winter Doldrums

If you wish to avoid a winter-weary garden, now is the time to lay plans for cheerful color to brighten dull days.

The secret to colorful gardens in winter is the generous range of annual flowers available for planting now, including snapdragons, stock, pansies, violas, baby primroses, and cinerarias. These are grown in flats at your nursery for easy transplanting to your flower beds.

YOUR FIRST duty in preparation for a handsome display, is to prepare the beds to receive the fresh plants. Work the soil to a depth of eight to 12 inches, incorporating the conditioning material recommended by your nurseryman. He will know which is best for our various soil conditions.

Level off the surface of the soil with a rake, removing hard clods and stones. Carefully remove the plants from the flat to avoid separating soil from roots. A putty knife is good for this purpose.

Set the plants in the ground at the same level they stood in the flat, at the same time firming them down with slight pressure and forming a small basin to receive water. Irrigate the small plants immediately with a slow stream of water that prevents washing away soil when you irrigate.

PROTECT your plants by scattering snail and slug pellets through the new planting immediately after the job is done. Wait until plants are well established before applying fertilizer and do it sparingly at first.

Don't mix up small amounts of several kinds — plant a larger quantity of the same varieties and colors for mass effect — you'll enjoy the results.

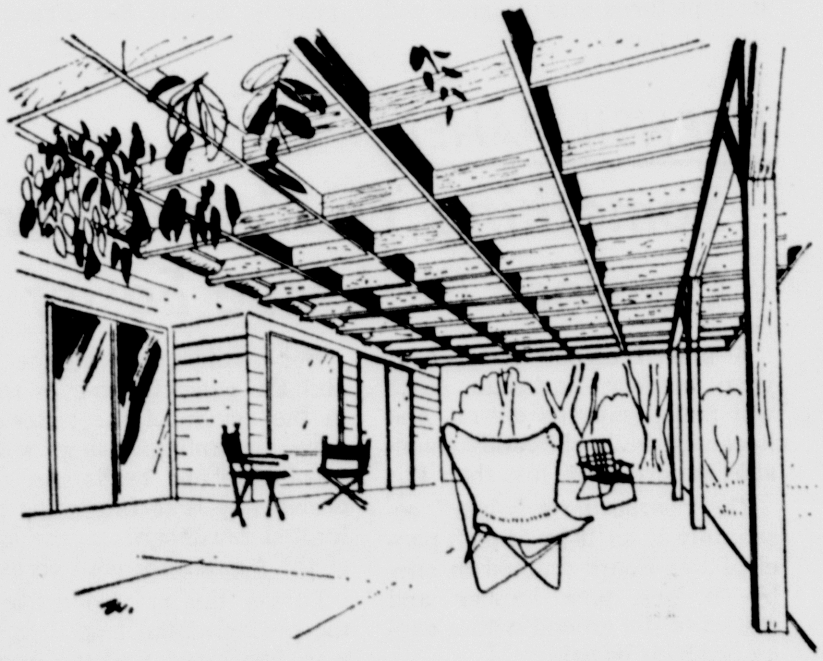
Versatile Group

Some of the easiest, smartest decorator tricks can be achieved with combination pots—two or three different plants in the same large clay pot. A favorite eye-pleaser is a fibrous begonia and coleus in a single porous container. This combination provides a variety of outdoor color, and can be brought back indoors for winter after a summer outside.

GARDENERS CHECKLIST

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Take long stems when cutting roses to renew established bush. Feed roses if it's been a month since the last time and you will get good fall bloom.
- If you need a handsome parkway covering, try Aaron's Beard (Hypericum calysinum). In summer it's a mass of bright yellow blooms.
- Bush berries that have not been pruned yet should be. Remove the canes that bore fruit this year and loosely wind the new growth around the trellis.
- Quick color can be found this month from Lantanas. Give them the sunniest exposure you have.
- A regular once-a month feeding schedule is appreciated by your lawn.
- All container grown shrubs and trees may be bought and planted in August. It is a good month, especially, to plant citrus whether in the standard size or dwarf (if your garden is of modest proportions).



ONE SMART WAY to cool off a patio for comfortable summer living is with a sunshade roof. This one is egg-crate frame built of two-by-eight inch Douglas fir, supported on four-by-four posts and beams. One side is anchored to house walls under roof gutter. Clematis make a leafy cover in the summer, but allows welcome winter sunshine to reach house windows.

For Night-Time Contrast, Try Grey

More and more Californians are using their gardens at night, and this has increased the demand for plants with grey foliage.

Here's why: A garden with all-green shrubs and trees offers only a monotonous background at night, but when the planting is interspersed with grey-foliaged shrubs and trees, the garden comes to life!

HERE'S AN attractive treatment for a yard corner, consisting of a simple garden seat built of Douglas fir two-by-fours set in a bed of river rock. Zigzag brick edging separates area from lawn. Fence of tall shrubs can be used as the backdrop.

HERE ARE some suggestions of plants with grey leaves for special uses:

Among the trees lighted at night two of the most popular are the olive and the grey-foliage forms of acacia—Bailey and Pearl.

For a tall screen in the background to contrast with lower foreground shrubs, use the Karo pittosporum. Reap an extra dividend with its night-scented flowers in summer.

For medium shrubs to highlight a dark background you have several choices: The wormwood-senna has needle-like grey leaves and a long blooming season of bright yellow flowers; the shrubby form of germander has blue blooms to contrast with grey leaves and the Texas Ranger, which is said to forecast rain with the appearance of its purplish-blue flowers.

THE COTONEASTERS offer a wide range of growth habits, grey leaves, white flower masses in summer and red berries fall and winter. The shrub morning-glory makes a handsome small mound covered with silvery foliage covered with pink and white flowers in late spring and summer.

Your nurseryman will recommend one of the Dusty Millers as a good contrasting border plant, day or night. There are two leaf forms: Finely divided leaves belong to the old-fashioned form while the broader leaves belong to the more compact Centuria cineraria.

Getting Set For Another Season

A little tired of "repeats" on your television set?

Well, you won't have long to wait now before a brand new season begins. And with it, will come a host of new shows.

The 1964-65 TV season will start in earnest about the middle of next month. But preparations for your entertainment this fall and winter have long been under way.

The National Broadcasting Co. sent along these photographs, showing some of the new programs planned by that network in the process of being filmed.

Other networks are equally busy putting the finishing touches upon their new shows, or filming new episodes for their established favorites that will return for yet another season. Just tolerate those repeats a little longer.

CAMERA CREWS move in for a closeup of Peter Lawford and Michael Constantine as a "Profiles in Courage" story is filmed in Ventura County.

DENNIS WEAVER, leaning on rail in background, is star of the new "Kentucky Jones" series with a racetrack setting. It begins Sept. 19 on NBC.

"JFK REMEMBERED" will be an hour-long memorial special on NBC this fall. Chet Huntley will recall John F. Kennedy's inauguration as one feature.

DAVID NIVEN rehearses with beautiful Dina Merrill for an episode in "The Rogues," a new full-hour suspense drama series in the Raffles tradition that will also star Gig Young and Charles Boyer. It starts Sept 13.

ALFRED HITCHCOCK will be back with his suspense dramas for another season. Ann Sothern, wearing kerchief, and John Cassavetes, in dark suit on bridge, are directed by Bernard Girard, in light trousers, as an episode is filmed.

A History Of Democrats In Conventions

"The Great Conventions—The Democrats," hour-long CBS News special dealing with the history of Democratic presidential nominating conventions since 1932, will be presented Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. on KPIX-TV.

The 1964 Democratic Convention begins in Atlantic City the following Monday.

CBS correspondent Robert Trout will be the narrator of "The Great Conventions — The Democrats." During the broadcast, he will examine the combination of forces that brought the Democrats into office in 1932.

Trout also will analyze some of the basic patterns of Democratic power and will detail the growth in importance of the vice presidential position.

As with the earlier "The Great Conventions—The Republicans," the broadcast will utilize a stop-and-start technique with films and video tape.
